HENRI DETERDING, THE NETHERLANDS OIL MAGNATE, DIES

'Rockefeller of Europe,' 72, Rose From Poverty to a Fortune of $150,000,000 or More.

RETIRED IN 1937 AS HEAD OF 200 FIRMS

Industrialist Knighted for Wartime Idea That Aided Allies Became an Ardent Nazi.

By the Associated Press.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 4.—Sir Henri Deterding, who rose from poverty to become one of the richest and most powerful of the world's industrialists, died this afternoon at his villa here.

The Netherlands-born oil magnate, a member of the board of directors of the Royal Dutch Oil Co., and "Rockefeller of Europe" was 72 years old.

Sir Henri was slightly indisposed today and a doctor was called, to whom he laughingly remarked, "There is nothing much the matter with me."

The doctor was leaving the villa grounds when Sir Henri suffered a heart seizure and Lady Deterding ran down the driveway to recall him.

Before the doctor could reach Sir Henri's bedroom, the oil magnate was dead.

From Poverty to Riches.

Henri Wilhelm August Deterding, born in Amsterdam in 1866, was the fourth son of a sea captain, and he rose from humble clerkships to management of the big oil company. He became one of the richest and most powerful men in the world, with a personal fortune estimated at from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000.

In 1937 Sir Henri retired from the director-generalship of a group of 200 companies comprising 40,000 employes. After that the "Napoleon of oil" divided his time between his homes in Berlin and St. Moritz, and pursued his favorite hobby, hunting, through the various game seasons of Europe.

He became an ardent Nazi after Adolf Hitler attained power in Germany.

After his father's death, Henri Deterding finished a four-year school course in three years so he could take a bank examination for a job. But in 1888, after six years with a bank, he was prompted by his mother to quit because promotions were slow, and he went to the East Indies as a clerk for the Netherlands Trading Society.

Fight With Rockefeller.

A year later he joined the then tiny Royal Dutch Petroleum Co., as an accountant. In 10 years he was running the business.

When J. B. A. Kessler invited Deterding to take over the sales end of Royal Dutch in 1890, Rockefeller controlled the world's oil markets and cut prices against his competitors until he put them out of business or absorbed them.

Deterding observed that most of Rockefeller's crude came from the United States. He went after the crude oil in the East Indies and Caucasia, and organized the East Indian producers on a co-operative basis. By the time Rockefeller began undercutting Royal Dutch in China, Deterding had so much capital behind him that he invaded New York and undercut Standard Oil on its own ground.

The situation that eventuated in Deterding's greatest power stemmed from 1897 when the British Government decided to change over its navy from coal to fuel oil. Aided by the British Government, Marcus Samuel and the Paris Rothschilds got a concession in the Dutch East Indies, and the Shell Transport & Trading Co. was floated.

Deterding immediately set out to tie Royal Dutch and Shell together, the better to compete with Standard Oil, but it was not until Kessler's death in December, 1900, that the way opened for the combination.

The Asiatic Petroleum Co. owned one-third each by Royal Dutch, Shell and the Rothschilds, was the outcome in 1903 and by 1907 the division of the oil world into two main groups was generally recognized. Standard was "tops" in America and Deterding, Rothschild and Shell had most of the rest of the world.

Knighted for War Services.

In World War days Deterding conceived the idea of ballasting cargo boats with oil instead of water. It was at a time when the storage tanks of the British fleet were empty and submarines were sinking tankers on every shore. Deterding's idea broke the blockade. He was knighted for his war services in 1921.

Deterding was married three times. His first wedding, in 1894, was to Katherine Newbronner, whose father was Consul-General

None of 18 Senators at Secret Meeting Admits Giving Out 'U. S. Frontier in France' Story

Roosevelt Called It "Deliberate Lie"—Nye Under Suspicion at White House Asks Instead of Answering Question.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. — The member of the Senate Military Affairs Committee whose indiscretion brought down on his head President Roosevelt's charge of "lie" was still unknown tonight with each of the 18 Senators refusing, in a poll taken by the Post-Dispatch to assume any share of the blame.

No controversy in a long time has stirred so much gossip and rumor with most Senators maintaining a phenomenal caution. The majority of the committee refused even to discuss the reported leak of one of their members who attributed to President Roosevelt the statement that our frontier was in France or on the Rhine. It was this statement that the President characterized as a "deliberate lie" at his press conference Friday.

White House suspicion, the Post-Dispatch has learned, rests on Senator Gerald P. Nye (Rep.), of North Dakota. Nye was the first member of the committee to comment on the President's denunciation. Instead of a denial he asked a question. When polled by the Post-Dispatch he would only repeat his original comment which was: "In response to your question I can only ask another question; if this is untrue, what then was the frontier that the President said was the frontier of the United States? I can say no more than this."

Bridges Outspoken.

The most outspoken member of the committee was Senator H. Styles Bridges (Rep.) of New Hampshire. He insisted that if the President had not used the exact wording—the frontier of the United States is in France—he has used language that had conveyed that same meaning at his secret talk with the committee on Tuesday. Bridges denied having made this public in defiance of the strict injunction of secrecy that the President put on all committee members.

In an interview in New York Bridges is quoted as saying: "There is a hell of a mess down there (in Washington). This conference was an unheard of thing. Some of the things he (Roosevelt) said at that meeting were pretty damned inflammatory. They could never publish the stenographic record, if one was made."

Three times in the course of the hour and a half talk, it had been learned, the President expressly requested that strictest secrecy be maintained, once at the beginning of the talk, again in the middle and finally at the end. At the White House today it was said, contrary to reports by some Republican committee members, no stenographic record of the talk was made.

Violent debate over American foreign policy, precipitated by disclosures that Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau at the President's request was expediting French plane purchases here, is expected to break out in the Senate early next week, probably Monday. Bridges has declared that since the President talked about the meeting Senators should also have this privilege. Strictly "off the record," several Senators continue to intimate that what the President really said on American foreign policy was even more sensational than the statement about the American frontier.

What Senators Say.

Here is what the committee members had to say publicly when polled by the Post-Dispatch:

Sheppard of Texas, chairman—"I am making no comment."

Lewis (Dem.), of Illinois — "I never heard the statement about the frontiers until it came up yesterday in connection with the discussion at the White House."

Logan (Dem.), of Kentucky—"If someone reported that the President made such a statement it was absolutely untrue. I never heard of it until yesterday. I understand that I have been quoted as saying otherwise, but any other remarks attributed to me are false. I never heard of such a thing until the White House press conference."

Reynolds (Dem.), of North Carolina—"I don't want to comment at all on this controversy between the White House and the newspapers."

Thomas (Dem.), of Utah — "I never heard of anything like that. It sounds like an echo of the thing Stanley Baldwin said in the British Parliament in 1934, that the British frontier was the Rhine."

Denies Hearing.

Minton (Dem.), of Indiana—"I never heard anything about it until I read it in the New York Herald Tribune." (On the phone from New Albany, Ind., where he was attending the funeral of his father.)

Johnson (Dem.), of Colorado—"I don't want to talk about that."

Lee (Dem.), of Oklahoma—"I'm making no comment at all on that."

Schwartz (Dem.), of Wyoming—"I have no statement to make at this time."

Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Min-

ITALIAN ENVOY PELTED WITH EGGS IN PANAMA

Diplomat, Admiral Forced to Change Splattered Clothes; Anti-Fascist Crowd Jailed.

By the Associated Press.

PANAMA CITY, Panama, Feb. 4.—Demonstrators hurled eggs and vegetables at an automobile bearing the Italian Minister and an Italian Admiral and aids on an official visit to President Juan Demostenes Arosmena today.

The two were pelted with so much refuse before the window could be closed that they had to return to the Admiral's flagship to change clothes before making the call.

The disturbance occurred as the automobile carrying Minister Italo Capanni and Admiral Eduardo Somigli passed Santa Ana Plaza. It lasted 15 minutes.

Somigli is commanding the Italian Seventh Naval Division, consisting of the cruisers Eugenio di Savoia and Emanuele Filberto Duca D'Aosta, on a world cruise to demonstrate Italian naval strength.

Police reinforcements arrived shortly after the disturbance started and began rounding up participants. Originally the demonstrators numbered between 30 and 50, but their numbers increased as workers left their jobs for lunch.

As fast as the disturbers could be arrested and arraigned, they were sentenced each to 10 days in jail for disorderly conduct and inciting the populace.

The executive power—the President and Minister of Justice—sternly ordered authorities to prevent further infractions of "Panama's traditional hospitality." Police reserves were confined to barracks for emergency duty.

Yesterday, the Anti-Fascist League's petition for permission to demonstrate was refused by the Mayor and Governor. The league then went to the Executive Power, which refused to consider their plea.

During the night, stickers saying "Death to Mussolini; Viva Roosevelt," and "Down with Franco and the Murderers of Women and Children," were pasted on billboards, walls and telephone poles.

Italian residents tried to remove the stickers before dawn.

NICK MOVIE UNION INCOME PLACED AT $800 A WEEK

George E. Pallme in Deposition, in Suit to Oust Czar, Puts Assets at $85,000.

THREAT TO TEAR UP CARDS RELATED

Witness Tells of Beating After He Testified Against J. C. Wilson at Organization Meeting.

Income of John P. Nick's movie operators' union amounts to $800 or $1000 a week and the union's assets in December, 1936, totaled about $85,000, it was testified yesterday at a deposition hearing in the suit of 19 operators to oust Nick and his lieutenant, Clyde Weston, from control.

The testimony was given by George E. Pallme, former trustee of the local, who said it was part of his duties to know the union's income and assets. Counsel for Nick indicated in questioning that present assets of the union are about $91,000.

Nick is under indictment by the grand jury together with State Representative Edward M. (Putty Nose) Brady on a charge of extortion growing out of a $10,000 defense fund raised in 1936 by theater owners.

All of those who testified at the deposition hearing are plaintiffs in the ouster suit. To date 10 of the 19 have been examined by lawyers for Nick and Weston, who are seeking the reasons why the men consider Nick and Weston unfit to run their union. Hearings will be resumed Tuesday before Special Commissioner Milton Lawitz.

Nick, on crutches as the result of a recent attack of arthritis, has been an attendant at all of the hearings, sitting directly across from his union opponents as they testify. Formerly abrupt with reporters, Nick now jokes with them about his illness and personal affairs. But he and his lawyer, Paul Dillon, still bar reporters from the hearings.

Threat to Tear Up Cards.

J. C. Chambers, an operator, related that Nick frequently told union members at meetings he would tear up their union cards unless they did his bidding or if he caught them congregating and discussing union matters. Nick also ordered the members to do what Weston told them, Chambers said, asserting that Weston was Nick's deputy.

On one occasion, after having thundered such a charge, Nick turned to Weston, Chambers said, and remarked with an oath: "And if he doesn't do what I tell him, I'll throw him out, too."

William Robinson testified that he was struck on the back of the head, about a year ago, in a saloon in the building at 4 South Eighth street which also houses the union headquarters. He did not know who hit him, he said, but the only persons in the saloon besides the bartender were J. C. Wilson and a man named Albrecht, both of whom Robinson identified as "Nick men."

He said he had been called on a short time before the incident to testify against Wilson at a hearing before the union.

Why He Did Not Complain.

Asked why he did not take complaints against the union officers' conduct to the international union convention, Robinson replied that he saw no point in that because he had learned that such complaints were merely pigeonholed by a subcommittee dominated by Nick and George E. Browne, the international president.

The witness related that one union member went to Detroit about a year ago and complained about Nick's tactics to Roger Kennedy, another international vice-president. At a union meeting here some time later Nick threatened to "tear up the card" of any member who went over his head, adding that international officers were "all one big family" and that efforts to break his control would be futile, Robinson testified.

Robinson was asked why he considered Weston, Nick and Browne unfit to run the local here. He replied, in effect, that he considered Weston unfit because he had been ejected from the East St. Louis local, Nick because he was known to police and numbered ex-convicts among his associates, and Browne because he tolerated unfit officers here.

Attorneys for Nick and Weston contend that the plaintiffs in the ouster suit have automatically eliminated themselves from the union because they violated a pledge in the union's by-laws which forbids union members to bring suit against the union or to disclose union business to outsiders.

JUDGE IS ORDERED HOME IN MANTON, COSTER INQUIRIES

Edwin S. Thomas, of Connecticut, Starting Voyage, Called Back to U. S. by Justice Department.

SAYS HE'LL TURN BACK AT PANAMA

Federal Jurist's Records, Bank Accounts and Income Tax Returns Will Be Subpenaed.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—A radiogram went out from the Department of Justice today to United States District Judge Edwin S. Thomas of Connecticut, South America-bound on the Grace liner Santa Barbara, ordering his "immediate return" to the United States for questioning before two Federal grand juries.

Judge Thomas sailed late yesterday and missed the serving of a subpena issued by United States Attorney Gregory Noonan. Noonan wirelessed the master of the vessel and requested the jurist to debark with the pilot. Nearly three hours later he received a reply that the Judge was continuing his journey.

Noonan said Judge Thomas was wanted for questioning in connection with the investigation of the business affairs of United States Circuit Judge Martin T. Manton, whose resignation is effective Monday, and the inquiry into the situation precipitated by the unmasking and subsequent suicide of F. Donald Coster-Musica, head of the McKesson & Robbins drug firm.

"Insist on Return."

By radiogram Brien McMahon, Assistant Attorney-General, advised the Judge, who has been on the Connecticut bench for 25 years, that the investigation is "very important to the administration of justice and to you personally. I insist on your immediate return from the first port of call."

At the same time Noonan sent a subpena to Federal authorities at Cristobal, Canal Zone, to serve on the Judge when he touches his first port of call.

Judge Thomas wirelessed the Associated Press he would return from Cristobal on the first available ship "if Mr. Noonan so advises."

"No subpena at Cristobal is necessary," he said.

His radiogram also said:

"This is third winter trip to Panama following two serious operations. Reservations were negotiated over six weeks ago. Had no notice, no knowledge about subpena. Will respond without it. It was physically impossible to leave ship last night. Wired Mr. Noonan accordingly and that our reservations return us March 6. Will this be satisfactory?"

John J. Dowling, Assistant United States Attorney, said he had sent Federal agents to Connecticut to subpena the personal business records of Thomas, including bank account transcripts, bank books and duplicate income tax returns.

Dowling said he was interviewing executives of concerns in which Manton had a financial interest and that a subpena had been issued for Manton himself to appear before the grand jury Monday after his resignation becomes effective.

Asked whether more Federal Judges were being investigated under an order issued by Attorney-General Frank Murphy a week ago, Noonan said, "that's Government business."

"That's Government Business."

Dowling, who was assigned to the Manton case, said, "A lot of interesting information is being developed. There is no telling where it will end."

Thomas last December appointed two receivers for McKesson & Robbins, Inc., following a receivership action which was later dismissed. That action began the series of developments which led to the many-sided investigations into the drug corporation's affairs.

Before his appointment to the bench by President Wilson in 1913, Thomas for 11 years was secretary and treasurer of the Democratic State Central Committee. He was one-time executive secretary to Democratic Gov. Simeon E. Baldwin. In 1899 he was a member of the General Assembly.

IOWA LEGISLATORS SPEND A NIGHT IN PRISON AND LIKE IT

23 Get Thrill Out of Inspection Junket; Four Sleep in Death Row.

By the Associated Press.

FORT MADISON, Ia., Feb. 4. — Twenty-three Iowa Legislators on an inspection junket chose to sleep behind the bars of Iowa State prison here last night.

Four of them slept in death row, where condemned murderers await execution.

"It was a lot more quiet than the hotel (where he stays in Des Moines)," said Representative J. F. Miller of Humboldt, one of those who spent the night in death cell block. "Of course we got a thrill out of it—that's what we did it for."

The four slept in cells next to that of Walter Rhodes, convicted Iowa City wife-murderer, whose execution was stayed last year when the Supreme Court granted him a new trial.

"They locked us in good and tight—we couldn't have got out if we wanted to. They turned the lights off promptly at 10 o'clock, and we couldn't turn 'em back on, either," Miller said. "The bed was nice and soft, and I don't think any of us had any trouble getting to sleep. I slept fine."

BINGO BARRED, TRENTON (N. J.) CATHOLIC SCHOOLS MAY CLOSE

City Asked to Pay for Education of More Than 7500 Children Next Term.

By the Associated Press.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 4.—A recentlyen forced bar on bingo played a part today in the threatened closing of Trenton's several Catholic schools.

Declaring that parochial schools might not reopen next fall "due to lack of finances," Catholic clergymen petitioned the city Board of Education to make provision in its 1939-40 budget for the education of more than 7500 Catholic children. The request came immediately after an order by Mercer County Prosecutor Andrew J. Duch barring bingo games "henceforth."

"Financial condition of several parishes has reached such a state that something must be done," the school board was told in a letter from Frank I. Casey, counsel for the Catholic pastors. "The request is not definitely linked to the bingo situation, but it is admitted that the bar on bingo has added materially to the extreme condition."

MEXICAN MOB LYNCHES THREE ACCUSED OF SEVEN KILLINGS

Prisoners Stabbed, Stoned and Dragged Through Streets; Police Prevent Burning of Bodies.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 4.—A mob stormed the jail today in the village of Contra Estaca, Sinaloa, and lynched three miners held for the killing of seven persons and a criminal assault on a woman last Monday.

The prisoners were stabbed and stoned to death and their bodies dragged through the streets. Police broke up an attempt to burn them in the village square.

The three, two of whom were brothers, were said to have gone on a shooting rampage Monday after committing a $20,000 peso ($4000) robbery.

ITALIAN SOLDIERS TO STAY IN SPAIN UNTIL REBELS WIN

Fascist Grand Council Says They Will Not Leave Before Struggle Ends in Franco Victory.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Feb. 5.—(Sunday.)—The Fascist grand council served notice today that Italian volunteers "will not abandon" the Spanish struggle "before it is ended, as it must end, with Franco's victory."

The council expressed "profound satisfaction" with Chancellor Hitler's Reichstag speech Monday, but refrained from disclosing Italian demands on France.

A communique issued after the meeting, which ended at 1:15 a. m. indicated Premier Mussolini did not think the moment had arrived to state Fascist demands on France, but would push on for a complete victory for the Spanish insurgents. He outlined the "general international situation" to the council, and Foreign Minister Count Ciano explained "certain particular aspects of Italy's foreign policy," it was announced.

Defense Board to Meet Tomorrow.

The Grand Council will meet again next Friday, and Italy's Supreme Defense Commission will hold its sixteenth session tomorrow in a meeting which has been scheduled since the beginning of the year. Mussolini heads the commission, which is composed of Cabinet members and high military and naval commanders.

The communique said the council approved Mussolini's comments on salient points in Ciano's report and then passed the following order:

"The Grand Council of Fascism expresses profound satisfaction for the address delivered by the Fuehrer on the sixth anniversary of his accession to power in which he reaffirmed the political, ideological and military solidarity which unites the two Fascist and National Socialist (Nazi) revolutions to the future of the two peoples."

Statement on Spain.

The council also issued this statement:

"The Grand Council of Fascism, meeting on the day in which, with the occupation of Gerona, all of Catalonia is now liberated from barbarous, Bolshevist oppression, sends its ardent greetings to the heroic Spanish warriors and (Italian) legionnaires, the solid factors in the victory, and makes known to all that the volunteer forces of Fascism will not abandon the struggle before it has ended, as it must end, with Franco's victory."

Brigadier-General Gastone Gambara, commander of the Italian forces in Spain, reported to Mussolini that Gerona was occupied by the Littorio Division of Blackshirts.

Relazioni Internationali, foreign affairs review, said the democracies must prepare to consider colonial claims of Italy and Germany by "reconciling themselves to the idea of having to transfer territory and to recognize rights." The magazine declared that France already was an aggressor against Italy by having tried to stand in her way.

Il Giornale d'Italia charged that France and Soviet Russia still were aiding the Spanish Government forces to resist the insurgents by sending in arms and munitions.

GOVERNMENT SPAIN SAID TO BE SEEKING PEACE PARLEY

Denial in London but It Is Indicated Plea Stipulates Talks Be Based on Independence, Rule People Desire, No Persecution.

BOMBINGS CONTINUE, HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE

Bank Records and Art Treasures Sent to France as Insurgents Press Smashing Drive Toward French Frontier.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—A spokesman of the Spanish Government Embassy in London acknowledged tonight that the plight of the Government was such in Catalonia that an attempt might be made to transfer the capital to Valencia, but denied any attempt to treat for peace had been made through Great Britain.

The week-end holiday made it difficult to reach British officials.

Three hours before the report of a request for negotiations was received from Perpignan, France, one source in touch with foreign affairs had insisted that he believed Britain not only had not taken any steps to act as intermediary but had not been asked to do so by the Spanish Government. He was unable, however, to shed any light on an unusual visit this evening of Sir Eric Phipps, British Ambassador to Paris, with French Foreign Minister Bonnet.

By the Associated Press.

PERPIGNAN, France, Feb. 4. — The Spanish Government was reported in reliable quarters tonight to have requested Great Britain to open secret negotiations with insurgents to end the savage two and one-half-year-old civil war.

The reported overtures contained such broad qualifications, however, as to raise the question of their success.

They were disclosed at a time when Premier Juan Negrin's Government took first steps toward abandoning all of Catalonia — Spain's northeastern corner — to insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's conquering forces in an attempt to make a last stand in the central "island" quarter of Spain, embracing Valencia and Madrid.

At Paris British Ambassador Sir Eric Phipps conferred this evening with French Foreign Minister Bonnet. It was his third visit in 24 hours and apparently was connected with the Spanish Government's reported action.

It was understood that in the request to the British Government the Spanish Government authorities stipulated that the peace talks be opened with three points enunciated by Negrin Wednesday as the background.

Government Objectives.

Then Negrin told the Cortes (Parliament) at Figueras that the Government's aims were:

1. A guarantee of independence for Spain and freedom from foreign influence;
2. A government desired by the people, as shown by plebiscite;
3. Liquidation of the war without persecution to permit all Spaniards to join in the country's reconstruction.

There was no indication at Burgos, the insurgent capital, of Franco's reaction to the reported Spanish Government's move. Some diplomats believed the insurgent leader would balk at negotiating on such a broad basis, particularly in view of his military successes.

The Spanish Government's plight in Catalonia was growing worse every hour. Franco's troops—conquerors of the important city of Gerona this morning—smashed steadily northward toward the French frontier. They were quickly cutting away the little Catalonian territory left in Government control.

The Government's temporary capital of Figueras was only 20 miles from the fighting lines tonight.

Ministers Have Left.

Negrin and his ministers had left for "somewhere in Catalonia" while minor officials crossed into France with the Government's records. One report had the Government leaders planning to fly to Valencia to set up a new capital. The Government cabinet was disclosed to have held a secret meeting at an unnamed village a few miles south of the French frontier late today.

CLARK JOINS G. O. P. IN PLEA TO UNSEAL LIPS OF SENATORS

Backs Bridges' Proposal They Be Freed of Secrecy on President's Foreign Affairs Talk.

SENTIMENT TO DROP MATTER DEVELOPING

Johnson of Colorado Says Discussion of What Was Said at White House Is "Beside Point Now."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Senator Clark (Dem.), Missouri, added his support today to a Republican demand that members of the Senate Military Committee be permitted to tell their versions of what President Roosevelt said when he discussed foreign policies with them at the White House on Tuesday.

Clark said he was in sympathy with such a proposal, made by Senator Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire, after President Roosevelt yesterday told the press things he had said—and had not said—and enunciated a four-point foreign policy.

Senator Gurney (Rep.), South Dakota, also said he was "absolutely in accord" with Bridges' demand, but Senator Johnson (Dem.), Colorado, observed that he thought the whole discussion was "beside the point now."

The President swore the committeemen to secrecy, but, as inevitably happens in Washington, varying accounts of what he said leaked out and were published.

One of these was that Mr. Roosevelt had asserted that America's frontier was the River Rhine; another, that its frontier lay in France.

The chief executive flatly branded these reports "a deliberate lie" and said that some legislators and newspaper owners were deliberately misrepresenting his viewpoint on foreign affairs.

He asserted that his foreign policy had not changed and would not be changed. This policy, he said, included opposition to entangling alliances, favored maintenance of world trade and was in sympathy with every effort to reduce armaments and for the peaceful maintenance of political, economic and social independence of nations.

Conflict of Opinion.

It was clear today that there was a conflict of opinion among some committee members as to whether this press conference statement could be reconciled with the impression they took away from Tuesday's meeting.

One Democratic member, who declined to permit his name to be used, said he could readily see how President Roosevelt might have been discussing at the conference the detailed methods by which he proposed to carry out the broad program enunciated yesterday and that some of his hearers might not have understood this.

Some of the committeemen had suggested that, to clear up the matter, a stenographic record of what the President had said be made public. They said they understood one had been made.

However, Stephen Early, White House press secretary, said today no record was kept. He added that it was contrary to White House practice to keep stenographic records of any conference of the kind.

One Republican member of the Senate committee, who also asked for anonymity, also took the view that much of what the President said Tuesday might be considered to be a frank discussion in a secret meeting of methods he proposed to use in implementing his later announced program.

He said he had reference particularly to the fourth point of the President's announced program—the peaceful maintenance of political, economic and social independence of all of the nations of the world.

Other Senators' Views.

Some sentiment appeared to be developing among committeemen, and others in the Senate, that discussion of the Tuesday conference should be dropped. Senator Johnson said he thought there was "little use wasting time."

"Irrespective of what the President said at the Tuesday meeting, and, mind you, I am not saying what he said, his foreign policy is that which he set forth yesterday. Congress must accept that and proceed under it," Johnson declared.

Senator McCarran (Dem.), Nebraska, not a committee member, issued a statement, meanwhile, in which he called the President's pronouncement "a clear and emphatic and unequivocal statement of our foreign policy."

"Some of us who urged that such a statement be made did so to allay a spirit of unrest and unhappiness that was apparently growing in the minds of the American people due to a misunderstanding of the President's attitude," McCarran said.

"The four statements of policy made by the President are each couched in such language that a schoolboy of the sixth grade could most definitely understand and repeat them. These statements are grounded in the principles of American traditions that had their foundation in the first presidency and have been emphasized ever since."

Proposed Panama Treaty.

It was disclosed, meanwhile, that the Military Committee is looking into the effect a proposed treaty with Panama would have on United States defense of the Panama Canal.

Some committee members said they gained the impression from testimony given by Gen. Malin Craig, Chief of Staff, that Army experts feared the treaty might hamper Army movements if the canal were attacked. They contended that, under terms of the treaty, the Army would be forced to obtain the consent of the Republic of Panama to operate outside the 10-mile zone.

Under present agreements, they said, the Army may move into Republic of Panama territory coincident with notification to the Panama Government that it is doing so.

Although declining to affirm or deny reports that the committee had investigated this point, Senator Clark (Missouri), said he was opposed to ratification of the treaty.

"You can't confine military operations to a 10-mile zone and defend the Canal," Clark said. "If an enemy should land to attack on the coast outside the zone, you can't wait to obtain permission to cross territory to get to him."

British Purchase Approved.

The announcement that the British Air Ministry planned to purchase 250 planes here in addition to the 400 already on order in this country was greeted with general approval by committee members.

Clark said he thought it was "perfectly all right" for England to buy these planes, as he understood that they were of a type that had been made available to the Army more than a year ago.

The Military Committee's conference with the President was arranged after Clark demanded information on the extent to which the administration had assisted a French air mission in its efforts to purchase the latest types American-made planes.

Gurney said he had no objection to the sale of planes to the British or French if it would not interfere with the production of aircraft needed by this country. He added that he thought it was not unreasonable to suppose that the British would be given the benefit of some of the later developments in planes.

The question of making public the record of the committee's investigation of the proposed sale of the planes to the French will come before the Military Committee at a meeting next week on a motion by Clark.

Gurney said Republican members intended to press again their demand that plane manufacturers be called to give expert testimony on the possibility of mass production under the armaments program. They will be asked also, he said, if foreign orders can be filled without slowing production for the United States.

BRITAIN RAISES ORDER FOR U.S. PLANES TO 650

To Buy 250 Additional Ships for $13,000,000; Prospect of Faster Deliveries.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Impressed by the prospect of faster deliveries, the British Government has asked two United States concerns already working on orders for 400 military planes to increase the number to 650.

The Air Ministry announced today that orders for the additional planes, about $13,000,000 worth in addition to the original $35,000,000, had been placed.

The new orders called for 50 general reconnaissance planes from the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation of Burbank, Cal., and 200 trainers from North American Aviation, Inc., Inglewood, Cal.

Two hundred planes had been ordered from each concern as a result of the visit of a British air mission to the United States in May last year. In announcing the original orders, the Air Ministry indicated the numbers might be increased.

Today's Air Ministry announcement said:

"In view of improved deliveries in prospect under orders for aircraft placed by the Air Ministry in the United States last year, it has been possible to negotiate an increase in contracts for delivery within the period originally contemplated."

The companies had been given one to two years to fill the orders.

(Both Britain and France, outstripped by Germany in production of fighting planes, have turned to the United States to supplement their outputs. A French mission to the United States was reported recently to be considering purchase of 250 or more American-made planes. Official sources said France already had doubled an order last year for 100 pursuit planes).

Even with Britain's comparative lag in aerial armament, its production is said to have attained a high rate of progress in recent weeks and British defenses are said to be far more effective than they were in the September crisis over Czecho-Slovakia.

ARMY PLANES 'BOMB' ICE FLOES WITH SAND IN WINTER TEST

Three Ships Perform Satisfactorily in Frigid Weather Near Duluth, Flyers Report.

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 4.—Three army planes, flying high over Lake Superior, near Duluth, bombarded ice floes in the lake today with sand-filled bombs, and returned to the Wold-Chamberlain field here. The flyers said the tests of their ships in frigid weather were satisfactory.

The 17 flyers who made the trip, nine in a four-motored Boeing flying fortress, which reached the highest altitude, six in a Douglas bomber and two in a Curtiss attack plane, said it was intensely cold at high altitudes. They conferred with Lieutenant-Colonel L. F. Stone, commander of the Selfridge Field (Mich.) squadron, making the winter tests, and other army officials on their return here.

Tomorrow the seven planes making up the winter test flight will head for Lake Huron for target practice and then return to Selfridge Field.

TVA $78,600,000 DEAL FOR PRIVATE ELECTRIC SYSTEM

Tentative Pact Made to Acquire Tennessee Power Properties of Commonwealth & Southern.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The Tennessee Valley Authority today reached a basis for agreement to acquire all Tennessee electrical properties of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation for $78,600,000. The announcement of the result of the meeting at the home of Director David Lilienthal in Norris, Tenn., was made by TVA officials in Knoxville and in New York by Wendel L. Willkie, president of Commonwealth & Southern.

Willkie, in a statement announcing the tentative agreement said: "It is hoped that all preliminary matters may be worked out, to the end that a formal agreement may be entered into the last part of next week."

Details to Be Worked Out.

Representatives of the TVA, municipalities and utility executives will meet soon to draft the formal contracts and final agreements which will be submitted to State and Federal agencies for such proceedings as may be required by statute.

Wall street sources said the price agreed on was only slightly less than the amount Willkie asked for. The TVA at first offered only $55,000,000 for the properties.

The TVA-utilities controversy has been a source of litigation, going several times as far as the United States Supreme Court, for most of six years. The final stage of the negotiations which culminated in today's agreement began last May 18 with an exchange of letters between Willkie and Lilienthal, power director of the TVA.

Points Conceded.

Local utility executives said the agreement was made possible by concessions on the part of negotiators representing the Federal administration. These include:

1. Recognition for the first time of equity or common stock value in utility systems.
2. Recognition of going business value in utility financial structures, also for the first time.
3. Recognition of investments not strictly for purchase of operating property, another precedent.

The utility receives under the arrangement about $8,000,000 in cash for the common stock of Tennessee Electric Power, all of which is owned by Commonwealth & Southern. In addition, the company receives something less than $3,000,000 in other assets applicable to the common stock, which have a book value of $17,000,000.

Paying Off the Stock.

Although all of the common stock in Tennessee Electric Power was owned by Commonwealth & Southern, a large number of private investors held bonds or preferred stock of the company. Under the arrangement, Willkie's company will pay these investors at 100 cents on the dollar in the course of the liquidation of the Tennessee Electric Power Co.

TVA will pay par value for the bonded investment of the company. Bonds will be redeemed at par under a liquidation escape clause. The indenture covering outstanding bonds would have provided from 5 to 10 points premium above par if called.

Under the agreement, preferred stockholders also will receive par for their holdings.

Commonwealth & Southern Corporation owns about $7,000,000 in bonds and about $750,000 in preferred stock, which it invested in Tennessee Electric Power and will receive the full book value of its investment.

Deal for Other Systems Next.

As soon as details of the present arrangement have been worked out, including the allocation by TVA of purchased properties to municipalities in its area, Willkie and TVA negotiators will try to work out a similar agreement covering Commonwealth & Southern Electric properties in Northern Alabama and Mississippi.

Nashville and Chattanooga are the principal cities affected by today's deal.

In attendance at the meeting in Norris today were Lilienthal, James Pope, former Senator and recently appointed chairman of the board, Director H. A. Morgan and other TVA officials including General Manager John Blandford and Counsel James Lawrence Fly.

The Wall Street traders missed a bet today as witness these prices for stock which TVA agreed to take over at par: Tennessee Electric Power first preferred closed in the New York Curb Exchange at $85.25 a share, up 25 cents from the preceding day's close.

Tennessee Electric Power 6 per cent bonds of '47 A closed in the New York Stock Exchange at $990 a $1000 bond, up $2.50 on the day. The 5s of '56 in the curb market ended at $960 a $1000 bond, off $5. They, too, under the tentative sale agreement, will be paid off at par value in liquidation, or $1000 each.

Previously, the Authority had successfully negotiated purchases from Electric Bond & Share and Associated Gas & Electric Corporation, both holding properties in Tennessee.

U. S. SELLS HITLER WAR MATERIALS, A. F. L. MAN SAYS

Matthew Woll Charges Treasury Lets Germany Get Scrap Iron, Copper and Cotton.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 4.—Matthew Woll, a vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, charged tonight that the Treasury Department was permitting Germany to obtain such war materials as cotton, copper and scrap iron from this country by dumping "unneeded harmonicas, bird cages and canaries."

He said the procedure violated President Roosevelt's foreign policy and "undoubtedly President Roosevelt is unaware of this procedure of the Secretary of the Treasury which has reacted to the great advantage of Hitlerism."

As president of America's Wage Earners' Protective Conference, composed of A. F. of L. unions, Woll repeated in a statement previous complaints by the conference that in permitting the import of German goods, the Treasury evaded imposition of contervailing duties and penalties provided by the 1930 Tariff Act and the 1921 Anti-Dumping Act.

Woll said his statement was prompted by Roosevelt's recent restatement of his foreign policies in which he declared against any entangling alliances.

The A. F. of L. vice-president said the statement was "interesting and reassuring" but the Treasury Department "seemingly is acting for the benefit of Hitler and other totalitarian states."

Woll declared "many millions of dollars" worth of cotton, copper, scrap iron, fats and oils have been delivered to Germany by American business interests since Dec. 25, 1936, at one-third above world prices.

Permitting Germany to pay for the American goods by dumping its exports in this country, Woll charged, "has resulted in the loss of millions of dollars in revenue to our Government as well as the loss of job opportunities to many thousands of American workers.

"Had our laws been properly enforced Hitler would not today be the menace he is to world peace because he would not have been provided with these millions of dollars worth of war munitions, otherwise unavailable to him."

China Buying More Munitions Than Japan, in U. S., Says Hull.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Secretary of State Hull disclosed today that the United States had sold more armaments to China than to Japan in the last year and a half. The Secretary made this known in a letter to Senator Capper (Rep.), Kansas, acknowledging the receipt of protests from constituents of Capper against the shipment of scrap iron to Japan.

Hull said shipments of war materials to the two countries had not been forbidden because the Neutrality Act had not been applied to the Far Eastern hostilities because the President had not issued a proclamation that a state of war exists between China and Japan.

He said even the application of the Neutrality Act would not permit the President to forbid the export of scrap iron which was not classified as an implement of war.

"Since July 1, 1937, the Department of State has issued licenses for the export of arms, ammunition and implements of war to China in the value of $14,358,277.30," Hull said, "and to Japan in the value of $10,922,693.08."

Senator Clark's Zeal in Seeking Facts on French Plane Deal in U. S. Due to His Isolationist Views

He Favors Revising Neutrality Law to Deprive President of All Discretionary Power Whatever.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—First, last and always Missouri's Senator Bennett Champ Clark is an isolationist. In an interview with the Post-Dispatch today he made it clear that this is the explanation of his work with the Senate munitions investigation, his fight for the Neutrality Law and now his extraordinary zeal in running down the truth about the French airplane deal.

"I was against the last war," said Senator Clark, who saw a great deal of active fightnig in France and emerged in 1918 with the rank of Colonel on the general staff to aid in founding the American Legion. "I'm going to do all I can to keep us out of another one. I don't believe one word of this talk about defending the democracies. It sounds like 1915 and 1916 all over again.

"As a matter of fact we are much farther along the road to war today than we were then. Just compare the chronology of the years preceding April of 1917 with what is happening now and it is perfectly obvious how far we have gone in the direction of war."

Three Sons Cut a Figure.

Partly, of course, Clark gets his isolationism from the Middle West, where opposition to any foreign entanglements is in the very air. Partly it is inherited from his father, the late Speaker Champ Clark, a bitter personal political opponent of Woodrow Wilson and the Wilsonian idealism. Then, too, it comes out of Clark's own war experience and the course that he has followed since Armistice day in 1918.

But it owes not a little to a deep emotional determination that his three handsome sons, and the rest of their generation, shall not have to go to war. Young Champ Clark is 15 years old, six feet one inch in height. The twins, Wilbur and Kimball, are 10. If there were no other motivation to work against war, Clark has said, the three boys, who are more or less typical of boys of their kind everywhere, would be enough.

If Europe Fights.

"Do you really believe," Senator Clark was asked, "that in the event of another general European war the United States could stay out?"

"Absolutely I do," Clark replied emphatically. "That is, of course, if we are willing to make the sacrifices. We would have to make substantial sacrifices at the start. We would have to pass up a lot of profitable war trade.

"But think of how little that means in terms of the cost of war. Think of the wartime inflation and the terrible after effects, like a person recovering from a long debauch. Think of the inroads on the democratic processes, the democratic form of government, that a war inevitably means.

"Staying out of war would involve giving up some conceptions that we have held in the past. We would have to abandon the concept of the freedom of the seas as it is laid down in international law. But it has never had any reality anyway. We fought for the freedom of the seas and in the treaties ending those wars not a single mention was made of such a doctrine. So far as the freedom of the seas is concerned we had just as much cause to go to war in 1917 against Great Britain and France as against Germany."

As to Neutrality.

Clark expects that before the present neutrality law expires the administration will try to revise it in such a way as to give the President far more discretion. Clark and other isolationists in the Senate favor taking away all discretionary power and making all provisions in the law mandatory.

"I would revise it in such a way that it would apply to undeclared wars, too," Clark said. "I think the munitions embargo should have been applied against Germany and Italy because of their purchases of supplies of munitions to be sent to Spain.

"I think it is outrageous that the law has not been applied in the war between China and Japan. Some people have assumed that the President has not invoked it because he believed that in doing so he was aiding China. It can easily be demonstrated that the truth is the exact opposite of this. Japan has been buying enormous quantities of scrap iron, oil and airplane parts in this country, while China's purchases have been comparatively negligible.

"We should have got out of China a long time ago. I am not in favor of going to war in behalf of a handful of Standard Oil employes. After all, our trade with China is only something like $250,000,000 a year and that would not finance a modern war for a week.

"The neutrality law was never intended to give the President such wide discretion. We intended to have a fact-finding board and naturally the chief executive was placed at the head of such a board. The President chose to interpret this in his own way."

Criticises Corcoran's Activities.

Referring to recent reports of how Thomas G. Corcoran and other younger "brain trusters" have taken the lead in speeding up national defense, Clark accused the administration of creating a war scare. "It is extremely dangerous," he said, "to allow such an irresponsible person, who has in the last analysis no real official position, to go on talking the way Corcoran is said to be talking about the imminence of a war in which we will necessarily be involved."

Clark would allow peacetime sales of munitions under the neutrality law but he is skeptical nevertheless of a boom in the munitions industry. Ultimately, he believes, the effect of such a boom would be harmful. The recent sale of planes to Great Britain and the proposed sale to France take planes that we need for our own defense, Clark insists.

He is critical of the war and navy heads for allowing military secrets to be sold to or exchanged with other countries. This is a common practice, he says, citing sales to Japan by the du Pont interests of secret processes for the manufacture of munitions. Such sales, according to Clark, were authorized by the War Department.

Patent Grabbed by Germany.

"The latest example of this," says Clark, "was the testimony given before the Military Affairs Committee the other day by Grant Mason of the Civil Aeronautics Authority. Mason told us about the amazing new helicopter that Germany has developed. Because of a new propeller development it can stand still in the air, move up or down or in any desired direction.

"This was developed first by an American named Le Page. The inventor sent his models and drawing to Germany with an application for a patent and he never received so much as a letter in reply. The whole thing was appropriated by the German military. Now, I understand, Le Page is trying to organize a factory to manufacture the new type of plane in this country."

Clark said that shortly he would demand an investigation into reports the War Department had allowed the British to manufacture a new American anti-aircraft fire detector. This American device, according to Clark, is so extraordinary that it automatically sights anti-aircraft guns either day or night.

The fight for neutrality—"real neutrality"—has just begun, in the opinion of this isolationist from Missouri. He is confident that there are enough votes in the Senate to retain the present law and perhaps enough to make the provision mandatory on the President. And one reason for his confidence is the fight that has been precipitated over the secrecy surrounding the French mission to purchase planes in this country.

GOEBBELS CALLS FOR 'PROOF WE GERMANS STILL HAVE HUMOR'

His Newspaper Opens Joke Contest With $40 Prize for Winner.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—Apparently fearful his recent action against entertainers for dealing flippantly with Nazidom might give the impression there is no humor in Germany, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels started a joke contest in his newspaper, Der Angriff, today.

The paper invited Germans to submit any kind of "genuine humor"—verses, jokes, funny stories—to give proof that "we still really have humor." First prize is 100 marks—about $40.

Yesterday Goebbels expelled five cabaret entertainers from the Reich's culture chamber, meaning they can no longer work in the entertainment field, because of flippancy toward the Nazis. He suggested it might improve their taste if they worked on fortifications for a while.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 4.—A Jackson County grand jury, newly instructed to ask aid of the Attorney-General or County Prosecutor, if it wished, in its investigation of "all character" of crime in Kansas City, questioned its first two witnesses today without the aid of an attorney.

Called hurriedly back into session on the strength of a State Supreme Court ruling, the jury was requested by Judge Allen C. Southern to inquire into "reports that organized gambling has been conducted by racketeers openly and notoriously, without restraint by the law enforcement agencies of Kansas City and Jackson County."

The Judge, whose grand jury call and anti-gambling drive have added ammunition to the political fued between Gov. Lloyd C. Stark and Kansas City's powerful T. J. Pendergast Democratic organization, instructed the jury also:

It should investigate "reputed violation of the State's liquor laws in this jurisdiction."

Conduct of Public Officials.

It might "inquire into the conduct of public officials of this county, or city, and if you discover sufficient evidence of violation of law on the part of any official you should not hesitate to indict."

"If you should discover that any criminal charge which has heretofore been instituted and dismissed can and should be revived and prosecuted, you may bring an indictment thereon."

It might study any evidence of "corrupt practices at elections and concerning election officials."

Specific instructions did not limit the jury's "power to investigate crimes of any character."

Judge Southern asserted that, "notwithstanding statements to the contrary," he had barred neither Attorney-General Roy McKittrick nor County Prosecutor W. W. Graves from assisting the jury.

Neither Is in Courtroom.

Neither, however, was in the courtroom, and, when the jury retired to call witnesses, it did not ask aid from any of the five Assistant County Prosecutors who had taken notes as the instructions were read.

The Judge specifically named Assistant Attorneys-General J. E. Taylor, Harry Kay and J. W. Buffington to aid the jury, but, at Jefferson City, McKittrick indicated he might name others to take their places.

Gov. Stark's charges that "unrestrained violations of law are openly and notoriously committed" in Kansas City were brought early into the instructions by Judge Southern.

He quoted also charges by Attorney-General McKittrick that State liquor law enforcement "is a mockery, a shame, a disgrace and an outrage."

Says None Can Interfere.

Judge Southern mentioned no specific case in the clause of instructions explaining the jury's right to reinstitute prosecution of any dismissed action. Observers here recalled, however, the Governor's attack on Kansas City law enforcement followed quickly the dismissal by Graves in December of a much publicized criminal charge.

While opening the way for appearance of Graves, McKittrick or their assistants before the grand jury, the Judge made it clear "neither the Circuit Court, the Prosecuting Attorney nor any other person or official can interfere with or frustrate the proceedings and deliberations." He added that jurors could "conduct your hearings in such manner as you see fit" and "may examine witnesses on your own responsibility."

Identity of the two witnesses questioned by the jury before it recessed until Monday was kept secret.

A Federal grand jury, charged by Judge Albert L. Reeves to study possible income tax charges against the "Big Man" of Kansas City gambling, recessed yesterday until Feb. 14.

Judge Southern, in his instructions, asserted there was "common knowledge" of gambling violations which existed "without restraint by the law enforcement agencies of Kansas City and Jackson County."

Aiming his principal barbs at gambling, he spoke also of "reputed violations of the State's liquor laws in this jurisdiction" and added "gentlemen, there is no limit to your investigation regardless of what its nature may be."

"Gambling a Major Industry."

Because "the spirit of gambling has been inherent in the human breast from the beginning of time," Judge Southern said, "casual technical violations of the statutes prohibiting gambling are generally condoned," but:

"When gambling becomes a major industry in a community, as commonly reported here; when it takes the funds of the working man, WPA employes, of salaried clerks and of their wives and families as generally reported, and diverts those funds from legitimate needs and businesses into vicious channels; when it deprives the participating public of the wants and necessities of life, and when the alleged racketeers are able to compromise and paralyze the agencies charged with enforcement of the law as frequently charged, then gambling so conducted becomes a menace to society."

Not only, he said, is such "tremendous scale" gambling a "matter of general knowledge" in Kansas City, but "it is commonly reported that tribute is levied upon every gambling game by powerful racketeers who, it is said, have heretofore been immune from question or persecution."

Graves, who told the Supreme Court Judge Southern had refused him permission to appear before the jury said he would make no further effort to halt that body's proceedings.

"I understand that this opinion holds that I can go before the grand jury," Graves said. "That is all I wanted."

SUIT FOR $16,526 PAID OUT ON BOND FOR BUILDING FIRM

Fidelity Company Says It Lost Amount After Kaplan-McGowan Defaulted on Contract.

Suit for $16,526 was filed in United States District Court yesterday against Nathan M. Kaplan and J. P. McGowan, officers of the Kaplan-McGowan Co., by the United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Maryland.

The Maryland company said it lost that amount in carrying out the Kaplan-McGowan company's contract to build sun rooms at the City Sanitarium after the construction company had defaulted on the contract in May, 1935. The petitioner said it had provided a performance bond of $102,459 and that the construction company and Kaplan and McGowan as individuals had agreed to hold the Maryland company harmless under the bond.

BODY OF FIRST OF 8 FIREMEN TAKEN FROM SYRACUSE RUINS

New York City Arson Experts Join Inquiry Into Cause of Office Building Fire.

By the Associated Press.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Feb. 4.—After 36 hours of digging in the ruins of a downtown office building, searchers late today began to remove the bodies of eight firemen killed yesterday when the structure collapsed after an early morning fire.

The first body to be removed was identified as that of Lieut. Albert G. Young.

Weary workers increased their efforts to clear away the mass of debris that formerly was the five-story Collins Block.

Three New York City police arson experts have joined local officials in their inquiry into the source of the fire. The officials declined to comment, declaring the cause still was "unknown."

SIGN TORN FROM CAR AFTER AUTO FATALITY

Witness Says Service Car Mark Was Removed From Machine That Hit Man.

Martin A. Federer, 9313 Sterling place, told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that the service car sign on an automobile which fatally injured a man Monday night in the 6900 block of Gravois avenue was jerked off by two service car drivers who stopped at the scene several minutes after the accident.

The man struck was Anton L. Frank, filling station attendant, who suffered a compound fracture of the right leg and a broken wrist. He died yesterday at Park Lane Memorial Hospital of a gas bacillus infection resulting from his injuries.

The police report said the driver, Edward Schwab, 3919 Blaine avenue, was "off duty and operating his car as a pleasure car." He was booked on charges of felonious wounding, driving when intoxicated, careless driving and failing to have a driver's license, then released under bond of $1500.

Frank, who was 51 years old and resided at 3837A Missouri avenue, was hit as he stood at the rear end of Federer's automobile, which had just run out of fuel, pouring gasoline into the tank. Federer's car was parked at the curb, near Frank's filling station.

When Federer came out of the filling station after calling police and an ambulance, he related, the other two service car drivers, in Schwab's machine, pulled off the sign and drove the car away. The police report said both cars were towed in. Schwab's car struck Federer's automobile, causing minor injuries to Federer's wife, who was seated in their automobile. Federer said also that Schwab's car struck a telephone pole before hitting his machine. The police report said the street was icy.

Police reported Schwab was fined $5 in February, 1937, for disregarding an electric signal and $5 in September of that year for speeding.

George Webb, 14 years old, refused permission by his father to leave his home at 1821A La Salle street, fell 25 feet to a brick sidewalk last night in attempting to leave by climbing out of a bathroom window.

He was taken to City Hospital where physicians said he probably would recover from head and internal injuries.

POLICE ARREST TEN IN 8 HANDBOOK RAIDS

Five of Those Held Are Accused of Felony and All of Misdemeanors.

City detectives raided eight handbook shops outside the downtown district yesterday afternoon and arrested 10 men, five of whom were charged with "registering and accomplishing a bet," a felony. Misdemeanor charges of gambling and vagrancy were placed against all of the 10.

At 3608 Olive street, Oscar Pfeiffer was arrested on the felony charge; at 812 North Grand boulevard, George Leebolt was taken on the same charge, and at 10 North Euclid avenue, three men were arrested and similarly charged, Albert Grodsky, Gus von Cloedt and Charles Lombardo. The five charged with a felony were also charged with misdemeanors, and a total of $2200 bond was required of each.

Those arrested on the misdemeanor charges only were:

At 420 North Vandeventer avenue, Lawrence Day; 507 North Vandeventer, Curtis Anderson; 3 South Vandeventer, Albert Brockman; 4066 Olive street, Sid Martin, and 4061 Olive, Ned Joyce. Their bonds were $1200 each.

Beginning a week ago, raids have been a daily occurrence. Yesterday's operations of the detectives were on a smaller scale than on Saturday, Jan. 28, when 32 places were visited and 101 arrests made.

GASOLINE-SELLING UNION OFFICERS TO FACE TAX INQUIRY

State Auditor Summons Three Associates in Parkalot, Inc., and Their Lawyer, Harry Cantwell.

Timothy R. Cronin, president of Parkalot, Inc., and business agent of the Service Car Drivers' Union, two other Parkalot officers and Harry J. Cantwell, their attorney, are scheduled to appear at City Hall tomorrow to explain why they have not filed individual State income tax returns in recent years, State Auditor Forrest Smith told the Post-Dispatch yesterday.

Those who have been summoned to appear before Smith's deputies at the Assessor's office with Cronin and Cantwell are Lawrence J. Catanzaro, also known as Lawrence Camie, vice-president of Parkalot, and William H. (Whitey) Schubert, secretary of the firm. Catanzaro and Schubert are union officers. The penalty for failure to file a State return is a double tax.

The State Auditor, who came to St. Louis from Jefferson City Thursday, said a search of records at City Hall Friday failed to show individual returns for the three union men and Cantwell for 1936 and 1937. Returns for 1938 are not due until March 15. M. C. Redman, general manager of Parkalot, made his individual return, and returns were filed for Parkalot, listing salaries paid to officers, Smith said.

Service Car Terminal.

Parkalot, Inc., is the busy service car terminal at Levee and Locust street, where the 425 service car drivers are required to buy their gasoline and oil, and which sells 2,800,000 gallons of gasoline a year. The service car drivers receive 1 cent a gallon off on gasoline at Parkalot, but are subject to a $5 fine, assessed through the union, for buying elsewhere. All purchases are for cash, although a driver short of change is permitted to make a trip or two until he picks up enough fares to pay his gasoline bill.

Smith declined t discuss the Parkalot returns. The Post-Dispatch has learned, however, that gross receipts for 1935 were about $300,000 and that in 1937 the gross was in excess of $450,000. The corporation received a Missouri charter in June, 1932, with $10,000 capital. The 100 shares of stock, par $100, were distributed as follows: H. J. Cantwell, 22 shares; M. C. Redman, 22 shares; W. H. Schubert, 22 shares; John J. Smith, 22 shares; Lawrence Catanzaro, 10 shares, and C. M. Burk, two shares.

Directors and Officers.

Directors and officers of Parkalot, it was stated in a recent affidavit filed at Jefferson City, are Cronin, Catanzaro, Schubert and Redman. Cronin, Cantwell and Schubert have their offices at the Parkalot terminal. Cantwell recently told a Post-Dispatch reporter that an oil company advanced $20,000 to erect the building and that Parkalot speedily took up the notes through earnings and now owns the property. The building is included in the riverfront memorial condemnation.

When the reporter inquired about the control and profits of Parkalot, Cronin described the firm as "a co-operative enterprise in which everyone around here shares." He added that by "everyone" he meant the employes of the levee terminal and of the western terminal in University City. Asked for additional details, Cronin asserted that Parkalot "is behind the service car drivers; without something solid behind them they would be unable to operate."

Cronin, who is known as "Ted," is paid salaries by the Teamsters' Joint Council, Milk Wagon Drivers' Local 603, Service Car Drivers' Local 408 and Parkalot. He also has an income from insurance. He is 34 years old and lives at 6201 Itaska street, in St. Louis Hills.

Catanzaro, who is business agent of the material and oil truck drivers' union, is a leader in the affairs of the 15 affiliated teamsters' and chauffeurs' unions here. His sources of income include the Teamsters' Joint Council and the Milk Wagon Drivers' Union, besides his salary from Parkalot. Catanzaro lives at 6200 Loran avenue, three blocks from Cronin's residence.

Unions Furnish Autos.

Schubert is secretary of the Service Car Drivers' Union and, like Cronin, has been a leader of the organization 10 years. Each draws a salary of $50 a week from the union, and $55 a month for automobile expenses. Cronin told the reporter he owned his automobile, which he said was unusual for a union business agent as A. F. of L. unions usually furnish cars. There are 16 service car lines, each under the supervision of one or more starters.

Service car drivers pay a $50 initiation fee on entering the union, and thereafter a fixed assessment of $32 a month. Of this levy, the officers say, $16 is for personal injury liability insurance, $4.50 for property damage liability insurance, $3 union dues, $7 for pay of starters and supervisors and $1.50 for "good will advertising."

Cantwell, whose handsomely furnished offices at the terminal are denoted as "Legal and Claim Department," is a former treasurer of the Democratic City Central Committee and was an ally of Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann. He is now against the city administration and above his desk is a picture of Mayor Dickmann, lettered "Pax vobiscum"—Latin for "Peace be with you."

LAST OF SAN QUENTIN CONVICTS CONCLUDE THEIR HUNGER STRIKE

133 Go Off Diet of Bread and Water; Prison Routine Back to Normal.

By the Associated Press.

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., Feb. 4.—The last 133 convict hunger strikers went off their diet of bread and water today to accept a prison menu of beef stew. They had demanded "more variety."

Warden Court Smith announced that the refusal to work or eat, which three days ago involved nearly 4000 of the 5263 inmates, was at an end and that the prison routine was back to normal.

Prison officials said five or six convicts remained in solitary because their screams disturbed others.

Announcement that the strike was over came while Gov. Culbert L. Olson was considering a demand, telegraphed from San Francisco by the Marine Firemen's Union, for a "sweeping investigation" of prison conditions.

THREE SHOT TO DEATH AT APARTMENT HOUSE

Man Fires at Child; Hits Policeman and Bystander, Dies in Barricade.

By the Associated Press.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Three persons were shot to death here tonight near the downtown business section. The dead: Patrolman George Weslar, 48 years old; Paul Charkoski, 40, and John Andrew Griffin, 21.

Mayor Charles Kress, who led policemen and firemen to an apartment house, said Charkowski had entered the apartment of Sophia Vesneski, where he had been living, and fired at the woman's 14-year-old daughter, Irene, who ran down steps into the street screaming. Her shouts were heard by Patrolman Weslar, off duty, who investigated and was met by shots from Charkoski's gun and killed. A bullet struck Griffin, a bystander, who died in Binghampton Hospital. Charkoski is thought to have mistaken Irene for her mother. Mrs. Vesneski, a widow, is said to have told Charkoski to stay away, as she meant to marry someone else.

Charkoski returned to the apartment and barricaded himself. Firemen and police were summoned and Charkoski continued shooting. Police returned the fire while firemen used tear-gas. After 25 minutes Charkoski stopped shooting. He was found dead of a bullet wound.

The Mayor said Irene's 9-year-old brother, Joseph, hid behind a door during the shooting and was nearly overcome by the tear gas.

Physicians said the boy would recover.

Mrs. Vesniski was not at the apartment at the time of the shooting. Mayor Kress said Charkoski was sentenced a few weeks ago to the Onondaga County penitentiary on a third degree assault charge lodged by Mrs. Vesniski. He was freed on an appeal.

TRUCK DRIVER GETS 90 DAYS ON INTOXICATION CHARGE

Policemen Testified They Found Vehicle of Fred Reid Zig-Zagging in Roadway.

Fred Reid, 47 years old, a chauffeur, 5379 St. Louis avenue, was found guilty of driving an automobile while intoxicated by Judge Frank E. Mathews in police court yesterday and sentenced to 90 days in the Workhouse.

Police who noted Reid's truck in the vicinity of Arlington and Easton avenue testified he was zigzagging in the roadway. On questioning him, they said, his breath smelled of liquor, his gait was unsteady and his speech incoherent. He denied intoxication, but admitted having two small drinks of whisky, which he said he took earlier in the evening with medicine for a nervous ailment. He will appeal.

Mrs. Mae Hosford, a widow, ended her life last night with gas in the kitchen of her home, 3855A Labadie avenue. She was found unconscious near the stove with a blanket over her head by a daughter, Mrs. Walter Goldkuhl.

An unsigned note left nearby said: "Please forgive me for I can't stand it any longer." Mrs. Hosford, 56 years old, lived with two sons, Leslie and Paul Hosford.

VICE DETECTIVE HELD, ACCUSED OF EXTORTION

The Rev. Mrs. Ellis Denies Having Him Ask Resort Operator for $200.

A private detective working for the Rev. Mary Ellis, vice crusader, was arrested early yesterday by detectives, who said he had attempted to extort $200 from Irene Huedde in her apartment at 4398A Olive street. Prosecuting Attorney James P. Finnegan ordered him held under $1000 bail pending investigation.

Special Officer Frank Mitchell, hidden in the apartment, said the private detective told the woman that Mrs. Ellis would abandon plans for turning over to Attorney-General McKittrick information about her place if she would pay $200. Mitchell quoted the private detective as saying Mrs. Ellis, who has been active in St. Louis in recent months, had become discouraged and needed funds to pay her bills before leaving the city.

A written statement corroborating Mitchell's report of the conversation was obtained from the private detective by police.

The Rev. Mrs. Ellis told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the private detective had called her last Monday, saying he had some information about vice in which she would be interested. She said she met him Thursday at Hotel Jefferson, and that he agreed to make an investigation of the resorts without compensation.

She denied his statement that she had told him to obtain money at the Olive street apartment and said she had no intention of leaving St. Louis, since her work was "still going on."

Special Officer Mitchell was hidden in the apartment after the woman reported to police that the private detective had called Wednesday night and that she had told him to return Friday night to discuss his terms.

The Rev. Mrs. Ellis announced yesterday a mass meeting to discuss Thomas Hart Benton's nude, "Susanna and the Elders," now on exhibition at the City Art Museum, would be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Fourth Baptist Church, 1301 Sullivan avenue.

The Rev. Mrs. Ellis saw the picture Friday and termed it "lewd, immoral, obscene, lascivious, degrading, an insult to womanhood and the lowest expression of pure filth." She said a petition to have it removed would be circulated at the meeting and taken to the Art Museum board of control.

Government Spain Said To Be Seeking Peace Parley

ing here frankly admitted the insurgent advance had turned into a rout for their troops.

They said that only before Seo de Urgel, near the Andorran frontier, was there any "real resistance."

Insurgent warplanes flew at will over northern Catalonia, bombing and machine-gunning the few remaining Government - controlled towns. Roads leading into France were jammed with straggling women, children and old men, hungry and seeking haven.

It was believed that French Senator Leon Berard, who was sent to Burgos by his Government Thursday on an "unofficial" mission, might take part in presenting the Spanish Government's case to insurgent authorities.

French officials were worried by the steady retreat of the Spanish Government's army of approximately 200,000 men toward the French frontier. The Paris Government had suggested an armistice to the insurgents, but it was learned that Franco had turned it down.

It was then that the Negrin Government approached the British with peace negotiations, high sources said.

Mass Surrender Suggested.

Independently of British negotiations, it was learned that Berard had been charged with attempting to arrange the mass surrender of the Government's Catalonian army.

French officials, fearing a mass crossing of their frontier by retreating Government troops, perhaps under gunfire, want Franco publicly to proclaim a mass pardon for Government soldiers.

The French hoped that the Government's fighters, if sure of escaping reprisals, would surrender to insurgents instead of storming the French border.

To cap a day full of developments it was disclosed in Paris that Berard, in return for favorable insurgent action, had been instructed to propose a permanent French mission to Burgos.

Working to cut down Italian and German influence with Franco, such a French mission would be in addition to the French Embassy with the Spanish Government.

To placate Leftist parties and political animosity, the French Government agreed to keep an embassy with Negrin "as long as the war lasts."

Airplanes Await Officials.

Airplanes were reported awaiting Premier Negrin and his ministers at Catalonian airports near the French border. It was believed the top-ranking officials would go to Valencia by air when they decide residence is no longer possible in Catalonia.

Spanish Government officials intimated attempts were being made to transfer officers and non-commissioned officers from Catalonia to Central and Southeastern Spain, where the Government still holds about one-fourth of the country. Whether this military movement had been started was not learned.

The insurgents' fast advance along the highway between Gerona and Figueras promised few days of grace for the Government before the last bit of Catalonia comes under Franco's red and gold banners.

Figueras Bombed Again.

Figueras was bombarded again late today by a squadron of seven planes. First estimates were that 20 were killed and many wounded, but close estimates were considered impossible to make.

Three other insurgent planes, which bombed the Spanish towns of Agullana and Darnius, near the frontier, swooped over the French village of Las Illas but turned back when French anti-aircraft guns opened fire.

Two hours later three insurgent bombers flew over French territory near Cerbere but swung back over Port Bou, on the Mediterranean, just across the frontier in Spain, when they were caught in a criss-cross of French Army searchlights and a warning burst of anti-aircraft fire. These planes bombed the outskirts of Port Bou and the refugee-filled coast road at San Miguel de Culbera. Reports were lacking on the number of casualties resulting from their raid.

An official Government estimate placed casualties in yesterday's bombardment of Figueras at 300 dead and 800 wounded.

Gerona Resistance Crushed.

Shortly before midnight, the insurgent high command announced that a Morrocan Army corps operating along the coast had arrived at the outskirts of the Port of Palamos, 58 miles northeast of Barcelona.

Insurgent Generals Juan Yague and Jose Solchaga said their troops had crushed Government resistance in Gerona, only 36 miles by road from the French frontier, and had driven within 20 miles of Figueras without taking time for rest. Figueras is 22 miles north of Gerona.

At a crossroads on the main highway beyond Gerona, the insurgent forces maneuvered to split the retreating Government army. One column moved rapidly north toward Figureas and the other branched east toward the port of Palamos on the Mediterranean.

With the capture of Gerona, Franco's troops had extended their Catalonian conquest more than 60 miles at the farthest points since their capture of Barcelona 10 days ago.

Government leaders, with their backs to the wall, were reported to be taking steps to establish administrative departments in Pyrenees Mountain villages near the French border to escape insurgent bombers and the threatened loss of Figueras.

Sandwiched among vehicles of all sorts carrying refugees, 12 vans crossed into France at Le Perthus with the records and safety deposit boxes from the Bank of Spain. These trucks were met at Le Boulou by a representative of the Bank of France.

Later, more than 50 other trucks rumbled through Le Perthus carrying the rarest paintings of the Prado, Madrid's art museum, among other art treasures.

They also were taken to Le Boulou, where they were placed in sealed railroad cars. French mobile guards were assigned to each car to accompany the train to the Swiss border. The cars will be kept in Geneva until the end of the civil war and then be returned to Spain.

Sert in Charge of Paintings.

Jose Maria Sert, Spanish mural painter who supervised the shipment of the paintings, said they would be returned to Spain "as soon as there is a stable government no matter what its political tendency."

Among the treasures were canvasses by Rubens and Rembrandt as well as paintings by such Spanish masters as Velasquez, Murillo, Goya and El Greco.

Gerona, which was captured by the French in the Napoleonic wars 130 years ago, was said to have appeared virtually deserted when the insurgent advance guards entered the narrow, winding streets.

Thousands of inhabitants, however, were reported to have swarmed from subterranean air raid shelters and from the open fields to greet the conquerors.

French border authorities estimated that 60,000 non-combatants had fled from Gerona yesterday. Many of them presumably had reached Figueras before the heavy insurgent air raids there.

Insurgents at Barcelona said Franco's Navarrese and legionnaires occupied Gerona about mid-morning after a battle of several hours.

In Rome, Brigadier-General Gastone Gambara, commander of Italian troops in Spain, was said to have informed Premier Mussolini that Blackshirts of the Italian Littorio division occupied the city.

With Franco poised now for the knockout blow in the campaign for Northeastern Spain he launched last Dec. 23, his troops were stretched across a front of about 120 miles from the coast at San Feliu de Guixols almost to the Spanish-Andorran frontier.

His line extended northwest from San Feliu de Guixols to a point about two and one-half miles north of Gerona, dipped southwest to a point just above Vich, and swung north beyond Berga through Arfa, only four miles from Seo de Urgel, an important Government town five miles from the Andorra line.

Port of Gandia, Heavily Damaged by Rebel Bombs.

MADRID, Feb. 5. (Sunday) — Spanish insurgent war planes bombed the port of Gandia shortly before midnight last night, causing extensive damage.

The number of casualties was not known.

TOKYO SILENT ON FATE OF MEN ABOARD SUNKEN SUBMARINE

Failure to Rescue Indicated; Crew of 40 Entombed Since Thursday.

TOKYO, Feb. 4.—The Admiralty still was silent today on the fate of the Japanese first-class submarine I-63, indicating that efforts to rescue its crew of about 40, entombed at the bottom of the inland sea for more than 72 hours, had not yet been successful.

The I-63 sank Thursday in the strait between Kyushu and Shikoku islands after a collission with another submarine during maneuvers.

The Admiralty had promised to give out details of the disaster after the outcome of rescue efforts was known.

NAZI PRESS KEEPS UP ATTACK ON ROOSEVELT

Italian Papers Question Sincerity of Denial He Said U. S. Frontier is in France.

BY the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—The controlled German press kept up tonight its campaign against President Roosevelt. The gist of newspaper comment was that the President—despite his denials of statements attributed to him on foreign policy—was continuing an anti-German, anti-Italian course.

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels' newspaper Der Angriff said "Roosevelt in nowise took back what he said about America's readiness to throw her instruments of force into the scales in favor of Britain and France against the totalitarian states in event of war."

The newspaper Nachtausgabe headlined its comment on the President's denial, "Roosevelt rejoinder proves his action of incitation." An accompanying editorial said, "Roosevelt certainly will not yield an inch as regards the general line of his policy nor the intentions he harbors."

Lokalanzeiger asserted that "Washington these days is experiencing one surprise after another, and the whole thing is one huge scandal."

Deutsche Allegemeine Zeitung said: "A clarification is necessary if unrest emanating from America and engendered through the entire world is to be quieted. . . . The President of the United tSates could not have rendered a greater service to the red dictator in Moscow than he did."

Italian Press Questions Sincerity of Roosevelt's Denial.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Feb. 4.—The controlled Italian press brushed aside today President Roosevelt's denial of reports he had said America's frontier was on the Rhine or in France by questioning its sincerity.

Newspapers called the denial tardy and took the view that it was prompted by an uproar of criticism in the United States which they said the President now was attempting to quell for political reasons.

Fascist commentators asserted that, whether Roosevelt did or did not tell the Senate Military Affairs Committee on Tuesday that the American frontier lay some place in Europe, such a view was in line with his policies—which were regarded here as anti-Fascist. Continuation of such policies, they said, would mean that Italy, Germany and Japan would have to take "defense measures," repeating that their frontier would be the Panama Canal.

There was no indication when Italy would reply to yesterday's request by United States Ambassador William Phillips for an explanation of bitter, personal attacks in the press against President Rosevelt.

La Tribuna asked whether the American executive really had been misrepresented or whether "the reaction was so strong as to compel him to turn about."

Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano's newspaper, Il Telegrafo of Leghorn, said of the statements first attributed to Roosevelt: "The really serious aspect of this episode which should make the President ponder" was that everybody—in Paris, London, Rome and Berlin—could "easily believe President Roosevelt had so spoken."

Il Giornale d'Italia, in commenting on Roosevelt's disavowal, asserted it was "evident that President Roosevelt heard a stormy wave of American reaction against his terrorist intervention and sought to make repairs by this denial." It added that he still had not disavowed "other affirmations already made against Italy, Germany and Japan."

Press Comment on Roosevelt's Statement on Foreign Policy

Lie Manufacturer Should Be Identified, Says One — Attack on Newspaper Owners Resented.

COMMENT by leading newspapers on the foreign policy statement made by President Roosevelt at Friday's press conference follows:

Independent Democratic

New York World-Telegram: In his running strafe on the press President Roosevelt takes pains to put the blame on the owners. His attitude toward the Washington correspondents in his White House conferences is one of "you boys are all right, but those who own the papers you work for are wicked," the point seeming to be that if some way could be devised to eliminate ownership everything would be lovely. Anyway, Mr. Roosevelt got mad to the name calling stage—and talked rather tall and tactlessly about lies and boobs, and once again he blamed the owners.

But the owners didn't cover the story. They weren't there. They might have been dining on rich foods and gravies in their well-stocked clubs—although advertising lineage is off something terrible, but anyway they weren't there.

Far be it from us to weep unduly over the stray injustices that may fall to the lot of boss. But, as they say in political circles, "to keep the record straight," here's one time where the owner can prove an alibi. He just naturally wasn't on the job.

Baltimore Sun: Mr. Roosevelt's statement of yesterday, including the four points which he listed as comprising our whole foreign policy, has little or no application to the present situation. The four points throw no light on the reasons which lie behind Mr. Roosevelt's great armament program.

As for the temper which the President showed yesterday, it is not easily explained. His intimation that the politicians and the newspapers are endeavoring in concert to misrepresent the facts is clearly not justified by the record. Such outbursts should not becloud the issue. Mr. Roosevelt should forget his temper. Instead of taking refuge in abusive language, he should disclose as temperately and as completely as he can the significance of the policy which he is seeking to develop.

Memphis Commercial Appeal: When public reaction is unfavorable and editorial opinion of leading newspapers is hostile to what is understood to be the administration's policy, President Roosevelt has a way of entertaining correspondents at press conferences with description of the venality of publishers and editorial writers. Reporters whose stories are the basis of editorial opinion are carefully set apart by the President as paragons of virtue in contrast with their corrupt employers.

If President Roosevelt were a designing person some might suspect that he cares not who writes the editorials if he can influence the news.

Independent

Chicago Daily Times: "The insinuations and innuendos which have been circulated as fact deserve the short, ugly word Mr. Roosevelt used. . . . This is not to say that any President's approach to foreign problems is not subject to criticism, including President Roosevelt's. It is to say, however, that any attempt to discredit the President by deliberate misrepresentation of the facts, at the cost of weakening our national solidarity against potential enemies, is a betrayal of the people.

Newark Ledger: "All (newspapers) . . . are under a dark cloud as the result of the President's accusations in all probability, only a few, if any, are guilty and the vast majority of the nation's 2000 newspaper owners are not even suspected by the President of having manufactured a deliberate lie. In fairness to them and as a guide to the reading public, as well as in punishment to the guilty, the lie manufacturers should be identified. If the President is unable or unwilling to do so, Congress should name an investigating committee to do the job. It is high time that the charges and insinuations reflecting upon the patriotism of the press be sifted for the facts."

Independent Republican

New York Herald Tribune: "If ever a President stumbled into a ditch of his own digging, it is Mr. Roosevelt attempting to rise and extract himself from the muddle of his own secrecy. There will be scant sympathy for him in his plight. But there can and must be grave concern over the consequences to the country, now as thoroughly confused as to the nation's foreign policy as it well could be."

Kansas City Star: "It was natural that the President should desire to give the committee an informal and confidential picture of the international situation as he saw it. But the outcome has shown the dangers of this method of dealing with important questions. The repercussions have been unfortunate both abroad and at home. Abroad the reports may have given encouragement to the French and British Governments to expect more definite backing from the United States than the President and Congress intend. At home the reports necessarily have caused speculation as to how far the President intends to commit the United States to foreign entanglements."

BOMB TEARS WALL OF PRISON WHERE IRISH ARE HELD

Parliament Closed to Public, First Time Since War — Plot to Blow Up Palaces Reported.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The Houses of Parliament were closed to the public today for the first time since the World War, as a precaution against bombings attributed to the outlawed Irish Republican army.

Hundreds of visitors were turned away from the houses of Parliament.

A bomb exploded late tonight against the wall of Walton Prison at Liverpool, where several persons were being held in connection with the wave of terrorism.

Bricks were torn from the wall, but the blast failed to make an opening. No one was injured.

Plot Against Palaces Reported.

The Sunday Dispatch reported raids in Belfast uncovered plans to blow up Buckingham Palace, Windsor Castle, the House of Commons and the Bank of England.

The newspaper's report, which lacked official confirmation, said the raids also disclosed a plot to assassinate British politicians and high police officials.

The seized documents were sent by plane to London, the newspaper said, and British Home Office officials conferred with Scotland Yard on protective measures.

King George VI and Queen Elizabeth were at the Royal Lodge at Windsor, which was kept under a special watch.

Fianna Fail (Government party) Clubs throughout County Donegal, Ireland, asked Prime Minister de Valera to send Ireland's army to the Northern Ireland border "as a gesture of encouragement to our fellow Nationalists on the other side."

They said the show of military strength should be made as a protest against the arming of special constabulary in Northern Ireland.

Police Given Arms in Bristol.

Revolvers were issued to Bristol police after receipt of a threat to blow up big gasoline storage tanks in that important West coast port. Guards patrolled the docks.

Officials in Belfast kept known members of the Irish Republican party under observation and inspected arriving and departing travelers.

Police leaves in London were canceled, keeping nearly 10,000 men on duty.

The governments of Great Britain, Ireland and Northern Ireland were co-operating in a large scale campaign to stamp out the outrages, which began Jan. 16 with a series of eight explosions in England and Northern Ireland. Explosions occurred yesterday in two of London's subway centers, in which seven persons were injured.

Sir Thomas Moore, a Conservative member of the House of Commons, announced he would propose legislation for inflicting corporal punishment on persons convicted of bombing charges.

Scotland Yard Gates Locked.

Scotland Yard took the usual precaution for itself of locking all gates but one leading to the famous police center. The one left open was guarded by a constable who inspected all callers.

Four men were held in London, Manchester and Liverpool on charges connected with bombings. Police discovered seven hand grenades and 11 rounds of ammunition in the garden of a Londoner, against whom charges were made in the Bow Street Court, itself heavily guarded.

An oath-bound international Irish secret society known as the Irish Republican Brotherhood was believed by some investigators to be the instigator of the terrorism.

The brotherhood was formed in 1853 to unite Irishmen throughout the world in a scheme to establish an independent Irish republic completely separated from Great Britain.

The Irish Republican Army was described as the brotherhood's active weapon. It has an estimated 3000 members in England. Its strength in Ireland was not known.

HITLER FIRES THREE MORE DIRECTORS OF REICHSBANK

Hjalmar Schacht's Right-Hand Man Among Those to Follow Him Out in Nazi Shakeup.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—Hitler, continuing his cleanup operation to bring the Reichsbank fully in line with Nazi objectives, removed three more members of the bank's directorate today.

The cleanup started Jan. 20 with the removal of the Reichsbank's president, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht. On the following day two directors were ousted.

Those discharged to day were Karl Blessing, Wilhelm Vocke and Carl Erhardt. They were replaced by Kurt Lange, Friedrich Wilhelm and Walter Bayrhoffere of the Economics Ministry, the Reichsbank Ministry and the Finance Ministry respectively.

Blessing was known as Schacht's right-hand man and was believed to have been slated by Schacht as his successor.

FOUR-DAY FIGHT BY MANCHOUKUO, SOVIET FORCES

Government of State Dominated by Japanese Reports Clashes Have Been Almost Continuous.

By the Associated Press.

TOKYO, Feb. 4.—The Government of Japanese-dominated Manchoukuo today reported four days of almost continuous fighting between Soviet Russian forces and Manchoukuo guards but did not state the outcome or number of casualties.

Communiques issued at Hsinking, Manchoukuo capital, indicated that Russian assaults had been thrown back. While they referred to the defending forces as Manchoukuo guards, it was believed here that Japanese regulars were involved.

It is known that some of Japan's finest troops have been stationed along the Manchoukuo-Siberian border instead of fighting in China.

Apparently these were the most serious border hostilities since last July and August when Japanese and Russian units battled near the intersection of Siberia, Manchoukuo and Korea.

The Manchoukuo Government charged Soviet cavalrymen attacked a Manchoukuo border garrison Tuesday morning but were beaten back. Four other attacks followed on that day.

Minor skirmishing and maneuvering ensued, a communique from Hsingking said, until the Russians attacked the same border point three times Friday afternoon and evening.

The scene of the fighting was given as Mengoskili, an isolated region 60 miles northeast of Manchuli. Manchoukuo has protested to Russia.

On Wednesday the Russian Government reported a new clash in which it said 18 Japanese and Manchuokuo soldiers attempted on Tuesday to take a Soviet island in the Argun River, Manchoukuo's northwestern boundary with Russia.

The scene of the present hostilities is all the way across Manchoukuo from Changkufeng Hill, over which the border fighting raged in July and August.

Manchoukuo communiques did not give the number of troops involved in this week's clashes or list casualties.

Domei, Japanese news agency, said informed sources in Hsinking interpreted the reported Russian assault as an effort to force Japan to retreat from its position on renewal by the Moscow Government of permission for Japanese to fish in Soviet territorial waters.

Lieutenant-General Seishiro Itagaki, War Minister and president of the Manchurian Affairs Bureau, has told the Japanese Parliament why Manchoukuo recently suspended the customary annual contribution to the joint Japan-Manchoukuo defense fund.

He said Manchoukuo was devoting about $10,000,000 annually to construction of air fields and highways along the border.

SENATORS POLLED CONCERNING WHAT PRESIDENT SAID

nesota—His secretary reports he has refused even to be questioned on the secret meeting.

Hill (Dem.), of Alabama—"Immediately after the meeting at the White House I left for another appointment and I never heard anyone talk about it. I heard no one say anything like that at any time."

Clark (Dem.), of Missouri — "I have refused from the very beginning to discuss with anyone what went on at the meeting. I took special precautions, because of my stand on this whole thing, to make sure that no one would suspect I had talked to reporters about what the President had said. Of course, as is well known, I am opposed to all secret hearings and executive sessions."

Downey (Dem.), of California—"The President informed us that it was a closed executive session and I never have said anything about what transpired and I shall say nothing."

Austin (Rep.), of Vermont — "I don't want to get into a controversy over a question of veracity with the President of the United States so I will make no comment. However, it is my impression that a stenographer was present and surely the record can speak for itself."

Against Secret Meetings.

Bridges (Rep.) of New Hampshire—"I believe that if the President can tell his version of what happened at the meeting, then we are also privileged to do so. I have said nothing about what took place because we were under a pledge of secrecy. I am opposed to such secret meetings in the future."

Gurney (Rep.) of South Dakota—"I gave my word that I would say nothing at all about it and I expect to keep that word."

Holman (Rep.) of Oregon—"I was present at the meetting, I paid the closest attention to what the President said but I heard nothing such as has been reported in the press. I did not hear the President make the reported remark. I thought we were there with only one motive and that was to discover what was best for the American people."

Certainly this is not the last that will be heard of the now famous conference. It may well be the rallying point for a bitter and interminable debate on foreign affairs such as stalemated Woodrow Wilson's last administration.

HUNGARY UNDER MARTIAL LAW TO STOP TERRORISTS

Special Courts Empowered to Impose Hanging Within 48 Hours After Arrest in Some Cases.

BY the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, Feb. 4.—The Government clamped martial law on Hungary tonight to combat political violence, and empowered special courts to impose the death penalty by hanging within 48 hours after arrest in certain cases.

This action, taken by the Cabinet at an emergency session, was prompted by a bomb explosion last night in Budapest's largest synagogue which caused injury of about 20 persons.

The Cabinet also suppressed for two months the Nazi newspaper Magyarsag, personal organ of Ferenc Szalasi, jailed Nazi leader, who was sentenced last July to three years' imprisonment for "incitement." The Governemnt made no comment on the suppression. The Magyarsag had been clamoring for stern anti-Semitic laws.

The Government also suspended for one month the newspaper Nyolc Orai Ujsag, organ of former Premier Count Stefan Bethlen, which had been mildly critical of Premier Bela Imredi's regime.

The declaration of martial law was to be published tomorrow in the official gazette.

The chief provision of the decree was that persons possessing explosives, bombs or firearms with intent to make an assault on public order or who are caught while committing acts of violence are to be tried by a special tribunal, which may make only one of two decisions—innocent or guilty and subject to the death penalty within 24 hours. Trial must take place within 24 hours after arrest.

It was the first martial law in Hungary since 1931.

Calls Her Marriage an Accident.

Mrs. Anita Johnson filed suit in Circuit Court yesterday to annul her marriage to Lee Roy Johnson of East St. Louis in St. Charles on Oct. 13, 1937. She alleged the marriage was the result of "fraud, accident, mistake, intimidation and coercion," adding that Johnson was unable to support her and that the home he had promised was "merely a figment of his imagination." He entered his appearance and made a general denial.

ELLSWORTH CLAIMS 430,000 SQ. MILES OF ANTARCTIC FOR U. S.

Explorer Reaches Hobart, Tasmania; to Sail for Home March 4.

By the Associated Press.

HOBART, Tasmania, Feb. 4.—Lincoln Elssworth laid claim to 430,000 square miles of South Polar territory for the United States today when he returned from an Aantarctic expedition aboard his base ship Wyatt Earp.

Ellsworth's new claim expanded the territory he previously had claimed.

when he returned from an Antarctic last month he said he was claiming "80,000 square miles of country never seen before by the human eye" as the result of his aerial exploration.

The explorer, whose expedition started last autumn, plans to sail for the United States March 4.

BETTER X-RAY FACILITIES URGED TO CURB TUBERCULOSIS

Dr. P. P. Jacobs Says 44.7 Per Cent of Cases Here Are Reported Too Late.

Expanded clinical facilities, providing free or low-cost X-ray examinations in all sections of the city, were advocated as essential to early diagnosis of tuberculosis in a report by Dr. Philip P. Jacobs, extension director of the National Tuberculosis Association, made public today by the Tuberculosis and Health Society.

Many of the cases of tuberculosis now discovered in the clinics, the report stated, are in relatively advanced stages. Nearly half the recorded cases in the city, or 44.7 per cent, have been reported after the patients died or within six months of death.

When REM finds a new user, it usually makes an enthusiastic friend! REM is just that good! REM is no ordinary cough syrup -- there's nothing exactly like it! There are definite reasons why it is so very effective:

(1) REM is made specifically for coughs resulting from colds.

(2) REM is a real cough medicine, not just a "tickle stopper."

(3) REM is thorough, because it works two ways . . . not only in the throat, but also systemically. That's what makes it so very much more effective.

So if you have a cough resulting from a cold, don't fool around with it! Go after it with a real cough medicine like REM.

RAY B. LUCAS THIRD PLAINTIFF IN CONTINENTAL LIFE SUIT

New State Superintendent of Insurance Succeeds Late George A. S. Robertson.

Ray B. Lucas, State Superintendent of Insurance, was authorized yesterday by Circuit Judge Harry F. Russell to succeed George A. S. Robertson, Insurance Superintendent, who died last month, as plaintiff in the liquidation suit against the old Continental Life Insurance Co. Robertson had succeeded R. Emmet O'Malley, former Insurance Superintendent, original plaintiff, in October, 1937, and received from the latter a fund of $225,000 reserved to defray expenses of liquidation.

The reserve was authorized by court order when the insurance company's business was sold to another company in 1936.

Lucas filed a report for Robertson showing the balance in the fund is $103,233. The principal disbursement was the payment in June, 1938, of $90,000 to James P. Aylward of Kansas City and James A. Waechter and Frank P. Aschemeyer, St. Louis lawyers, who represented O'Malley in the suit. The attorneys had been allowed a total of $100,000 for their work by Circuit Judge John W. Joynt.

WIDOW TESTIFIES SCHULTZ TOLD HER TO FORGET HINES

Mrs. Flegenheimer Tells Jury Tammany Leader Met Her Husband in Speakeasy.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The widow of Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer, testified today of meetings between her racketeer husband and James J. Hines, Tammany district leader.

Avoiding the gaze of Hines, on trial for a second time on lottery and conspiracy charges, Mrs. Flegenheimer told the jury:

"My husband told me I should forget I had met Mr. Hines."

The meeting, she said under questioning by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, took place in November, 1932, at "The Stable"—a Manhattan speakeasy where Schultz frequently conferred with his gang.

The widow, a former night club hat-check girl, who said she was married to the gangster when 18 years old, testified Hines stopped at the table where she was sitting with her husband. After she was introduced to him, she said, Schultz and Hines went to the rear of the speakeasy for a talk.

Saw Dixie Davis With Him.

Subsequently, she said, she saw Hines and J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, the Schultz lawyer, together on several occasions.

In the first trial, Davis, who turned State's evidence after he was captured in a Philadelphia hideout Feb. 2, 1938, testified he was under orders from Schultz to pay Hines "any reasonable amount—not more than $1000 at a time" for serving as political "fixer."

Davis said he paid Hines amounts ranging from $500 to $1000 at frequent intervals over a period of several years.

Mrs. Flegenheimer, who did not testify in the first trial—which ended in a mistrial last September—said she accompanied Hines and Davis to a night club in 1934 and later went with them to a restaurant for a midnight supper.

She said her husband had been a good provider before he was shot to death in a Newark (N. J.) saloon on the night of Oct. 25, 1935. They had two children, Nancy, 5, and John, 4.

Hines Denies He's "Broke."

Defense Attorney Lloyd Paul Stryker's cross-examination of Mrs. Flegenheimer was brief. He asked if "The Stable" was a public eating house, open to everybody. When she replied, "Yes," he sat down.

During a recess, Hines laughed at a published report that he was "broke."

"I've got a dollar in my pocket," he said, "and as long as I've got that, I can't be broke."

He said he had been living with one of his sons since he was dispossessed from his five-room apartment recently on a judgment of $640.49 for back rent.

NEW W P A CHIEF SAYS JOBLESS ARE WINNING RIGHT TO U. S. AID

Declares Day of Apoligies Is Past, That Public Employment Policy Is Being Established.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Col. F. C. Harrington, Works Progress Administrator, said in a radio talk tonight that the "right of jobless men and women" to public employment was "just being established."

"I feel that the day of apologies for the WPA now has passed," he said. "We can justify ourselves fully by our work, and we must do so."

"For its (WPA) preservation as an element of future public policy, I want to urge that it is now and henceforth up to every WPA worker to put in a good day's work for his day's pay—just as good a day's work as he can, whatever his rate of pay may be.

"I will do everything I can to give this program added prestige in the minds of the American people by carrying out what I conceive to be my two primary responsibilities:

"First, to see that the people whom Congress intended to get these jobs—the people who really need them—actually get them.

"And second, to see that the country gets from this program the best and most valuable work that can be done."

NIGHT CLUB LOSES ITS SUIT OVER RUDY VALLEE CONTRACT

Court Upholds Dismissal of $482,000 Action Against Crooner and N. B. C.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The Appellate division unanimously upheld today a State Supreme Court decision dismissing a $482,000 suit against Rudy Vallee and the National Broadcasting Co. for alleged conspiracy to break a contract.

The suit was filed by the Ruvall Orchestra Corporation, operator of the former Villa Vallee Night Club where the crooning Vallee and his orchestra appeared. The plaintiff contended that in 1929 it had a three-year contract with Vallee and his orchestra and charged that Vallee broke the contract a year later to appear in an N. B. C. program.

Justice Timothy A. Leary dismissed the suit on the ground that the complaint stated insufficient facts to constitute a cause of action.

FIRST OF 39 NEW ARMY BOMBING PLANES DELIVERED

Latest "Flying Fortress" Has Improvements Suggested by Tests of More Than Year Ago.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. — The War Department said today the first of 39 new "flying fortress" bombers, incorporating improvements suggested by service tests of more than a year, had been delivered at Wright Field, Dayton, O.

The new craft is identical in size and similar in general design to 13 Boeing B-17 bombers now in use, six of which made a round-trip flight last year to Buenos Aires, Argentina.

The improved model, the army said, is equipped with blowers, or superchargers, designed to assure maximum power from the four engines at high altitudes.

The "flying fortress" is a 22-ton plane with a wing span of 105 feet. They can go more than 250 miles an hour, and carry five machine-guns and a crew of from seven to nine men.

CURTISS-WRIGHT PLANE TO HAVE NEW SAFETY PANEL

"Tell-Tale" Lights to Check 47 Details for Pilots Landing 30-Passenger Transport.

A safety instrument panel which automatically checks 47 details of airplane operation will be a feature of the 30-passenger transport plane now under construction at the Curtiss-Wright factory at Lambert-St. Louis Field.

The device, termed a "tell-tale," consists of a panel of lights near the bottom of the general instrument board. When the pilots are preparing to land one of them pushes a pre-selector button marked "land," and the lights show what adjustments are necessary for safe descent. The landing gear is lowered, and a light goes on. Landing flaps and elevators are adjusted—lights check these operations.

The device, which has been used in another plane, will be ready for service when the large transport is tested in flights this spring. The 30-passenger transport, known as the CW-20 liner, is an all-metal monoplane powered with two engines. The cabin will be conditioned for substratosphere flying.

EX-COLLECTOR SHORT $5303, AUDIT SHOWS

G. A. Phillips, Ousted Valley Park Official, Previously Accused as Embezzler.

An auditor's report covering the entire active tenure of office of George A. Phillips, ousted City Collector of Valley Park, disclosed a total shortage of $5303.98, according to announcement yesterday by Mayor Charles C. Scholl upon receipt of the report. The audit embraces the period from April 1, 1934, until last August.

A discrepancy of $3805.50 was announced previously on submission of an incomplete audit. A warrant charging Phillips with embezzlement of that amount was issued eight days ago on complaint of Mayor Scholl. The shortages occurred in both the general fund and the water department fund.

Phillips, who is 48 years old, had not attended to his duties since last August, having suffered a nervous breakdown. A discrepancy in his accounts was discovered early in November and he was removed from office Nov. 29 by unanimous vote of the Valley Park Aldermen. Mayor Scholl estimated he received a monthly income of about $100 from the city. The former collector is married and has four children.

MISSOURI SEEKS TAX ON FEDERAL WORKERS

Brief in Support of New York Petition Filed in United States Supreme Court.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Attorney-General McKittrick of Missouri in a brief filed today urged the United States Supreme Court to rule that a State can collect an income tax from employes of Federal agencies. President Roosevelt has recommended congressional legislation to permit this and Federal taxation of State employes as well.

McKittrick filed his brief as a "friend of the court" in connection with oral arguments to be held soon on an attempt by New York to assess a tax on salary received by an attorney for the Federal Home Owners' Loan Corporation. A similar case is pending from Utah.

The Missouri brief asserts that "logic, precedent and fairness to State sovereignty and to the states' need of revenue, comparable in every respect to the national Government's need of revenue, impel a decision in favor of New York."

"The Home Owners' Loan Corporation," McKittrick added, "carries out no essential, usual, traditional, or strictly governmental function of the national Government. . . ."

"Even if its function could be so designated, a State income tax on an employe of the corporation would impose such a remote and indirect burden on the national Government as to compel rejection of the claim of immunity."

The brief said there are "thousands of persons" in Missouri employed by Federal corporations or agencies and that if New York loses the decision "it will deprive the State of Missouri of very substantial revenues under its income tax law."

WASHINGTON LOSES TO DRAKE, 37-28, IN VALLEY GAME

GRINNELL FIVE DEFEATS ST. LOUIS U. EASILY, 35 TO 22

BEARS' RALLY ENDS WHEN LEE IS EJECTED AND FERFECKY HURT

Player Banished for Fighting Late in Contest but Leads in Scoring With 12 Points.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 4.—Tough breaks played a part in Washington University's 37 to 28 defeat at the hands of Drake in a Missouri Valley Conference basketball game here tonight.

The fast-breaking Bears were well in the fight mid-way in the last half when Bill Ferfecky, crack Washington forward, twisted a knee and went out of action. At that stage Drake was leading, 28-24.

The Bears went on without Ferfecky and five minutes later were just two points behind the Bulldogs, with Drake leading, 28-26. Then Drake pulled out with a brief spurt which preceded the second tough break for the Bears.

Desmond Lee, whose sharpshooting from any distance furnished whatever dynamite the game produced, was waved to the bench by an official for allegedly hooking a short right into the ribs of Drake's center, Ned Swan. Lee played all but three minutes and in that time slammed six shots through the bucket to lead the scorers.

Washington successfully jammed up Drake's fast-breaking offense most of the way and countered with a mad offensive of its own which made the game a battle.

Drake, after playing shutout ball for eight minutes at the start, was just three points in front at the half with a 17-14 lead. The Bears erased that margin after two minutes of the last half and tied the count at 17-all.

For the next 12 minutes it was as stubborn a game as you'd care to see. Within six minutes of the end Washington was within two points of Drake and on three occasions in between the Bears had tied the score.

Drake's final margin was largely the result of Ned Swan's finding the range. The rugged Bull Dog center couldn't count a point in the early stages but near the finish he got the range and banged in most of his points.

Washington's banished Lee was the scoring leader with 12 points. Drake's Walter O'Connor collected 11, with Swan notching nine.

GALENTO CONCEDES LOUIS IS GOOD FIGHTER

By the Associated Press.

ORANGE, N. J., Feb. 4.—Patrons of Two-Ton Tony Galento's beer stube were taken aback tonight when the rotund heavyweight, home from a four-round knockout victory over Natie Brown in Detroit, said Champion Joe Louis "is a good fighter."

The National Boxing Association's No. 1 contender for the heavyweight crown was quick to qualify his remark, however.

"If I'm a bum and Louis calls me a bum, he's two bums," Galento said and went on to explain he did not snub the champion in Detroit last night.

Galento said he was donning his gloves when Louis, who had been introduced from the ring, came over and patted him on the back, saying "Good luck."

"Louis and me? We're very friendly. Very friendly. I can knock him out any time. He was with me a half-hour in the dressing room before the fight last night and I told him how we'd draw $1,500,000 if we met.

"I don't go around snubbing nobody. I'm a gentleman at all times."

Galento, who leaves for Florida in "my new car" with his wife and baby, "One-ton" Galento, Monday to meet Abe Feldman, has his plan of battle against Louis completed.

"Louis can't take a good punch. I can take anything he gives me. I'll let him hit me all he wants. Then I'll move in, hit him once, and it'll be a knockout."

Joe Jacobs, Galento's manager, said his fighter would meet Max Schmeling in Philadelphia if "a Louis match doesn't come up in a couple of weeks."

WRAY'S COLUMN

A Hardy Perennial.

HOW old is "old"? They've been calling Stanislaus Cyganiewiscz "old man Zbyszko" for at least 20 years. Yet on Jan. 23, at the age of 63, he wrestled Fritz von Schacht in Detroit.

How's that? Al Schacht? No, Fritz, although you might have thought it was Al from his antics. The bout was so queer that the referee declared it "no contest"—though he might as well do the same for all the others he referees.

Zibby, it appears, has a brand-new protege named Wladislaw Talun, a Pole like the "grand old man" himself. He is 6 feet 9 inches tall and weighs 300 pounds. When Von Schacht started to act up with Zibby, Talun, who was serving as the old man's second reached up and grabbed the offender, pulled him out of the ring and sat on him.

The referee called it no contest, although the proper ruling would have been to disqualify the promoter and punch Talun in the nose. It would have helped the act, too.

But the officials didn't think fast enough.

TWO NIGHTS AGO Zibby acted as second for Talun when he displayed his imported wares against Danno O'Mahony. Just what a wrestler needs a second for is your guess. Jimmy Londos didn't need seconds. Usually he needed about 50 minutes.

But there Zibby was in Talun's corner and Talun quickly turned over O'Mahony. That's no recommendation, because since Dick Shikat surprised Danno with that double X, O'Mahony has been about as hard to turn over as a flapjack.

It's easy to see that Talun is going places because there are only six or seven world champions in the field now and the scarcity is becoming noticeable.

Mr. Cyganiewiscz does his stuff.

He Could Wrestle.

THIS ZBYSZKO is a convert to the mat dramatics of the day, but there isn't a doubt that he was right up at the top in orthodox wrestling ability. He knew and could use every hold known to the game and reckoned a real rival for Gotch in that famous champion's heydey.

Gotch beat him; but the old man in his prime, everything being equal, could have thrown most of the others in a field then studded with capable mat men—Stecher, Caddock, Lewis, Westegaard, Plestina and others.

But later in life he began to "play the game" with trust promoters and, if appearances mean anything, wrestled to orders.

This writer went to Kansas City in 1925 to view the late Wayne Munn's first defense of the title Ed Lewis had passed along to him.

Zibby was his opponent and the bout was a laughable farce, to many of those present. Doc Reilly of the Kansas City A. C. got up after the first fall and pinched his nose as he passed this writer. The show had a certain odor.

How Different!

MUNN WAS SPECIALIZING on a crotch and half-nelson hold. He would grab his foeman with the hold named, raise him aloft and then crash him to the floor. Curtains!

But Wayne was having trouble with Zibby. He didn't seem to know the crotch from a crutch. Finally, it seemed to this writer, Zibby had to spread his legs apart so that Munn could get the essential part of the grip.

Even after he got the hold, Munn couldn't lift Zibby above his waistline but had to drop him from that point. Then he fell on top of him. Zibby dutifully passed out—the champion had won!

But only a few weeks later what a difference! Zibby had joined another wrestling group. Also, he had solved the mystery of Munn, it seemed. For, in 13 minutes he flopped the big boy twice and took away the title.

Later he let it go right here in St. Louis, to Joe Stecher. After that Zibby was just a good showman and not a threat.

Zibby Highly Educated.

ZBYSZKO was an unusual man, as well as a wrestler. He was reared abroad and was highly educated. He had been an army captain in the engineering corps in his home country, before coming to America to exploit his wrestling prowess, his biographers related.

This country was very kind to Zibby and he made a lot of money while here, part of which he invested in Old Orchard (Me.) property.

By turns he has been identified with practically all of the various wrestling groups in this country. If he chose, "he could a tale unfold."

He told this writer, on one occasion, that he intended to write a true story of his wrestling career. Whereupon we obtained from him a written promise to

MINNEAPOLIS GIRL SETS U. S. SKATING MARK

LA CROSSE, Wis., Feb. 4.—One national record was bettered as a field of crack blade stars, including six Olympic team members, competed today in the first day of the national outdoor ice skating championships.

Audrey Naas, attractive Minneapolis skater, lowered the first record in the two-day meet when she skated the junior girls 220-yard final in 21.9 seconds, clipping one-tenth of a second off the record set at the Great Lakes Open meet at Oconomowoc, Wis., last Saturday by Geraldine Nuhfer of Cleveland.

Kenneth Bartholomew, another Minneapolis entry, won the senior men's two-mile final in five minutes and 35 seconds, and finished second in the senior men's 220-yard final to Allan Potts of Brooklyn, N. Y., who skated the distance in 19 seconds.

Leighton Third.

Charles Leighton of Minneapolis, 1940 Olympic team member and winner of the Great Lakes Open championship, could do no better than a third place in the senior men's three-quarter mile.

Leo Freisinger and Eddie Schroeder of Chicago, both Olympic team members, finished ahead of Leighton in the latter event, Freisinger winning in three minutes, 19.3 seconds.

Second and third in the men's two-mile went to Don Johnson of Minneapolis and Del Lamb, Olympian from Milwaukee.

Vic Ronchetti of Chicago, senior men's defending champion, failed to place in any of the events run off today.

Maddy Horn Wins.

Madeline Horn of Beaver Dam, Wis., favorite to take the senior women's title, outskated Mary Dolan of Minneapolis, defending champion, in the three-quarter mile final, covering the distance in two minutes, 23 seconds. Eleanor Thiel Dyer of Chicago finished in third place behind Miss Dolan.

RECORD BIG TEN CROWD SEES OHIO STATE FIVE TAKE THE LEAD

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 4. — Ohio State moved into undisputed possession of first place in the Western Conference basketball standings here tonight by nosing out the Minnesota Gophers, 31 to 30, in an exciting overtime duel.

A free throw made by Richard Baker, forward—with a little more than two minutes of the five-minute overtime period remaining—spelled victory for Ohio State after the end of the regular playing time found the two teams in a 30-30 tie.

It was the fifth victory in six starts for Ohio State, while Minnesota, erstwhile leader, slipped down a notch with five victories and two losses.

The Gophers pulled into a 25-18 lead, but Ohio State then scored 10 straight points without a return to forge in front, 28-25. Paul Maki, Minnesota guard, dropped in a long shot with John Schick, Ohio State center, retaliating with a short field goal. Maki dropped in another long shot and Gordon Addington, Gopher forward, made a free throw to tie the score at 30-30 to send it into overtime.

A record-breaking fieldhouse crowd estimated at 15,700 watched the game. The previous record here was 15,278, set at the Illinois game Jan. 23.

Phillips 66 and Martin Oilers Win Exhibitions

The Martin Oilers of Kansas City displayed fine basketball tactics to hand the United Service five a 44-35 setback in the feature game of last night's Ozark A. A. U. program at the St. Louis U. gymnasium. In the second game, the Phillips 66 team of Bartlesville, Ok., had little more than a light workout to whitewash the Carlinville, Ill., Gloves, 54-16.

On this afternoon's concluding program at St. Louis U., Phillips 66 will engage the Martin Oilers in the final match of the scheduled doubleheader. This game will start at 3:30 o'clock with the contest between United Service and the Mount Vernon, Ill., Silver Streaks meeting in the preliminary at 2:30.

The first half of the Martin Oiler game was played on comparatively even terms. The Oilers took the lead at the start and had a small margin for 14 minutes, until the United Service tied the score 16-16. Martin Oilers led at the half, 23-16. "Tiny" Ensminger, Oiler's center, was the big attraction as he scored seven field goals and two foul shots, for 16 of his team's points. Tudor was the pacesetter for the United Service with seven points.

Carlinville had several tall players but was unable to cope with the experienced Oklahoma team. The latter's regulars played only the last ten minutes of the game.

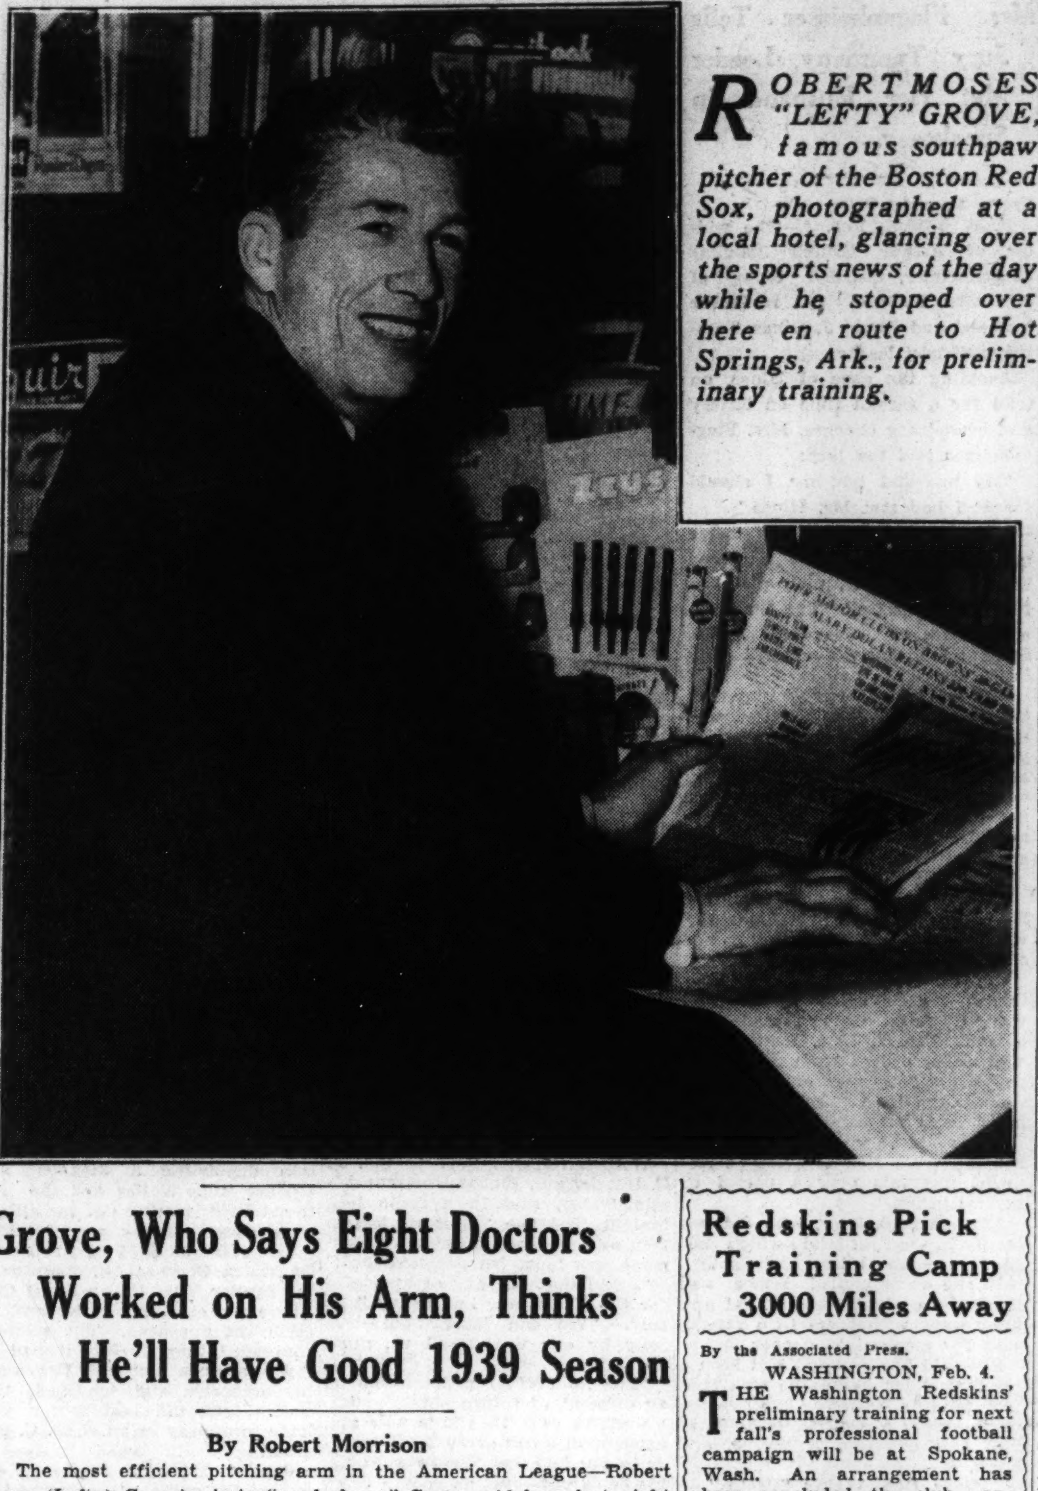
OKLAHOMA AGGIES WIN 34TH SUCCESSIVE GAME ON THEIR HOME COURT

By the Associated Press.

STILLWATER, Ok., Feb. 4.—The Oklahoma Aggies, riding at the head of the Missouri Valley Conference basketball parade, breezed past the Washburn Ichabods of Topeka, Kan., 41 to 26, here tonight for their sixth conference win of the season and their thirty-fourth consecutive home victory.

The Aggies took the lead at the outset and never were in danger as they built up a 25 to 13 advantage at halftime and rolled on to their biggest score of the season.

"The Arm's Perfectly O. K."



ROBERT MOSES "LEFTY" GROVE, famous southpaw pitcher of the Boston Red Sox, photographed at a local hotel, glancing over the sports news of the day while he stopped over here en route to Hot Springs, Ark., for preliminary training.

Grove, Who Says Eight Doctors Worked on His Arm, Thinks He'll Have Good 1939 Season

By Robert Morrison

The most efficient pitching arm in the American League—Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove's—is in "good shape," Grove said here last night as he passed through on his way to Hot Springs, Ark.

The veteran Boston Red Sox hurler led the league with an earned run average of 3.07 last year—this, despite the fact that his arm went "dead" July 14 and stayed "dead" for about five weeks. And he didn't pitch more than five games the rest of the season.

But he ended up with a total of 14 victories against four defeats. You can't beat that for a pitcher who has been in action for almost 20 years.

Arm in "Good Shape."

Grove said his arm was "in good shape," but he hadn't done any heavy work with it this winter. He had eight doctors studying the strange arm condition, which he described as having "no power in it."

"They never did find out what was wrong with it," said Lefty, who was found "kidding" the girls at the cigar counter at the Chase Hotel. "At least, if they did, they never told me."

Grove said he spent the winter hunting in South Carolina and Canada, doing quite a bit of climbing and felt in "fine condition."

"I've put on 16 pounds since last year. I put most of it on before winter, though. I quit smoking last season and my weight went up right away." He weighs 218 now.

Grove believed his arm should be as good this season as last but he wasn't predicting how many victories he could turn in.

"Never have in 20 years and I don't want to start now," he said.

Cites White Sox Loss.

The same went for a prediction on how the Red Sox should go this season. Of course, it was suggested, he couldn't, by any stretch of the imagination, predict a pennant and Grove agreed. Then he was asked how about the famed "battle for second place" beneath the Yankees.

"Cleveland ought to be right up there and so will we," he said. "Chicago suffered a real blow when it lost Monty Stratton (whose leg was amputated after a hunting accident)."

Did he think the trades helped the Red Sox?

"Not particularly," he said. "We lost a good man in Pinky Higgins (traded to Detroit. He was the best third baseman in the league."

Grove will be joined by Manager Joe Cronin in Hot Springs and after a couple of weeks of the baths they will go to the Florida training camp.

FATHER OF DIZZY AND PAUL DEAN REMARRIES

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., Feb. 4.—Baseball's famed Jerome (Dizzy) and Paul Dean have a new stepmother.

She is Mrs. Mattie Sandifer Dean, married to 65-)year-old Albert M. Dean, the boys' father, in Rockwall, Tex., Jan. 21. They met, the couple said, Saturday, Jan. 20.

The mother of the Dean boys died in 1919.

Perk Galbraith New Part Owner Of St. Paul Club

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 4.—The St. Paul club of the American Hockey Association changed ownership today, control passing to a trio of buyers, two of them St. Paul residents and the third a veteran of hockey who started with Eveleth, Minn., of the old American Amateur League and later played nine seasons in the National Hockey League.

The buyers are Herman Peterson, manager of St. Paul apartment and hotel properties for 18 years, J. M. Boxell, native of St. Paul and resident here nearly 50 years, and Percy Galbraith of Eveleth, long-time wing star of the Boston Bruins, coach of the Saints a year ago and a veteran of the early days of hockey in Minnesota.

Purchase price of the St. Paul franchise, which was held for several years by J. E. and Harold Goodwillie, was not disclosed, but W. F. Grant of Kansas City, president of the American Hockey Association, said it was sufficient to take care of all indebtedness of the club. The association took over the club a week ago.

Salaries due players for the last two weeks of last season, which was a disastrous one for the club which finished in last place with only 10 victories, will be paid immediately, Grant said.

BILL COCHRAN LEADS BILLIKEN SCORERS WITH EIGHT POINTS

Luther High Man for Winners With 11 Points While His Mate, Luick, Counts Ten.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GRINNELL, Ia., Feb. 4.—Bill Cochran tried to match the scoring efforts of Wilburt Luick, Grinnell's giant center, and their diminutive forward, Freddy Luther, but failed as the Pioneers rolled over the Billikens, 35-22.

While Cochran totaled eight points, Luick and Luther counted 10 and 11 points respectively.

The first half was a nip-and-tuck battle. The lead changed hands five times during period. Bill Cochran's long shot and Dan O'Sullivan's free throws gave the Billikens a 4-0 lead in the first three minutes. But Fort, Luther and Luick combined to sink seven points in succeeding three minutes to put the Pioneers ahead. Freddie Luther again tied the score on a long shot after Bill Cochran had put St. Louis in the lead again with a set-up and free throw. During the remaining minutes of the half Denny Cochran counted a field goal and O'Sullivan scored twice from the free throw line for the rest of St. Louis' scores, but it was not sufficient to match free throws by Turner and a field goal by Nash, substitute forward, as the Pioneers left floor with 13-11 lead.

Coming back after the rest period, St. Louis pulled up to within one point on Dudenhofer's free throw and Bill Cochran's three points continued to make a game of it for the next seven minutes. But seven free throws during the same period kept the Pioneers in front.

In the final seven minutes of the game, St. Louis tired perceptibly from the game of the night before, and weakened more by the loss of giant center, O'Sullivan, through personal fouls, were unable to halt Grinnell as they started fast-breaking down floor with Luick, Luther and Peisner, substitute forward, each counting two field goals.

Play during the game was marked by close defensive work in the first half and frequent fouling in the second period as both teams showed the effects of games of the previous night.

PUSIE IS CUT OVER EYE AND BACK OF HEAD BY MISSILE

Carbol Scores Winning Goal in Third Period After Battle—Locals Lead By 4 Games.

By the Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., Feb. 4.—Scoring twice in the final period, the league leading St. Louis Flyers downed a stubborn last place Wichita team, 3 to 2, in an American Hockey Association game that nearly ended in a riot tonight. The victory gave the Flyers a four-game lead.

Jean Pusie, fiery St. Louis defenseman, emerged from the third period fracas with bandages covering scalp and forehead gashes inflicted by a flying steel chair from the rinkside.

At least two spectators were cut and bruised in the mixup, and at least 30 steel chairs served both the riled fans and the stick poking Flyers as weapons.

Zola Moore, 23 years of age, one of the spectators, was in a serious condition in a hospital suffering from injuries received in the fracas.

Police Arrive.

Ten police officers, dispatched to the ice palace by radio, and an appeal to the crowd and players by Manager Marlin Cox of the home team quieted the row, which had its beginning in a major penalty assessed against Ablett, Wichita Skyhawk wing, and Taylor, Flyer defenseman, for fighting.

The Hawks counted first when Maloney intercepted a St. Louis pass in center ice and skated in for an unassisted goal at 6:01 in the opening period, on a short right angle shot past Stopper Nelson.

Driving relentlessly, the Flyers evened the count at 9:46 in the second period, Harnott lifting the puck over the Hawk goalie, Paul Goodman, who sprawled at the net's mouth during a melee in front of the goal.

Headley's rifled low shot from near the blue line found the Flyer net at 19:45 in the same period to put the Hawks ahead again. The rubber disc struck Carbol's leg as he attempted to stop it and bounced over Nelson's stick.

Carbol Scores Winning Goal.

Kendall tied the count again with the third period 6:55 old, on assists by Hergert and Brenneman, and Carbol sent the Flyers into the winning lead, picking up the puck in center ice, evading defenseman Headley and skirting the rear of the goal to hook the puck into the corner past Goodman.

10 Young Players of St. Louis District to Join Card Farms

Ten young ball players from the St. Louis district have been signed by the Cardinals for their Class D farm clubs, Ed Staples, director of publicity, announced last night.

Six of the boys are from St. Louis, while another is from Lemay in the southern part of the county. Of the others, one is from East St. Louis, one from O'Fallon and one from Wood River. Four are listed as pitchers, four as infielders and two as outfielders. Most of them were signed after a tryout camp at the Public Schools Stadium last September.

The St. Louis boys are Lloyd Benjamin Fisher, 4023 Lexington avenue; Joseph Frederick Molina, 2600 St. Louis avenue; Ralph Ferdinand Sack, 6765 Etzel; Norman Schrader, 2554 Palm; Henry Ulrich Jr., 4317 Maryland, and Homer Melvin Whitehead, 2140A Salisbury. BULLA, NELSON SHOOT 68'S TO TOP OPEN FIELD

By the Associated Press.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 4.—Johnny Bulla, husky 24-year-old Chicago professional, and Byron Nelson, veteran from Reading, Pa., carded 68's to lead a field of 78 storm-tossed golfers at the conclusion of the first 18 holes in the $3000 Phoenix Open tournament today.

The rain-soaked course earlier had proved the undoing of some of the nation's leading linksmen.

Did the Job.

The crowd was on the verge of acclaiming Bulla when Nelson, member of the 1937 Ryder Cup team, pulled up to the eighteenth tee with a 63. Informed he would have to par the five-stroke hole, Nelson nonchalantly went ahead to tie Bulla.

Par for the course is 71.

Bulla and Nelson each shot five birdies.

With momentary letups it rained from early today until after competitors had posted their scores. At noon the temperature was 40 degrees.

Trailing closely behind Bulla and Nelson were Ben Hogan, White Plains, N. Y., 70; E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Oak Park, Ill., and John Geersten, Salt Lake City, 71's; Jimmy Thomson, Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa.; John Revolta, Chicago, 72's; and Ed Oliver, Wilmington, Del., Dick Metz, Chicago, John Malutic, Gerard, O., Lawson Little, San Francisco, John Perrelli, Lake Tahoe, Cal., Jim Demaret, Houston, Tex., and Zell Eaton, Oklahoma City, all 73's.

AMES DEFEATS MISSOURI FOR BIG SIX LEAD

By the Associated Press.

AMES, Ia., Feb. 4.—Iowa State's Cyclones, led by chunky Bob Harris, who counted 19 points, replaced Missouri as the Big Six Conference basketball pace-setter tonight by downing the Tigers, 51 to 45, in a blistering scoring duel.

The victory was Iowa State's fourth in six conference games, shooting the Cyclones a half game ahead of Missouri, which previously had walloped Iowa State, 56 to 35, at Columbia.

Harris, apparently unhampered by a weak ankle, gave Iowa State a 30-to-28 lead with a field goal as the gun sounded at the end of the first half. The Cyclones never gave up the front position as they out-maneuvered the Tigers in a fast scoring second half.

With 15 minutes gone in the second session, Iowa State had an eight-point lead at 49 to 41 and the Cyclones coasted in to victory.

It appears that Joe Louis and the New York Yankees have only one opponent to fear—Father Time.

The Yanks already are looking around for a successor to Lou Gehrig. They wouldn't have to worry so much if the Browns hadn't grabbed McQuinn from Newark.

Major league baseball has increased the player limit to 25 men. Collegiate football might reduce to the same figure and curtail the parade of subs to and from the side lines.

When a small college plays a major one, why not have the big shot cut its squad to the numerical limit of the visitors?

TOURNAMENT PLAY COSTS LEONARD DODSON JOB AT SPRINGFIELD

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Feb. 4. — Leonard Dodson, nationally known tournament golfer now campaigning on the winter circuit, today was dismissed as professional at the Hickory Hills club here, where he has served for one year. Club officials explained they were seeking a pro who could remain here throughout the summer season. Dodson frequently was absent because of tournament competition.

Leonard is a native of Springfield.

Here's Max Again.

I SEE Max Schmeling's back again
But just how long he will remain
Is not exactly known.
He just dropped in to say "hello"
To all his friends, including Joe,
Who knocked him off his throne.

With Joe he'd like another fight—
He says his spine is now all right,
And that he's in the pink.
But if he craves another bout
With Joe, he'd better take time out,
And have another think.

Some think he's on a good will tour
Sent here by Hitler to secure
Entente cordiale.
But in the meantime Maxie would
Have it distinctly understood
That Goebbels is his pal.

JUNIOR, WHAT ARE YOU DOING?
PLAYING MAX SCHMELING

No matter what the object of his visit or his status in the realm of fistiana, Max still remains the world's No. 1 commuter between Berlin and New York.

As the sea tide ebbs and flows,
Maxie comes and Maxie goes;
But while the oil holds out to burn
To us Herr Maxie will return.

While Paul Waner was winning medal honors in the baseball players' annual golf tournament at Lakeland, Fla., brother Lloyd was returning his third unsigned contract to the Pirates for further seasoning. Indicating the "Big" and "Little Poison" have lost none of their potency.

The Waner boys never have been noted for their early enrollment but rather for what they do after having contacted the dotted line. They are funny that way.

Gene Sarazen in this corner and Henry Cotton over there are having a battle of words anent the proposed demand of English golfers for a guarantee before displaying their wares on the American links. As this was written Henry was one up and the dictionary to go.

Sure Thing.

AS soon as he becomes a pro
The golfer's worthy of his dough,
And furthermore in time of need
He likes to have it guaranteed.

That is one advantage the amateur has over the pro. He doesn't have to worry about where his next meal is coming from.

Buddy Hassett who plays first base and sings first tenor for the Boston Bees vocalized at the Boston sports writers banquet the other night.

OF next importance to a flinger
We wouldn't rate a tenor singer,
But at the well known banquet
table

SWING IT, BUDDY.

Branch Rickey told the scribes that September pitching usually decides the pennant winner. Branch was on safer ground there than he was in his 1938 post-prandial oration in which he rated the Cards of that year as comparing favorably with former pennant winning Gas House teams outside the pitching staff.

That and This.

Last year the Browns scheduled 13 exhibition games with major league opposition; this spring they have booked 23 such contests. Progress. There's a movement on foot to throw a big dinner for George Sisler, a civic celebration of his entry into baseball's hall of fame. . . . Bitter enemies of the ball field become buddies when they put on the same uniform. Dizzy Dean always was one of Dick Bartell's favorite hates, but they'll be team mates in 1939.

Bartell, by the way, is the player with the best chance of making that Chicago-New York trade look good for the Cubs. Hank Leiber also may snap out of his lethargy and perform with the Cubs up to the expectations that were Bill Terry's when Hank moved to the Giants. That was one of those trades. You'll have to wait till next September to know whether the Cubs or Giants got the better of it.

Elmer Wenning, who won 41 games in two years in the Kitty League and then came up with a sore arm, has been signed by the Browns for Springfield, Ill. Scout Bill Biehl is teaching Elmer about a curve and doing road work with him every day. Hard working scout. . . . Lew Krausse, minor league pitcher, obtained in a trade for Jimmy Outlaw, has been released by the Cards to their Columbus farm. . . . Scouts say it's too bad Sam Narron can't catch like he can hit. . . . Secretary Leo Ward of the Cardinals is happy over a fattened pay check. . . . Is the depression over?

Pan Mail.

"Dear Extra Innings: The Browns' and Cardinals' scouts must have picked up players that knew the rules or never played softball during the past several years. What has rules to do with catching, throwing, hitting and speed and baseball instinct? (There are many rules about catching, throwing, hitting.) Joe DiMaggio was quite a softball player around Frisco. How would a play like this be ruled? Suppose a player with a big mouth like one of our movie actors was stealing third base and the catcher made a bag peg and the ball bounced into the base runner's mouth and he continued home with the ball in his mouth. (The open mouth, undoubtedly, would be ruled a casual hazard and the ball could be replaced without penalty). I say leave the rules to the umpires, the catching, throwing, hitting and running to the players and the letter writing to the scouts. (Guess that makes you a scout.)

"JOHN CONNORS."

He Likes Pepper.

"Dear Extra Innings: The indignation rankling in my soul herewith drips into this epistle. No more Marvellous, Magnificent, Musical Mudcats! Pepper Martin to be used in a utility role in 1939, if at all! No more Onkel Frankie! No more gas in the Gas House Gang!

"I move: That Mr. Rickey, the ruthless ruler, be forced off his throne and tossed into the muddy Missouri. That a progressive, tolerant man with some showmanship in his veins be placed on Rickey's throne. That the Wild Horse be permitted to roam at will, a regular in the lineup. There's life in the Old Hoss still. That there be more gas in the Gas House Gang and I don't mean Laclede.

"EMMETT HUSSEY."

An All-Graceful Team.

"Dear Extra Innings: Won't you please tell Old Timer to get hold of the right jug next time? His letter on George Sisler and Hal Chase leads me to the conclusion that he reached for his jug in the dark and came up with a jug of sulphuric acid.

"I saw Hal Chase when he was with the New York Highlanders (not Yankees) and he was grace personified. Hal didn't make easy plays look hard, the opposite was true. Chase was, without doubt, one of the most graceful players I ever laid eyes on.

"What I have said about Chase goes double for George Sisler. Sisler could and did duplicate every play executed by Chase and Sis was Chase's superior in throwing, base running and hitting. Of course Sisler, the man stands out over Chase like Gibralter does over a grain of sand. I have seen many ball players in my days, John McGraw at third base for our Cardinals, Uncle Robbie as a catcher and right on down the line, to our present day crop. George Sisler is tops in my book. Let those who argue for Chase cite one single play that Chase pulled and was not duplicated by Sis. Both these players were past masters in the art of shifting their feet and bodies around the first sack. There have been many fine first basemen, but these two boys are supreme.

"Wonder if any one ever attempted to pick an all-star team based on graceful actions? Sisler's grace around first base gave me the idea and the team is not selected for the actual playing ability, but grace alone. It is no weak sister even at that.

George Sisler, first base.
Larry Lajoie, second base.
Bancroft or Wallace, shortstop.
Traynor, third base.
Speaker or Roush, center field.
Ki Ki Cuyler, right field.
Lou Criger, Ray Schalk and Jim Archer, catchers.
Jack Powell, W. Johnson, Ed Plank and J. Dean, pitchers.

"The above team represents my own opinion and there are many other graceful players, today and yesterday, who fit in very nicely. It is tough to leave the one and only Tyrus Cobb off, but Ty wasn't the equal of Eddie Roush or Tris Speaker when you are talking graceful actions. Rogers Hornsby, one of the greatest ball players of all time, must yield to Lajoie and I am positive that the great bambino, George Herman Ruth, never gave a Fan Dancer much loss of sleep over his graceful actions or threat of going in for light toe work.

"Very truly yours,
"REAL OLD TIMER."

N. Y. MANAGER WOULD LIKE TO GET VAN MUNGO

A Genial Memphis Gentleman Opines Cards May Hit First Division—Not Worrying About Cubs.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Sweet William Terry, baseball's gift to the sports writers, blew into town with a stiff wind today and calmly picked his own Giants and Will McKechnie's Cincinnati Reds as the clubs most likely to succeed in this summer's National League war.

The mild man from Memphis went even further and saw the possibility of the St. Louis Cardinals climbing into the first division, in which case Pittsburgh's collapsible Pirates might be the outfit dropping out of the money.

He added that he's willing to make a deal for pitchers, and would like very much to get the temperamental Van Lingle Mungo from Brooklyn, which is like saying you'd like to get a bomb in your morning mail.

In re the Yankees.

Then, giving just a passing glance (and shudder) in the direction of the American League, he also decided it was about time to stop trying to pick any club to beat the Yankees.

"I did it a couple of times," he recalled ruefully. "And the pick snapped right back in my face. So did the Yanks in the world series. You might as well wise up right now that it's silly to name any club to beat that bunch.

"But I'd sure like to meet 'em again in the world series next fall, if the team I have this year stays in one piece. This club has more power than any I've ever managed, with the addition of Zeke Bonura on first and Frank Demaree in the outfield.

"That power and our pitching—we'll go with Hubbell, Schumacher, Gumbert and Melton as the four starters—makes us a tough outfit. I won't say we'll win the pennant, but the team that whips us will. We're a cinch to finish one-two.

"The Cubs, even though they're the pennant-holder, aren't as strong as they were. Cincinnati looks like the toughest and only the Reds' infield can stop them. That second base combination isn't too hot and I never did like Riggs on third, but the pitching and the one-year experience for Harry Craft makes them a sweet-looking outfit."

The occasion for the Colonel's views was his first trip of the year to New York. As usual when "Wiolent Will" hits town, the baseball writers didn't know what to expect. For a change, they discovered a genial individual, who answered questions freely, and, on the surface anyway, was palsy-walsy with all hands.

He wasn't too certain about the condition of his injured and ailing ball players, but explained that Hubbell had told him some time ago his left arm "felt better than for any time in three years," second baseman Burgess Whitehead, on the voluntary retired list last year, had written he was "rarin' to go," and right-hander Hal Schumacher "says his arm feels great" after an operation.

The Cubs' Status.

"The Cubs aren't as strong around shortstop this year," he added with a satisfied smile, because he had traded his short-fielder, Dick Bartell, for the Cubs' man, Bill Jurges, over the winter.

"All in all," he went on, "we're the most improved club on paper. I don't see how the Pirates bettered themselves in the winter dealing. The Bees don't have the hitting to make the first division. The Cards will be tough if their pitching and shortstop comes 'round. And the Dodgers and Phillies—well, what do you think?"

FLYING LEE WINS NOSE-VICTORY IN $10,000 COAST RACE

Jockey Renick Resorts to Whip in Stretch to Bring Mount Home — Sweet Nancy Is Second.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—Flying through the mud to overhaul the betting favorite, Hal Price Headley's Flying Lee nosed out Sweet Nancy today and won the $10,000 Santa Margarita Handicap at Santa Anita Park.

With 35,000 turf fans gathered under clear skies for the day's biggest race, Headley's four-year-old filly and 17-to-1 shot overtook Norman Church's Sweet Nancy in the closing strides of the mile and one-sixteenth event and held on long enough to capture the verdict in a photo finish. The time was one minute, 47.1 seconds.

Renick on Winner.

Jockey Sammy Renick gave Flying Lee the whip in the stretch after keeping her close to the pace, and Sweet Nancy's two-length lead dwindled. Mrs. Emil Denmark's Genie Palatine ran third.

Twelve entries went to the post, Marica, the pre-race favorite, Real Clear and Pattycake having been scratched.

Sweet Nancy, winner of the recent Santa Susana Stakes for fillies, had little trouble going to the front at the three-quarter pole, and seemed headed for victory until Jockey Longden seemingly relaxed and Flying Lee came up with a rush.

Winner in only one out of four starts at Santa Anita this winter, Flying Lee, victorious in the Kentucky Oaks last fall, was virtually overlooked by the betting fraternity and paid $37.40, $12.80 and $7.40 across the board. Sweet Nancy paid $4.20 and $3.80 to place and Genie Palatine $8.20.

Trailing the Leaders.

Trailing behind the three were Parscout, Decuria, Carvola, Wild Turkey, Primulus, Sumatra III, First Kiss, Two Bob and Fair Knightess.

The "handle" for the race was $125,572.

FILLY ROYAL PAM PAYS $33 FOR $2 IN MIAMI VICTORY

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 4. — A brown filly named Royal Pam, so-so in nine previous starts and running in her first stake event, outclassed a brilliant field of Kentucky Derby and Flamingo Stakes eligibles today to win the $5000 Bahamas Handicap at Hialeah Park.

It was an upset that amazed the crowd of 12,000, who had installed Herbert M. Woolf's entry of Inscoelda and Technician the 2-to-1 favorite. The payoff was $33.30 on a $2 straight mutuel ticket.

Technician easily won the place, three lengths ahead of Mrs. W. Plunket Stewart's Early Morn, but Inscoelda, champion juvenile filly last year, started next to last and finished seventh in the field of 12 three-year-olds. Don Meade, the comeback jockey, rode Early Morn, which was a close second choice in the betting.

CROSBY'S 'DON MIKE' BACKED TO 60 TO 1 FOR ANITA HANDICAP

Bing Crosby's South American importation, Don Mike, has been backed from 100 to 1, down to 60, 30 to 15 to 1, for the Santa Anita Handicap, according to quotations of James J. Carroll. Crooner Crosby also owns Ligarito, 15 to 1, in the Handicap. Ligarito ran Seabiscuit to a head finish in the nine-furlong dash at Del Mar last summer.

Louis B. Mayer's Ossabaw, converted jumper, has been hammered from 20 down to 15, 6 and 3 to 1. Azucar, converted jumper, won the first Santa Anita Handicap for Fred Alger Sr., Detroit horseman.

Sharpshooters have knocked Cravat's price from 30 down to 20, 8 and 4 to 1. Tom Taggart's Yale o'Nine, 60 to 1, has been cut to 40, 20 and 15 to 1. Jacola, 40 to 1, is now 15, 6 and 3 to 1. Carroll's latest figures:

PATTY BERG AND DOROTHY KIRBY IN GOLF FINAL

By the Associated Press.

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Feb. 4.—Playing at the peak of her game, red-haired Patty Berg of Minneapolis today swept Laddie Irwin of Glen Ridge, N. J., out of her path to a fourth straight victory in the Miami Biltmore golf tournament. She meets Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta in the 36-hole final tomorrow.

The freckle-faced national champion had a nine-hole card of 36, one over men's par and four under women's, as she trounced the 18-year-old Jersey girl, a close friend, 7 and 5, in the semifinal. Miss Berg lost only one hole.

Miss Berg had six birdies, four of them in a row, and played every other hole in par. Miss Irwin matched two of Miss Berg's birdies and scored a third herself but she lacked the consistency to cope with her opponent's long woods and deadly approaches.

Miss Kirby, who won the qualifying medal with a 79 to tie the course record for her sex, also shot sub-par golf in a see-saw match with Ellamae Williams of Chicago, which ended in a 3-and-2 victory.

They reached the turn all square, both shooting 38s, two under par. A birdie on the tenth put Miss Williams ahead but Miss Kirby won the next two with birdies and the long fifteenth in par five and closed out the match with her fifth birdie on the sixteenth, where Miss Williams needed a bogey six.

Haverford, Pa., Site of Davis Cup Defense

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. — The United States Lawn Tennis Association, at its annual meeting today, adopted the recommendation of its Davis Cup Committee of management that the 1939 challenge round be awarded to the Merion Cricket Club at Haverford, Pa.

Walter Pate, chairman and captain of the U. S. Davis Cup team, told the association its committee favored the Merion courts over those of the Germantown Cricket Club because the latter were in bad condition for the U. S.-Australia matches last year.

The only change in the slate of officers was the election of Gordon E. Small of Cincinnati to replace Ralph Westcott of Chicago as secretary. Holcombe Ward of New York was re-elected president, Joseph E. Wear, Philadelphia, first vice-president; Lawrence A. Baker, Washington, D. C., second vice-president, and Russell Kingman, Orange, N. J., treasurer.

The challenge round will be played Sept. 2-4 after the interzone finals have been decided, probably at the Longwood Club, Brookline, Aug. 24-26. Preceding the interzone play, the national doubles also will be played at Longwood, Aug. 14-19.

Dates for the national singles championships at Forest Hills were fixed at Sept. 7-16.

CUNNINGHAM WINS IN MILE; MUNSKI SIXTH

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Beating back a bold challenge by Charles "Chuck" Fenske in the last lap, Glenn Cunningham tonight galloped to another of his matchless running triumphs as he scored his sixth victory in seven Wanamaker Mile starts. His time for the feature event of the thirty-second annual Millrose A. A. games at Madison Square Garden was 4 minutes 13 seconds.

A packed house of 16,000 saw the race. Cunningham, unbeaten in the Garden since 1936, was not content to let others set the pace. He took command of the field with six of the 11 laps still to go and held it for three circuits, until Fenske, Big Ten champion from Wisconsin, surged from third place into the lead. Cunningham hung on his heels for one more lap and then, as usual, cut loose and passed him as they wheeled in to the final 160 yards.

But Fenske was not to be shaken off so easily. The Wisconsin husky came striding back as they pounded down the back stretch. Cunningham hit it up with everything in his big frame, and still Fenske didn't falter. He stuck to Glenn's shoulder right around the final turn, and only as Cunningham made a supreme effort down the home stretch was he able to open up a two-yard lead that was his margin of victory.

Wayne Rideout of North Texas State Teachers staged a handsome sprint of his own to come in third, followed by Archie San Romani, Blaine Rideout, John Munski of Missouri the pace-setter for the early part of the race, and Josef Mostert of Belgium.

Beetham Falls and Loses.

With an easy victory within his grasp, Charley Beetham, former national half-mile champion, slipped and fell rounding the final turn and first place in the 880-yard race went to Francis Slater of Fordham in 1 minute 54.7 seconds, with long John Woodruff of Pittsburgh, Olympic 800-meter titleholder, second and Sanford Goldberg, New York's flying fireman, third.

The night's first record was produced in one of the heats of the 60-yard high hurdles, as Roy Staley of Southern California, a 1936 Olympic team member, skimmed over the barriers in 7.3 seconds, one-tenth faster than the former mark set in this meet last year by Allan Tolmich and Forrest (Spec) Towns.

Wesley Wallace of Fordham captured the classic Millrose 600 in 1:12.3, second-fastest time in meet history. William Fritz of Canada was second and Jim Herbert was third.

Herbert Thompson, Negro flyer competing unattached, equalled the accepted world record of 6.1 seconds in winning the final of the 60-yard dash.

Gregory Rice of Notre Dame, won the two-mile in 9:07.6, with Don Lash ten yards back in his first defeat of the season.

CLAYTON FIVE WINS OVER PRINCIPIA, 35-19

Clayton High School's basketball team defeated Principia Academy, 35 to 19 at Clayton last night.

Clayton led throughout the contest and held a 14 to 5 advantage at the half.

Dornton was high scorer for the winners with five field goals for ten points.

In a preliminary contest, the Wydown School team won its twelfth successive contest, defeating Clayton "B" team, 19 to 15.

MUNY TITLES AT STAKE IN FINAL GAMES

Teams of the Men's Municipal Basketball Association will play ninth and final round games this week at Sherman Park Community Center Monday and Tuesday.

While one of the three divisional titles has been decided—the Nifty Nickels Sandwich Shop having clinched honors in the Concord Division, it is possible for both the Forsom division race on Monday and the Central division on Tuesday to end in ties for first place and necessitate playoff games to determine the champion.

In the Monday division the Front Ranks play the Shamrocks at 8 o'clock and the Western Blow Pipes battle St. Francis Xavier at 9 o'clock. St. Francis can decide this race by winning, but Western can tie for the lead by scoring an upset and the Shamrocks can made it a three-day tie by also winning. St. Francis has beaten Western twice by four-point margins; the Shamrocks and Fronts split two close games.

The Tuesday schedule calls for the United Service Cars to oppose the Bill Binigs at 8 o'clock and the Underwood Typewriters to play the Y. M. H. A. at 9 o'clock. The Underwood can take this title by winning their game but a loss coupled with a United Service Car victory would cause a two-way tie. In previous meetings the Underwoods beat the "Y" twice—once in the last minute, 30-28; while the Uniteds and Binigs have beaten each other in overtime struggles—the Binigs winning once, 24-21, and the Uniteds taking the other, 32-30.

In the Monday division the champion Nifty Nickels play the Sokols at 8 o'clock and the St. Anns oppose the Overland Business Men at 9 o'clock.

FIRST PLACE AT STAKE WHEN STIX FIVE AND WOHL A. C. TEAM PLAY

This week's games in Division No. 2 of the Y. M. C. A. Industrial Basketball League will be played on Wednesday night and in Division No. 1 on Friday night. All games will be at St. James Hall, Blair and College avenues.

The feature game in Division No. 2 finds Stix-Baer-Fuller meeting Wohl A. C. for the lead. Each team has two victories in the second half race. Wohl A. C. won the first half championship. In the other game, McQuay Norris meets Missouri Pacific.

In Division No. 1, two close contests are expected as Wagner and Fonke renew their rivalry, meeting for the eighteenth time in league play. Fouke holds a slight edge with 10 victories to Wagner's eight. Since winning the first half title, the Wagner squad has suffered two defeats. Baker Shoe, present leader, meets International Shoe.

The leading scorers are: Jack Wohl, 110; Braudrich, Wagner, 86; Holtman, Fouke, 64; Toberman, Fouke, 62; Perlman, Baker Shoe, 61; R. Woods, International, 61; Dauber, International, 60; Barnett, Wagner, 58; Cohen, Bakers, 57; Brown, Fouke, 55.

T RACE

MICELIS TO OPPOSE MOLONEYS TODAY

MUNY TITLES AT STAKE IN FINAL GAMES

Teams of the Men's Municipal Basketball Association will play ninth and final round games this week at Sherman Park Community Center Monday and Tuesday.

While one of the three divisional titles has been decided—the Nifty Nickels Sandwich Shop having clinched honors in the Concord Division, it is possible for both the Forsom division race on Monday and the Central division on Tuesday to end in ties for first place and necessitate playoff games to determine the champion.

In the Monday division the Front Ranks play the Shamrocks at 8 o'clock and the Western Blow Pipes battle St. Francis Xavier at 9 o'clock. St. Francis can decide this race by winning, but Western can tie for the lead by scoring an upset and the Shamrocks can made it a three-day tie by also winning. St. Francis has beaten Western twice by four-point margins; the Shamrocks and Fronts split two close games.

The Tuesday schedule calls for the United Service Cars to oppose the Bill Binigs at 8 o'clock and the Underwood Typewriters to play the Y. M. H. A. at 9 o'clock. The Underwood can take this title by winning their game but a loss coupled with a United Service Car victory would cause a two-way tie. In previous meetings the Underwoods beat the "Y" twice—once in the last minute, 30-28; while the Uniteds and Binigs have beaten each other in overtime struggles—the Binigs winning once, 24-21, and the Uniteds taking the other, 32-30.

In the Monday division the champion Nifty Nickels play the Sokols at 8 o'clock and the St. Anns oppose the Overland Business Men at 9 o'clock.

FIRST PLACE AT STAKE WHEN STIX FIVE AND WOHL A. C. TEAM PLAY

This week's games in Division No. 2 of the Y. M. C. A. Industrial Basketball League will be played on Wednesday night and in Division No. 1 on Friday night. All games will be at St. James Hall, Blair and College avenues.

The feature game in Division No. 2 finds Stix-Baer-Fuller meeting Wohl A. C. for the lead. Each team has two victories in the second half race. Wohl A. C. won the first half championship. In the other game, McQuay Norris meets Missouri Pacific.

In Division No. 1, two close contests are expected as Wagner and Fonke renew their rivalry, meeting for the eighteenth time in league play. Fouke holds a slight edge with 10 victories to Wagner's eight. Since winning the first half title, the Wagner squad has suffered two defeats. Baker Shoe, present leader, meets International Shoe.

The leading scorers are: Jack Wohl, 110; Braudrich, Wagner, 86; Holtman, Fouke, 64; Toberman, Fouke, 62; Perlman, Baker Shoe, 62; R. Woods, International, 61; Dauber, International, 60; Barnett, Wagner, 58; Cohen, Bakers, 57; Brown, Fouke, 55.

North Central Wins Meet.

ITALIAN TEAM CAN APPROACH SOCCER LEAD

Schumachers to Play Nebcos and Germans Down to Meet Carondelet A. C. in Other Muny Contests.

By Dent McSkimming

The all-Italian football team called the Miceli club, which plays soccer with all the speed and abandon characteristic of the modern Romans, takes the center of the stage in Municipal soccer this afternoon. If the Miceli boys can defeat the Moloneys, club leaders in their group, two games at Fairground Park, they will approach within one point of the league lead and be in position to win the group title next Sunday when they oppose the comparatively weak Leo club.

This Fairground match, starting at 2 p. m., is the most promising of the day's program since group titles have been determined in four other cases while at Carondelet the pennant contenders, Schumachers and Germans, oppose the second division teams, Nebcos and Carondelet A. C., respectively. Inter-group playoffs start Feb. 19.

Miceli's Dangerous Club.

Lacking the individual finesse and the studied teamwork of some of the leading Muny teams, the Miceli club is nevertheless regarded as one of the most dangerous contenders. Bob Russell, manager of the smooth working R. H. Tait club (Group Four champions), said last night that the Micelis will be a hard team to handle if they reach the inter-park finals.

"They gave us a bruising battle a couple of weeks ago when they tied us, 1-1," said Russell. That tie marks the only time this season the Taits failed to win their game.

"Their wing men, (Angelo Barni and Jim Sorrentino) are the fastest we have seen all season and the forwards don't need much of a scoring opportunity to get goals. They are not a classy team but they make it pretty tough for their opponents. The Moloneys play better football but that doesn't always win."

Junior Elevens Play.

The younger generation of soccer players gets a spot on today's program when the Tony Hoelker club opposes the Sherman Boys Club at Fairground Park, Grounds Four at 10:30 this morning. Each team won a half-season championship of their group. The winner of the series starting today will enter the inter-park playoffs in the Junior Division of the Community Center Soccer League.

First Aid to Ducks.

ST. LOUIS was visited last week by Arthur M. Bartley, vice-president of More Game Birds in America, Inc., who is on a tour of the Midwest in behalf of the sister organization, Ducks Unlimited. The purpose of the visit was to confer with local leaders on current wildfowl problems and, incidentally, to raise more funds to finance the tremendous task undertaken in Canada, at the natural nesting grounds of all ducks and geese.

Ducks Unlimited started field work last year in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta with the co-operation of Dominion and provincial governments. The activities in Canada center on installation of dams across drainage ditches which have dried up great marshes in unsuccessful schemes to provide more wheat lands.

Control of crows, found to destroy nearly one-third of the duck nests, protection of duck nesting areas from Indian poachers and elimination of staggering duckling losses during summer drouths are other activities.

According to Bartley more than 168,000 acres of major duck breeding areas have been set aside as sanctuaries. Lands were provided practically without cost by governments.

This year, Ducks Limited, a nonprofit organization, has announced three planned projects of 200,000 acres each. Field men and clerical workers are being paid and it takes a large amount of money to transform desolate stretches of wasteland into suitable breeding grounds. Nearly $100,000 was devoted to the work last year and the 1939 budget is expected to exceed this figure.

Income Tax Payers Note.

Vice-President Bartley suggested that donors to Ducks Unlimited would be allowed to deduct such contributions from their Federal income tax and, probably from the Missouri tax. Although Missouri has not yet handed down a decision one way or another, Arkansas, New York and California State Tax Commissions have stated that these deductions would be allowed in their personal tax schedules.

Charles D. Lane of St. Louis is listed as chairman of a committee of representative Missouri sportsmen and business men who will enlist members and raise funds for the work of Ducks Unlimited. Percy J. Orthwein is secretary and Sidney Maestre is treasurer. Louis H. Egan of St. Louis is national president and Charles E. Michel, St. Louis, vice-president.

Live Geese Decoys in 1939?

From the views expressed by many sportsmen, including Congressmen as well as those from various wildlife agencies, it seems possible that a limited number of decoys will be allowed for 1939 goose shooting. Because of the ban on live decoys the past year many clubs had to close their doors, at great financial loss, and shooting was in general very poor. This was not in any way due to the scarcity of the Canadian goose because the bag limit was increased in 1938 over the '37 season.

Especially was the area around the Cape Cod section of Massachusetts hard hit; Missouri, Illinois, Oklahoma, Texas, Oregon and Washington also suffered. The loss of decoys amounted to almost giving up the sport, according to a brief submitted to the Committee on Conservation of Congress by Ducks Unlimited.

The most seriously affected district was around Cape Cod where there are countless small ponds lying among the sand dunes which do not in themselves attract the migrating honkers as they fly down the Atlantic coast. For this reason nearly all clubs had to close last year, many at a loss of equipment and property.

Quail Policy in Missouri.

The number of quail coveys a farm can support depend on adequate natural food cover and water. Quail for restocking cannot be planted on areas that lack these factors, the Missouri Conservation has stated in announcing its quail distribution policy for 1939.

Quail supplied by the Commission are intended only as breeding stock to be liberated on farms with suitable environments, where breeding stock has become so thoroughly depleted that the increase from natural propagation would be insufficient to establish a covey in each suitable location.

Requirements for distribution are summarized as follows:

"Suitable environment for quail as determined by food, cover and water.

"Breeding stock entirely depleted by weather conditions and other factors beyond the control of man.

"If depletion of breeding stock has occurred, resulting from controllable factors, the cause of depletion must be corrected as far as possible.

"Surveys of areas for which quail are sought will be conducted and co-operative agreements made between landowners, a local conservation organization and the Conservation Commission."

Wildlife Meeting.

The Wildlife Conservation Organization of Missouri will hold its next regular meeting Feb. 9, 8 p. m., at Gambrinus Hall, 3628 Wisconsin avenue. Ladies are invited.

M. O. Reischauer, secretary of this active group of sportsmen states that it is the aim of his organization to lift Missouri into the same class with Pennsylvania, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and other states whose residents are proud to invite non-residents to enjoy the excellent hunting and fishing.

New Code Being Drawn.

As a result of public hearings held by the Conservation Commission a new code is being prepared by officials. A condensed schedule of present conservation regulations will be distributed through the offices of the county clerks within the next two weeks. These will be in force until the new code can be completed.

The hearings were in line with the Conservation Commission's policy of consulting with all groups interested in wildlife conservation before making further regulations. In addition to public invitations notices were sent to 113 conservation groups, 114 county extension agents, 114 prosecuting attorneys, 23 fox hunters' associations, seven coon hunters' clubs and 11 other organizations.

The 12 regional hearings conducted throughout the State shows most interest lies in legislation for rabbits and fur bearers while methods of taking fish was also high on the list.

Woodchuck, Alias Groundhog.

A. R. Twichell, a field biologist for the Federal Aid Program recently completed an investigation for the Missouri Co-operative Wildlife Research Unit at Columbia. The most valuable feature of the woodchuck, so far as dollars and cents are concerned, lies in the fact that he is all-important to the State rabbit industry which reaches the volume of a half million dollars per year. His value comes as a willing digger of countless holes used as havens of refuge by the fleeing cottontails.

Twichell found the highest concentration of dens in Boone County in rocky soil along gullies and creek beds. Five dens which were excavated showed great uniformity in structure. The number of entrances varied from two to six. The total length of all the passageways in a den varied from 14 to 45 feet. Nests were made of leaves and grass.

Woodchucks do not venture far from their holes. The farthest one was spotted from his front door was a paced distance of 75 yards. Usually they were no more than 20 yards. Among the captive woodchucks now being studied the order of preference for wild foods was wild lettuce, white clover, red clover, grasses and sweet clover.

Twichell found the period from an hour before sunset to dusk is the most favorable for seeing the animals. While feeding, the woodchuck spends nearly half the time looking around. At times it "freezes" in position but Twichell never timed one holding one position for more than a minute before breaking, usually making for its hole.

The woodchuck has no legal status in Missouri. Hunters often use it as a target when trying out long range rifles; many consider the meat a delicacy. Probably, as in other states, if too many sharpshooters make trophies from the "groundhog" it will probably be placed on a protected basis with seasons and bag limits.

More Stamps Than Ducks.

Sportsmen in the United States and Alaska paid $11,348,006 for 6,860,010 hunting licenses in 1937, the latest year for which figures are available, according to the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey. Federal migratory-bird hunting stamps brought an additional $783,039 in the same period.

Hunting licenses have increased in number by nearly a million each year over the preceding year for the past four years. Federal duck stamp sales increased from 448,204 in 1935 to 603,623 in 1936 and to 783,039 in 1937.

Missouri issued 155,047 resident licenses, 814 non-resident and 16,469 duck stamps; $249,746 was realized from the licenses exclusive of the Federal duck stamps. Illinois issued 273,124 resident and 1015 nonresident permits, which grossed $361,390.75 and 51,333 duck stamps.

CALLS N.B.A. RANKING OF GALENTO SILLY

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Feb. 4. — Frank MacDonell, chairman of the Michigan Athletic Board of Control, described as "silly" tonight the National Boxing Association's recent ranking of Tony Galento as No. 1 contender for Joe Louis' heavyweight title, and imposed restrictions on future bouts of Galento here.

At the same time he barred from further competition in the State Natie Brown, veteran Washington (D. C.) boxer who dropped to the canvas 10 times before being counted out in the fourth round of a fight with the 234-pound Orange (N. J.) tavern keeper here last night.

"It was disgusting," said MacDonell. "Brown is all washed up and I don't believe that Galento can lick me."

The Boxing Commissioner, who says he weigh 128 pounds, explained Galento's status this way:

"Galento will have to win a fight from an outstanding fighter in some other state before I shall allow him to appear in Michigan again, and then it will be only against a top-notch opponent."

Effective Only in Michigan.

MacDonell's suspension of Brown is effective only in Michigan because the Athletic Board was suspended by the N. B. A. last Sept. 12 for refusing to recognize bans the Illinois Boxing Commission slapped on Jimmy Adamick, Midland (Mich.) heavyweight; Jack Trammell, Youngstown (O.) fighter; Promoter Jack Kearns, Thomas Walsh and James Brady, all of whom were associated in the management of Adamick, and James Buchanan, Trammell's manager. The men were suspended after Adamick knocked out Trammell in Chicago last June 8, the Illinois Commission terming the affair "unsatisfactory."

Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker, was the promoter of last night's contest. Walsh is matchmaker and aid of Kearns in his Detroit fistic ventures, although MacDonell ordered him barred from fighter's dressing rooms some time ago.

Investigation Demanded.

Until he met Roscoe Toles, Detroit Negro, here last fall, Adamick was the No. 1 drawing card for Kearns. Victim of a second-round knockout, Adamick suffered injuries from which he has not yet recovered.

Two members of the Michigan Legislature this week demanded an investigation of Adamick's career in the boxing world to determine whether "he had been sacrificed by gamblers."

COMMISSIONER TRYING TO MAKE GOAT OF TONY, JACOBS SAYS

By the Associated Press.

ORANGE, N. J., Feb. 4.—Tony Galento came back to his bar today in a bit of a fog as to why anyone should find fault with his fourth-round knockout of Natie Brown in Detroit last night.

While he served drinks to the townsfolk, he let his manager, Joe Jacobs, reply to the blast of Frank MacDonnell, chairman of the Michigan Athletic Board of Control.

"Regardless of what MacDonnell says, he can't knock Galento out of his No. 1 rating," said Jacobs, "because Galento knocks out everyone who gets in the ring with him. And as for boxing in Michigan, I wouldn't let Galento fight there again as long as MacDonell is commissioner."

Jacobs said that from what he had learned about politics in Michigan, he gathered that MacDonnell "is trying to hold his job and so is trying to make a goat out of Galento."

"After the fight, MacDonnell said everything was O K, and he ordered the pay-off," Jacobs said. "Now he comes up with this statement that Galento can't fight. Galento knocked out Brown in four rounds. Brown went 10 rounds with Joe Louis in the same ring. What does he want?"

PAUL WANER AND WES FERRELL IN GOLF FINAL

By the Associated Press.

LAKELAND, Fla., Feb. 4.—Batteries for tomorrow's golf game—Paul Waner, the slugging outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and Wesley Ferrell, pitcher for the New York Yankees.

They will play 36 holes of "blood and money" golf for the title in the annual baseball players' tournament.

It'll be for blood because Waner is defending the title he won last year at Saratoga and Ferrell, who won in 1937 and broke three clubs when he lost last year, is out to fan the lefthanded Pirate.

It'll be for money because the two are wagering a sizeable chunk of next season's pay on the outcome.

They both proved today that it'll be a good game of golf. Waner eliminated Paul Derringer, pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds, 3 and 2, while Ferrell beat Lloyd Brown, the big league veteran who now pitches for St. Paul of the American Association, 5 and 4.

Maplewood Five Beats Kirkwood

Maplewood High's basketball team rallied in the final four minutes of play to defeat Kirkwood, 19 to 17, last night and gained a tie with Normandy for second place in the Suburban Group standing. The Leafs and Vikings now have won five games and lost two each, while the leading Webster Groves quintet has won six and lost two.

Kirkwood led until four and one-half minutes of the final quarter had been played, but then Ross Nagel's field goal sent Maplewood into a 17-16 lead and Everett Sory put the game on ice with another goal. Ralph Temme made Kirkwood's only two points in the final period on free throws.

Dr. James A. Naismith, originator of basketball, watched the game and was introduced at the intermission.

New Deal Economist Blueprints 'Jobs For All' Plan He Believes To Be Sure Way Out of Depression

Mordecai Ezekiel, Adviser to Wallace, Presents Scheme for Industrial Expansion Subsidized by the Government.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.

A LEADING New Deal economist, Mordecai Ezekiel, has just published a detailed blueprint of a plan that he guarantees to be a cure for the depression and the complicating ills that have come along with it. What is more, he insists it is relatively painless and within the framework of present democratic institutions.

This far-reaching plan goes under the modest name of Industrial Expansion. Ezekiel would have the Federal Government underwrite a compulsory expansion of major American industries. Planning boards made up of representatives of industry, labor, consumers and Government would fix expansion quotas; and the Government would agree to buy up at a discounted price all goods under the quota not sold to the public. In its approach, the Ezekiel plan resembles the AAA, except that, as outlined by Ezekiel, it would be directed not at scarcity, but at abundance.

Ezekiel is economic adviser to Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace. His newest book is a chart of action that implements Wallace's own ideals for a saner society as expressed in a small volume he has just published called "Paths to Plenty" (National Home Library Foundation, Washington). Ezekiel has given his book the appealing title of "Jobs for All" (Alfred A. Knopf, Inc., New York). It gives in far greater and more practical detail the ideas expressed in a study published two years ago under the title "$2500 a Year."

Bill to Be Offered.

In the last session of Congress, Representative Jerry Voorhis (Dem.), California, introduced an Industrial Expansion bill incorporating Ezekiel's scheme, at least in part. Voorhis says that he plans to introduce this bill again in the present Congress but in somewhat more modified form. First he will seek more widespread support for it from labor and liberals. The measure as re-introduced probably will limit the compulsory features to fields in which monopolies dominate price and supply, according to Voorhis. It is in these fields, the California Congressman believes, that ordinary expansion is prevented.

"I wish such a bill were not necessary," Voorhis says. "I hope it will not be, but certainly it is vastly preferable to a long period of artificial scarcity.

"We have to realize that democracy must have some basis in economic security if it is to exist. No immediate action on the plan is contemplated now. But if another 1933 should come along, it would be good to have it ready."

Thomas R. Amlie, former Wisconsin Congressman, whose appointment to the Interstate Commerce Commission is under congressional fire, was a sponsor of the Voorhis Bill.

Of course, economists never agree, so it is important to record that a dissenting opinion has recently been put on file. In the January issue of Plan Age, published by the National Economic and Social Planning Association, Prof. Clair Wilcox of Swarthmore College challenges Ezekiel's claims. Industrial Expansion, Wilcox says, might very possibly restrict production and reduce the national income. He is skeptical of Ezekiel's claim that it would not tend to raise the cost of living, expressing his belief that costs and prices would inevitably be boosted.

How Scheme Would Work.

Ezekiel has supreme confidence that once Congress adopted the Industrial Expansion plan an administration could be set up to direct a planned expansion of business and industry on a nation-wide scale. While the quota system would be applied only to major branches of industry, omitting service and other minor trades where administrative problems are overwhelming, every field would shortly feel the stimulation of increased production, according to Ezekiel.

"Most important of all," he says, "programmed industrial operation would enable business to increase its level of operation until at length there were jobs for everyone capable of working. Each concern would know when it started upon its program of production for the season or the year that there was an assured market for what it was going to produce. Each concern could enlarge its productive plant gradually and continuously, knowing that there would be a steady and expanding market for the increased output it was preparing to produce. In place of the uncertain and faltering course which results from our present hit-or-miss conduct of business, there would be much steadier and surer progress toward fuller activity, larger output and more jobs and more pay."

Under the plan as outlined by Ezekiel, a central planning authority would be set up. This Industrial Expansion Administration would have the power to co-ordinate production in various fields. Thus it might be decided that industry should be expanded 14 per cent in one year over the level of the previous year, but because of varying production levels not all industry would be expanded to the same degree.

Further Details.

"Each major industry," Ezekiel writes, "would then figure out how much more product it could sell with a 14 per cent increase in the national income. This estimate would be worked out by each Industry Authority after investigation and discussion. In industries where rapid technical progress or full-volume operation made lower prices possible under the program, the effect of those reduced prices in further stimulating sales would also be allowed for in estimating the probable market.

"After each industry had worked out its figures they would be checked one against another. The increase in production under the cement program, for example, would be checked against the increases worked out for housing construction, road building and factory construction. The increase in each kind of goods to be sold to consumers would also be checked against what consumers would probably buy with their increased income. When these cross-checks showed gaps or inconsistencies between the different programs, modifications would have to be made in the preliminary industry estimates until they all fitted together, and added up to the proposed increase in national production and in national income."

Then, under certain restrictions, the Industry Authority, made up of representatives of owners, labor, government and consumers, would apportion the quota for the industry among individual firms. Ezekiel recognizes that to fix absolute quotas for each plant might freeze an industry, compelling each company to maintain its same relative position and preventing any newcomers in the field. He therefore suggests that a certain flexibility be allowed and that a company's quota be fixed at from 105 to 125 per cent of the previous year, the Government agreeing to buy up everything unsold up to the top figure at a discounted price.

'Ever-Normal Warehouse.'

This would in a sense, Ezekiel points out, be an "ever-normal warehouse," a complement to the "ever-normal granary" idea that is at the basis of Wallace's soil-conservation program. The author realizes that such a program implies great difficulties and the possibility of large Government expenditures. But he adds that this could not conceivably equal expenditures in recent years for relief and since industrial ex-

Theory of Bold Strategy Behind the Appointment Which Surprised Everyone, Including the One Who Got It—Without Much Hope, He Prepares for Grilling.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.

THOMAS R. AMLIE, the hulking, slow-spoken 41-year-old son of a Norwegian-American farm family, will have an opportunity next week to explain to a Senate committee his real beliefs about private property, Government ownership, and the various isms that divide the contemporary world.

The answers that he makes to a curious committee, for the benefit of an equally curious Senate and public, may well determine whether he is to serve a seven-year term on the Interstate Commerce Commission at an annual salary of $10,000.

The Amlie appointment was as surprising as anything that has come out of the White House in six years that have on the whole been pretty surprising. It cuts through the two-party system and recognizes a man who has consistently challenged both old parties for their conservatism and timidity. A third party, production for use rather than profit, immediate and drastic action to end unemployment—these fundamentals Amlie has preached over and over again during his political career.

Views a Matter of Record; Sympathizer With Underdog

Old-time Farmer-Laborites in Minnesota remember that when Col. Charles Lindbergh's father was proposed in party conclave as a candidate for the Senate, someone said, "Oh, he can't run, he's written a book." Amlie has written not only a book but pamphlets and numerous magazine articles and he has declared his philosophy in countless speeches. Never one to conceal his opinions in cautious or evasive language, Amlie has spoken his mind as freely as any man in Congress in recent years. His sympathies have always been with the underdog which explains perhaps why he has sponsored so many unpopular causes; and it is all on the record for anyone to read.

Having served three terms in Congress representing his district in Southeast Wisconsin as a Progressive, Amlie last autumn ran in the Progressive primary for the seat in the United States Senate then held by a Democrat, F. Ryan Duffy. His opponent was Herman L. Ekern, former State Attorney-General, a follower of the elder Bob La Follette, an old-timer in Progressive party ranks. Ekern was generally regarded as the La Follette candidate and a sharp split was apparent between moderate Progressives backing Ekern and the Amlie faction. The outcome of the campaign, which was marked by considerable bitterness, was so close that it was not until late in the day after the primary that final returns from rural counties made Ekern's victory certain.

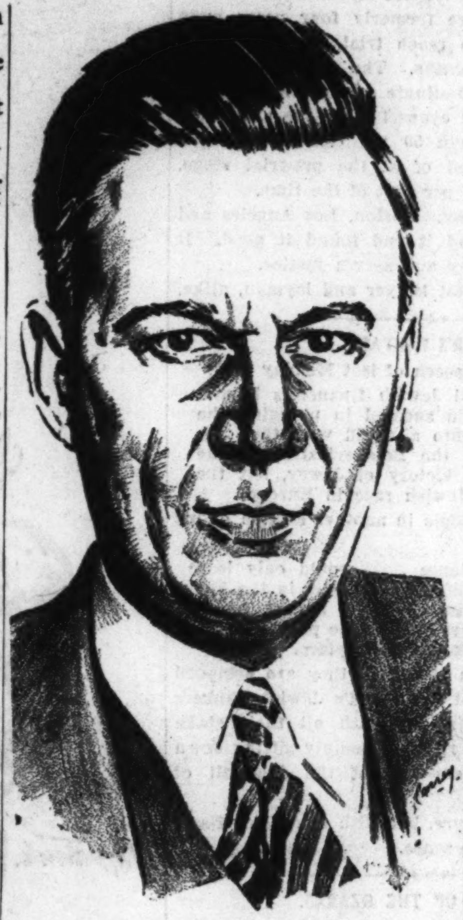
With this Amlie's public career seemed to be ended, certainly for the time being, but his friends in Congress, such as Jerry Voorhis of California, began to write to President Roosevelt urging him to find a place in the administration for Amlie. He was a keen lawyer, they argued, a student of economics, and, moreover, he had gone to bat for the administration during the close fight on the reorganization bill in the House last year.

A Big Surprise All-Round; Theory of Strategy Behind It

What they hoped was that a place could be found in, say, the legal division of TVA or the Farm Security Administration. They were utterly amazed when the President named Amlie to the Interstate Commerce Commission. Amlie says it was a pretty big surprise to him, too, although he had known, of course, that his friends were working to get him a job.

Conservative Democrats in the Senate are predicting privately that Amlie will not be confirmed. They say that already they have lined up sufficient votes against him. They are chuckling among themselves over the discomfiture this will cause the White House. But within the inner councils of the New Deal there is no apparent concern over a possible defeat since even such an eventuality, it is argued, can be fitted into the strategy behind the Amlie appointment.

It is a strategy, as outlined by members of the New Deal inner circle, as bold as any that Roosevelt has formulated. It goes along with the President's recent attack on the Federal Communications Commission—another expression of the President's deep mistrust of government by commission. Amlie, a skeptical, tough-minded, radical thinker, might be expected, the strategy goes, to stir up the commission, to ask a few pointed questions about the fundamentals of transportation.



THOMAS R. AMLIE

To make it clear, the New Dealers repeat one of the stories that Rexford Tugwell used to tell in justification of administration tactics.

A Gloucester herring fisherman was having very bad luck. Each time he got his catch into the boat most of the herring died, and out of sheer inertia and laziness, for he kept them in live tanks under favorable conditions. He tried putting in a few fresh caught herring seined up on the way back to port, but they simply settled down to the bottom and did no good in reviving the dying herring. Then he hit on the idea of dropping a big live catfish into every tank. And it worked wonders.

One Way to Put Commission Issue Squarely Up to People

Amlie is the catfish to be dropped into the stagnant pool of the I. C. C. If the Senate refuses to vote his confirmation, at least the issue will have been put squarely before the country. At the hearings on his appointment Amlie is expected to raise pointed questions as to just what are the qualifications of an I. C. C. member.

The President's contempt for government by Commission has deepened with his years in the White House. Commissions become interested solely in preserving their own prerogatives and privileges, their own network of patronage and favors. The result finally is stalemate and futility. Roosevelt's advisers place the blame for failure of the reorganization bill at the last session on lobbying by the I. C. C. and the Department of Agriculture, both bodies interested in keeping what they had. The Civil Aeronautics Authority, with its complicated system of checks and balances between administrator, authority and safety board, has already begun to wrangle.

But the President's particular contempt is reserved, according to his advisers, for the I. C. C. He blames that body for preventing the formulation of any railroad legislation on which all interests could agree. Instead of the complexity of unwieldy commissions, the President, according to his closest associates, would put all transportation and communication under a new cabinet officer who would be Secretary of Transportation and Communication. The administration, it is pointed out, would never consider Amlie for such a post. But as a catfish with a habit of asking embarrassing questions of bureaucratic herring he is ideal. It is not difficult to see a parallel in this with the appointment of Justice Hugo L. Black to the Supreme Court—the same motives—to stir up the animals and raise fundamental questions about the institution in question.

Amlie's sponsors have private doubts of his confirmation. From the Democratic organization in Wisconsin and from a coalition of Democrats and Republicans in the Wisconsin legislature has come a blast of opposition. Amlie is called a "Communist," a "Red," a "radical," and other bad names. The Senate has in the past shown a jealous regard for the I. C. C. Since 1920, when the membership of the Commission was increased to 11, five nominees have either been rejected by a Senate vote or have had their nominations withdrawn as a result of opposition.

Yet Amlie is seemingly undisturbed. All this week he has worked in a hideout on the fifth floor of the House office building preparing for his appearance before the committee, pawing like a placid bear through an accumulation of papers, pamphlets and magazines. His deliberate speech, marked by traces of a Scandinavian accent, is unhurried. He grins a little at the predicament that confronts him, with good humored irony.

"It's all here," he says, gesturing at the files of his writings and speeches, "and I wouldn't change any of it. Except perhaps with respect to one thing. I proposed a constitutional amendment that would remove all legal barriers standing in the way of government ownership and operation of utilities and major industries. It would simplify the business of acquiring utilities through the process of eminent domain.

Pragmatic New Dealer and Practical Politician

"It seemed to me at the time that this was the only logical step, but I see now that this was academic logic—it was what a college professor would do. I have come to believe that President Roosevelt's approach to the whole question of the Supreme Court and the Constitution was the correct one. It was the practical way to do it. The result—Supreme Court approval of New Deal measures—was achieved by this practical means. Of course, I was for the President's Supreme Court bill and spoke for it over the radio shortly after it was announced."

It is Amlie, the practical politician, who says this, a very different man from the earnest radical of three or four years ago. The transformation occurred under Roosevelt's influence. Amlie has become a pragmatic New Dealer, firmly convinced that Roosevelt must lead any national liberal party. And therefore he has never given any support to former Gov. Phillip F. La Follette's national third party movement.

He has traveled a long way from the North Dakota farm on which his parents, his mother Norwegian-born, his father of Norwegian descent, struggled for a living. In his thinking he has moved a considerable distance from the fiery opinions of the hot-headed young man who left the University of Minnesota in disgust at post-war persecution of Germans and so-called radicals on the faculty. He went as an organizer with Labor's Non-Partisan League in the Northwest. As a young man growing up working in the wheat fields and arguing politics with the migratory "wobblies," he had developed a strong political sense. His zeal plus an earthy good humor made him an excellent organizer.

But with the bright sun of prosperity in the 1920s, the Non-Partisan movement more or less evaporated. Amlie went to the University of Wisconsin law school, took a degree and then entered a law firm in Beloit. It was at the time "Young Bob" La Follette was making his first race for the Senate and Ku Klux Klan opposition had developed. Amlie persuaded the head of his firm, a Republican and a Catholic, to preside at a La Follette meeting by way of rebuking prejudices stirred by the Klan. The next day the firm's leading client, a manufacturer in the town, telephoned to say he was changing lawyers.

"I saw," says Amlie dryly, "that I probably wouldn't do the firm very much good."

Law Practice and Politics; Long Way From Dakota Farm.

He went to Elkhorn, a smaller town 40 miles from Milwaukee, and hung out his own shingle. His law practice, he says, was that of the average lawyer in such a community, with some large fees but mostly small ones. Taking an active part in politics and the life of the town, he became president of the local bar association and com-

Short-Cutting the Law's Delays; Pre-Trial Procedure and How It Works in Detroit and Elsewhere

Courts Exercise Their Inherent Power to Correct Time-Wasting Abuses Without Waiting for Special Legislation.

By SPENCER R. McCULLOCH

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 4.

DEVELOPMENT of common sense in the courts, cutting of red tape, elimination of trivial technicalities and curtailment of continuances are set forth in a survey of the progress of judicial reform in the United States undertaken by the American Judicature Society, which has gone on record in favor of pre-trial procedure and business management of the judiciary.

Findings of the survey were described to the Post-Dispatch today by Herbert L. Harley, secretary-treasurer of the society.

The society was organized 26 years ago to promote efficient administration of justice. It is made up of 1500 jurists and lawyers. Its bi-monthly journal goes to the 30,000 members of the American Bar Association. In effect, it is a national clearing house of information for bench and bar.

Theory and Practice.

Harley, a founder of the society and holder of the 1938 medal of the bar association for outstanding service, approaches the problem of judicial reform realistically. Ideally, he made it clear to the writer, the judiciary would be divorced from politics and from legislation designed to simplify and expedite administration; but since the theoretical goal is in the indeterminable future, it becomes necessary to work with the tools at hand and to examine innovations that may be readily instituted in any court, usually without benefit of legislation. It was on this premise that he based his observations, supported by data compiled by the society.

"Never before has there been such a public demand for the reform of our courts as today," he said, "for there is increasing criticism both of lawyers and judges. It comes in press comments, cartoons, radio jokes and and contemptuous remarks. It has become a major concern of the bar. The legal profession is waking up. It is advocating measures which met with only a passive response a few years ago."

He pointed out that public loss of confidence in the courts implies a departure from "the sheet anchor of our government" at a time when changing economic conditions and economic fear have developed a searching examination of every institution of the social and political system.

Even a casual visitor to many courts, he continued, must notice "a waste of time" and receive a bad general impression. In addition, competition at the bar has increased so that some lawyers take cases that ordinarily would not be handled at all. Further, certain types of defenses and bankruptcy suits, Harley thinks, contribute to the public reaction adverse to the courts.

Immediate Reform Possible.

Yet the courts have within themselves power to effect reforms, according to Harley. Judges must show some administrative as well as judicial ability; they must be willing to integrate their functions, surrender certain individual prerogatives for the sake of a central authority; and attorneys, for their part, must recognize their inherent responsibilities as officers of the court. Self-government of the courts along these lines, he observed, is increasing.

The principal development in judicial reform, Harley said, is the growing adoption of pre-trial procedure—a system simple in itself yet representing a revolutionary departure from custom. It cuts red tape, he said, ends court congestion—notorious in many communities—and makes for speedy justice in civil cases in terms the layman may understand.

Pre-trial procedure is primarily an analysis of a pending action to determine the precise question at issue, elimination of non-essential matters of proof and so shaping the case that it may be tried quickly and well.

It is a preview of a lawsuit. Several weeks before a case is reached the judge assigned to the pre-trial docket calls in the attorneys on both sides, finds out what the case is all about and strips it to its essentials. If there are pleadings to be made, they are passed on immediately or within a few days. If the issue turns solely on a point of law, the judge may rule on it on the spot. Special issues, such as a question on the statute of limitations may be disposed of then and there.

Informally, with the lawyers, the judge cuts to the heart of the case. Usually he asks if an agreement can be reached. In three out of five instances a settlement is made and so weeks of litigation are avoided. "Nuisance" suits are often detected at the outset and summarily disposed of.

Matters of Record.

Wearisome time-wasting witnesses called to prove such things as the width of a street, hospital records, automobile ownership, traffic ordinances, ownership of deeds and mortgages—in fact, all matters of record—is done away with. All such points are in stipulations agreed to in advance at the pre-trial hearing.

Usually "surprise" motions are eliminated, too. If the case finally does go to trial the issues and procedure already have been determined. Dilatory tactics, subterfuges and other expedients which some times work to defeat justice are out. The case is decided on its merits.

The judge who tries the case is guided by a summary of the pre-trial procedure prepared by the pre-trial judge and attached to the case file. In many instances jury trials are waived.

Pre-trial procedure, in the opinion of Edson R. Sunderland, widely known professor of law at the University of Michigan, who has collaborated with Harley in framing a set of rules for the procedure, "substituted an open business-like and efficient presentation of real issues for the traditional strategy of concealment and disguise. Its general adoption and use might do much to restore the confidence of the public in litigation as a desirable method of settling disputes."

The plan is in operation in Detroit, Boston, Los Angeles, Dallas and in smaller communities. Under the new United States District Court rules it may be invoked by United States District Judges. The American Bar Association, which has indorsed the procedure, accepted a report of its committee on pre-trial procedure that its introduction in the Federal courts means that "every attorney in the land is now face to face with the prospect of actively participating in a pre-trial hearing."

In Successful Operation.

Outstanding exemplification of the system is found in Detroit, which introduced it in 1932 with such success that the other cities followed suit. Courts in Detroit were so congested that it took four years for a case to get to trial.

Public clamor prompted the preparation of a court reform bill which would have created a presiding judge with arbitrary powers, including the direction and assignment of cases. The proposed legislation was not pushed when assurance was given the courts themselves would remedy the situation. The 18 circuit judges of Wayne County chose a presiding judge and voluntarily gave him certain powers; they put business administration methods into effect

Against Glorification of an Assassin.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

OFFICIALDOM looks askance at the tremendous toll that crime exacts in this country, and tables of criminal statistics are periodically released to the newspapers, to impress the populace with their staggering significance. Unfortunately, the vast majority of the populace is too busy being impressed by "Jesse James," the Technicolor saint, and other works which make heroes of history's villains. The latest of these is "The Man Who Killed Lincoln," by Philip Van Doren Stern.

From the frontispiece, with its more than suggestion of Fredric March, plus mustache, to the final dramatic exit, with the hero mouthing passages from "Macbeth," the reader is treated to a masterly depiction of the mental anguish and the physical suffering of a great, misunderstood, sincere patriot. Harried from pillar to post by the baying hounds of government and the ferrets of treasonable, ungrateful men for whom he had ventured, Booth is superb, even in defeat, as he cheats the hounds and the ferrets of their prey in one last magnificent gesture. He is pitiable in death as he softly calls for his mother. And all is surrounded with the aura of authenticity by a truly extensive bibliography.

Mr. Stern has accomplished his sympathetic study of John Wilkes Booth by the simple device of entering into the assassin's mind and reading the thoughts and the motives forever hidden there. In the midst of dangers he has nostalgic memories of home and mother.

But lurking in the background is the hint of insanity, the egocentric selfishness of a man not averse to involving sincere Southern patriots in a melodramatic, chauvinistic plot with which they were in all probability not in sympathy.

That the author has succeeded in painting in purple and gold the bloody portrait of the murderer of this nation's most beloved President is a tribute to his art. That he has prostituted his art on so ungracious a task is unfortunate.

For Uninterrupted Opera Programs.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MRS. E. MOSBY'S letter in the Post-Dispatch has spurred me to voice my own complaint against the interruption of the Metropolitan Opera by Station KFUO each Saturday afternoon. I agree with her in every particular.

It seems to me more good than harm would result from cutting down the time of such stations as KFUO in favor of such cultural or inspiring programs as those of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

That Crop of White Elephants.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I CONCUR in the interesting letter by Martin D. Larner regarding the building of additional white elephant apartment projects in St. Louis.

Demand for these projects is not the general public's, but purely promotional on the part of a comparatively few architects and others who, while making an individual profit, saddle the taxpayers with the responsibility of maintaining the white elephant investment. Would hardheaded mortgage investors or real estate men underwrite such a scheme? Could they obtain the confidence of mortgage buyers in such a venture? If not, why be impractical and take advantage of our own Government? Or is it old-fashioned and silly not to take advantage of our Government?

Fundamentally speaking, while you and I may not be running the Government personally, we are paying and will continue to pay plenty of taxes without bargaining for bigger and better white elephants.

Suggested Use for Fascist Bombers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IF all the powerful nations want to put their bombers, pursuit planes and airships into target practice, they should go to Chile. However, instead of dropping bombs, they might instead drop bundles of food, clothing and medical supplies.

The United States already has sent airplanes to Chile's aid. However, neither Germany nor Italy has followed our example. Perhaps this is their first slip in a determined campaign for Fascist trade supremacy in South America.

Comment From the Urban League.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MAY I express appreciation to your paper for the splendid day-by-day publicity which you have given the sharecroppers' plight in Southeast Missouri? Many consider this demonstration of hapless sharecroppers the beginning of the end of cotton tenancy in the South.

And may I thank you also for first sensing the courage of Lee Baker and taking the initiative in raising a fund to compensate him somewhat for the crisis through which he went and the courage he displayed?

JOHN T. CLARK,
Executive Secretary, Urban League.

A BILL TO RAISE LIVING COSTS.

If the so-called "fair-trade bill," which has been introduced in the State Senate, were given its right name, the title would read, "A bill to raise the living costs of the people of Missouri." The subtitle should read, "A bill to throttle competition and prevent the more efficient retailer from passing on his savings to the consumer."

With the people of Missouri threatened with legislation like this, Champ Clark must rest uneasy in his grave. As the result of his work in the Legislature in the '90s, Missouri has, with Texas, the best State anti-trust laws to be found in the Union.

The lobbyists for this bill are determined to profit from their mistakes in the last Legislature. In the last session, the bill passed the House, but was defeated in the Senate by an overwhelming majority. This time, the lobbyists started to work early and claim to have lined up nearly half the Senate before the bill was even introduced. They are following precisely the tactics which have been used to ram similar bills through the Legislatures of 44 other states.

This country has achieved its present standard of living by methods of mass production and distribution which allowed prices to fall as low as competition permits. This principle would be thrust aside by the McReynolds price-fixing bill, and each retailer would be told by the manufacturer at what price he could sell trademarked products.

A member of Congress who made an investigation found that toothpaste which sold for 13 cents a tube in states which had no price-fixing laws cost 20 cents in the states which have such laws. Due to the working of the price-fixing law in New York, citizens of that State must pay $3.25 for liquor which is available in Missouri at $2.60. There are a number of people who are not interested in the price of liquor, but they are interested in preventing corresponding rises in the price of scores of other articles which they do use.

President Roosevelt has pointed out with inescapable logic the fallacy of price-fixing legislation. State laws of this type were made possible by an amendment of the Federal anti-trust laws known as the Miller-Tydings bill. President Roosevelt was opposed to the measure, and it was finally passed at the close of a session of Congress as a rider on the District of Columbia tax bill. Because of this unfair tactic, the President had no choice but to sign the measure, but he took occasion to denounce it in these words:

> The present hazard of an undue advance in prices, with a resultant increase in the cost of living, makes it most untimely to legalize any competition or marketing practice calculated to facilitate increases in the cost of numerous and important articles which American householders and consumers generally buy.

The McReynolds bill is being presented to the public in the guise of a step to protect the independent retailer from chain-store competition. This is a distortion of the issue. If the chain store is to be viewed as an evil, the proper attack certainly is not to enact a law which raises prices or prevents the efficient retailer, whether independent or member of a chain, from selling goods to the public at as low a figure as possible.

Price-fixing is the symptom of a constricting economy. Recognition of price-fixing as one of the prime causes of the paradox of under-consumption in a land of potential plenty is the reason for the exhaustive and costly study now being made by the National Economic Committee.

We regret to see Senators of Mr. McReynolds' caliber lined up in favor of this measure. The strategy of committing legislators to a measure of such sweeping import before it has been brought out into public view creates the presumption that its sponsors knew it could not stand scrutiny.

This bill should be killed, and killed in the Senate, where it met its proper fate before.

THE NEW MORGAN PARTNERS.

Time was when a Morgan partnership was something of an accolade, the equivalent, say, of the heraldic Garter, and it still is a prized preferment. Three honorees have been named, and the announcement was made by the head of the famous banking house, J. Pierpont Morgan, himself.

Not since 1932 has this distinction been conferred. Seven long years, loaded to the gunwales with events, experiments, adventures and innovations never dreamed of before in Horatio's or anyone else's philosophy! The news may be assessed, we suppose, as evidence that the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. is not expecting institutions to topple, the present order to fold up, the capitalistic system to crash, democracy to dive off the pier.

The House of Morgan is manifestly counting on doing business at the same old stand for quite a while.

THE GOLDEN ART.

Some say it began in the beating of rhythms for tribal dances. There must be those who like to find its origin "in the elmwood and the oaken where Orpheus piped of old." That scholarly American mystic, the last Neo-Platonist, who sat intellectually and worshipfully at the feet of Plotinus, advanced a theological theory. Could the Rev. Dr. Kenneth Sylvan Guthrie have been right in defining music as "the audible God"?

Other arts may convincingly be rationalized. Literature, obviously, sprang from the exclusively human instinct for speech. Architecture arose from the almost exclusively human instinct for shelter. They are accepted as indispensable to the progress, yes, to the existence, of the race. But where is the utile instinct that gave us music? Peer and ponder as you will, you cannot find it. Music never grew a blade, turned a wheel, sewed a seam or shook a cocktail. And yet it has a capacity to move us more profoundly than Pindar's odes, Horatian alcaics or the prose of Cicero.

Music lights that Wordsworthian light that never was on land or sea. In some simple melody one breathes again the fragrance of old-fashioned roses, is transported to the sanctuary of dim yesterdays, is robed in memories of "longer ago than never at all, of farther away than nowhere." Music is the ladder to the fourth dimension.

And all this leads us, as we felt it would, into the presence of our Symphony Orchestra. Through 60 gay and troubled years it has been communicating its messages. Institution is a big word, but scarcely big enough. Our Symphony Orchestra is an integral element of our community life. It is one with our dawns and sunsets, high noons and swinging stars. In spiritual import it is brother to the Mississippi.

It is our privilege, fortunate citizens of St. Louis, to see that, like the river, our Symphony Orchestra "keeps rollin' along."

STREAMLINED JUSTICE.

The law's delay is as old as the law itself. It is with us today in full, tyrannical, costly, intolerable bloom. But a system has been devised and tested which really seems to be a solution. It is called pre-trial procedure. In movie idiom, it is a "preview of a lawsuit."

How it works and what it has done are told at length in this section of the Post-Dispatch. A pretrial Judge calls in opposing counsel and their clients, informally discusses the issue, frequently settles the question right there, but if not, strips it to its essentials and expedites the business of trial.

The plan has had its longest and best demonstration in Detroit. Where formerly four years were required for a case to reach trial, the period has been reduced to 10 months. The docket has been cut in half. Often a 10-minute consultation between the pre-trial Judge and counsel takes the place of a 10-day trial. More than 50 per cent of Detroit's civil cases are disposed of at the pre-trial stage. Jury trial is waived 65 per cent of the time.

The thing is spreading. Boston, Los Angeles and Dallas, Tex., have tried it and found it good. It saves time, saves money and serves justice.

This story will interest lawyer and layman, alike.

HITLER'S FANTASY.

Adolf Hitler in his speech of last Monday said:

> If the international Jewish financiers in and outside Europe should succeed in plunging the nations once more into a world war, then the result would not be the Bolshevization of the earth, and thus the victory of Jewry, but the annihilation of the Jewish race in Europe!

Hitler resumed the topic in another section of his address:

> Her (Japan's) collapse . . . would only lead to the certain triumph of Bolshevism in the Far East. Apart from international Jewry, which is desirous of this development, no people in the world can wish to see this take place.

If these words mean anything, they are designed to present a picture of the world's Jewish bankers and international financiers, with all their stake in preserving property rights, solemnly sitting down with Communist leaders to plot the downfall of capitalism everywhere.

It is a fearsome picture, but with one major flaw: It simply doesn't make sense.

THE WAG OF THE OZARKS.

A statesman from Miller County, Representative Fred Spearman, wants to abolish the State Conservation Commission, and put the business of slaughtering the birds of Missouri, and the fishes, too, back in the hands of the Legislature. In the tongue of Shakespeare, approximately, Mr. Spearman argued his cause eloquently before the Constitutional Amendments Committee of the House. As a stylist, the orator from Miller lacks the incisiveness of Senator Quinn, another redoubtable anti-conservationist, but Spearman has an entertaining racy-of-the-soil persiflage, and he preaches the gospel of political spoilsmanship with an itching candor and long-winded fluency.

What the speaker said was too diffuse and too unimportant to be summarized, but his audience must have been impressed, we should think, by the fact that here was an exhibitionist who ought to find a more appropriate use for his talents than the prosy duties of a law-maker. That such wit is being wasted on Jefferson City's desert air is unseemly.

A tailor-made solution is ready to hand. Miller County, as it just would happen, is in the Lake of the Ozarks country. Not a dozen farms away, the turreted palace of Union Electric's president muses in that symphony of wood and water. As court jester in the royal demesne, Spearman of Miller would be a honey.

Missourians have been put to shame by the Maori tribesmen of New Zealand who not so many years ago were inveterate cannibals. Dispatches tell how these natives last month exercised their recently won privilege of the secret ballot. Fruitless attempts have been made in Missouri for years to escape the stigma of being one of the four states in the Union without a secret ballot. Under Missouri's ancient system, an election official writes in the corner of each ballot a number which corresponds with a number opposite the voter's name in the poll book. When the ballots are counted, it is easy to learn who voted how, as many a ward-heeler can testify. The Maoris are to be congratulated for not having to suffer under the perversion of a fundamental principle of democracy.

A BONEHEAD FOR THE CITY PAYROLL?

John W. (Pat) Dunlavy wants his city job back, now that all the vote-fraud charges against him have been mumbo-jumboed out of court, and Mayor Dickmann has said he would receive consideration for reinstatement.

Turn back to Aug. 14, 1936. Then the Mayor, with considerable indignation, suspended Dunlavy from his $250-a-month post as chief examiner of the Drivers' License Bureau. The Post-Dispatch account gave Mr. Dickmann's reactions:

> "That bonehead!" the Mayor added. "Imagine a thing like that! Why, he had a good job!"
> A reporter suggested that Dunlavy had not been convicted.
> "There are three witnesses against him, aren't there?" the Mayor asked.

The three witnesses, trustworthy business men, appeared at various times in the long-drawn legal process and described Dunlavy's crooked voting. Their testimony was not successfully contradicted. The flimsiest of technicalities, however, came to Dunlavy's rescue and he escaped a two-year penitentiary term which a jury imposed upon him.

Is the man the Mayor called a bonehead in 1936 now to be considered seriously by the same Mayor for a place at the public crib?

STUDY IN CONTRADICTION.

Judges Must Be Honest

A corrupt jurist usually gets by until his conduct becomes intolerable, says capital observer, commenting on Manton case; lawyers hesitate to initiate investigation unless they have a hard and fast case, as they dislike to practice before a hostile court; writer suggests a law to "deprive Judges of pockets in their official robes."

George Morris, Washington Correspondent, in the Memphis Commercial Appeal.

NOTHING inspires public resentment and indignation so much as a crooked Judge. Justice in this country is typified by a blindfolded woman holding aloft evenly balanced scales. Selection of a woman, long before there were woman Judges, was in the days when women were emblematic of purity. The blindfold conveyed the idea that Justice looks neither right nor left and is not swayed by the type or character of litigants. Nothing, the impression was conveyed, should distract from the purpose to deal even-handed justice.

It was a beautiful theory. So firmly was it implanted in public consciousness that the figure is still symbolic. Many such statues adorn courthouses throughout the country, which go under the name of "temples of justice."

Judges do not divest themselves of personality when they don judicial robes. Even the Supreme Court of the United States typifies the atmosphere, age and environment under which the Justices grew up. The same is true with other courts. One Judge is severe. Another is lenient. One is a stickler for law and observes the technicalities. Another refuses to permit technicalities to obstruct truth.

Judges come to be known for their peculiarities and idiosyncrasies. Smart lawyers present a case one way before one Judge and another way before another Judge. Some Judges are indulgent, dilatory and let lawyers wrangle and witnesses wander far afield. Others require them to hew to the line. It is a matter of judicial temperament and no reflection on one Judge because he does not proceed as some other Judge. Nobody expects all Judges to be alike, except in one respect. Every Judge is expected to be honest.

Federal Judges are more highly paid than Judges of state courts. Their tenure is for life or good behavior. Retirement is provided so that no Federal Judge may be vexed by the haunting fear of the future. His is a lifetime job, with good pay and permanent security.

Few lawyers would decline the tender of a judgeship. It carries with it a high and distinguished honor. Life, property and security are vested in the courts. There is no higher responsibility. The position carries with it respect and confidence which may be lost only by judicial conduct that proves the Judge unworthy.

In this situation, it is amazing that judicial conduct is such that Congress is constantly having evidence laid before it suggesting cause for impeachment. Many complaints do not reach the public. Some are based on suspicion, which may be well founded, but insufficient to call for a committee recommendation for impeachment. Lawyers do not act promptly when they believe a Judge corrupt. They know unless they get the Judge, he is almost certain to get them.

As a result, leaders at the bar are last to swing into action against a corrupt Judge. They must be satisfied that they have a hard and fast case and will win. Federal Judges have tremendous power and some do not hesitate to use it against lawyers they do not like. Clients do not care to take cases before a court hostile to their counsel.

The result is that some Judges get by for a long time. The situation is somewhat similar to public sympathy for so-called "first offenders." A "first offender" is one who is convicted for the first time, although he may have been guilty of a series of crimes for which he was not apprehended. A corrupt Judge usually gets by for a long time before his conduct becomes intolerable.

A startling case now attracting attention of the country is that of Judge Manton, highest ranking Judge of the United States, except for the Supreme Court. He is alleged to have borrowed in excess of $400,000 from persons with cases pending before his court. In each instance, the litigant who lent money to the Judge won his case. Judge Manton several times cast the deciding vote.

In the present revulsion against the Judge, nobody has thought of the litigants who were denied a fair hearing and were denied justice and equality before the law. Are the records closed? Are cases in which Judge Manton may have been influenced by monetary considerations subject to reopening? If Judge Manton, as alleged, was influenced in his decision by loans from known litigants, how many decisions were similarly influenced by loans which have not been revealed? Faith in the courts has had a tremendous shock.

Representatives Hatton Sumners of Dallas and Walter Chandler of Memphis propose to require Federal Judges to divest themselves of all private business relations. They would protect litigants against corrupt Judges and protect weak Judges against temptation. It is a commentary on Federal Judges that such steps are necessary, but the suggestion has met with hearty indorsement.

If there is a crooked Judge here and there, nothing is wrong in depriving all Judges of pockets in their judicial robes.

Democracy and Taxes

From the New York World-Telegram.

WHEN State Comptroller Morris S. Tremaine says, "The heaviest tax is the tax you don't see" and that "the hidden tax is the easy way of fooling the poorer people," he stresses a taxation truth none the less fundamental because it happens to be perennially and persistently disregarded.

By the same token, the people who pay only taxes they don't see are the people who feel least responsibility for a tax-supported government when they go to the polls.

Taxation without representation is rightly abhorred. But representation without taxation consciously borne by voters interested in what government gives them for their money is also out of line with democracy.

Sound taxation logic points to preponderance of direct, plainly recognized taxes, based on ability to pay, but aimed to spread as wide as the elective franchise.

A voter cares most about government when he is aware of a real personal stake in government. In a democracy, such awareness is assumed in all voters.

Money, Taxes and Jobs

Books in the News

AN encouraging by-product of the depression has been the greater interest which business men have shown in the complex workings of our economic machinery and their increasing readiness to acknowledge the necessity of social controls.

This attitude characterizes the approach of four responsible Eastern business men in the study they have made of the nation's employment, monetary and taxation problems under the title, "Toward Full Employment" (Whittlesey House, New York). Although the authors, Henry S. Dennison, Lincoln Filene, Ralph E. Flanders and Morris E. Leeds, strongly espouse social objectives which parallel those of the New Deal, they are not entirely in sympathy with the technique used in trying to realize them.

They present a systematic plan for deficit financing to create employment in times of depression. They differentiate clearly between the principles underlying public and private spending, but are not, as some of our more "advanced" economists are today, reconciled to a permanently unbalanced budget. They favor an exhaustive study in times of prosperity of useful projects, noncompetitive with private industry, which can be got under way as soon as a recession starts to prevent a business collapse.

As to monetary policy, they stress the importance of maintaining a relatively high velocity of credit money. These writers attribute the 1937 recession partly to the drastic deflationary policy of the Federal Reserve Board, but hope that lessons have been learned which will be valuable in applying financial controls in the future.

In so far as there has been a strike of capital, it has not been the work of large corporations or even the so-called captains of industry, but of thousands of smaller capitalists who have been frightened out of the investment market by certain policies as to labor, taxation, competition and regulation which have weakened business confidence. The analysis of what business confidence consists of and the explanation of its necessity in a profit economy is calm, clear and impressive.

In the field of taxation, great importance is attached to protecting consuming power from being depleted. Although it is urged that taxation be studied from the functional rather than an emotional social angle, a point is made for greater use of income taxes than at present. Sales taxes are approved only as a last resort, and processing taxes are even more severely censured. It is suggested that a billion dollars of taxation might be safely transferred from the "consuming to the saving stream."

Any broadening of the base of income taxation should be accompanied by an equivalent cut in existing taxes on consumption. A strong case is made for a Federal-state tax commission to unify our present anarchic tax systems. The authors concentrate on constructive suggestions, but one wishes they would have elaborated more fully some of the points of criticism at which they barely hint.

PLAN TO IMPROVE EVIDENCE RULES IN STATE COURTS

Recommendations to Be Submitted to Local Bar Association Tomorrow, Stress Three Points.

OPEN DISCUSSION TO PRECEDE VOTE

Report to Be Made Lists 32 Subjects Which National Committee Presented Last Summer.

Recommendation that efforts to improve the rules of evidence in Missouri begin with concentration on three rules concerning testimony of experts and admissibility of evidence in litigation involving a person who has died is contained in a report to be submitted at a special meeting of the St. Louis Bar Association tomorrow night at Hotel Chase by its Committee on Improvements in the Law of Evidence.

The report makes it clear, however, that the committee wants an expression from the association as to whether its recommedations or some other program should be adopted. After the report is read, there will be open discussion preceding a vote of members.

Listed in the report are 32 subjects about which the American Bar Association's Committee on Evidence made recommendations last summer. Of these, 12 recommendations concerning court procedure and matters affecting witnesses are classed as auxiliary measures in the report, which says that although improvements are desirable, their initiation appears to be up to the bench rather than the bar.

The other 20 subjects, including the three on which the local committee makes recommendations, are classed as proposals affecting specific rules of evidence.

Three Rules Emphasized.

Discussing the three rules the report recommends the so-called dead man's statute, modeled on a Connecticut law, which has been adopted, with minor changes, in eight states since it was approved in 1927 by the Legal Research Committee, working under auspices of the Commonwealth Fund.

This statute permits the survivor to testify in litigation in which a party has died, but also makes admissible declarations or memoranda of the deceased, generally barred as hearsay. Thus it covers two of the three rules, those concerning the survivor's testimony and a deceased person's hearsay.

As to the rule on expert testimony the report cites the Uniform Expert Testimony Act as reported in the 1937 proceedings of the Uniform Laws Conference. It empowers courts to appoint expert witnesses in civil and criminal cases, provides for conferences and joint reports by experts and covers methods of fixing and paying experts' fees. Under this measure the court fixes the fees, which are paid by the county in criminal cases and assessed equally against the litigants in civil cases.

Some Rules Praised.

Referring to other rules among the 20 listed, the report says the situation in Missouri is not bad as to the rules on business records, evidence in trials without juries and the marital testimony privilege. Missouri courts have been fairly liberal in construing the opinion rule, the report goes on, adding that the State is considered one of the most advanced in the matter of discovery before trial.

The report is signed by Charles E. Cullen, chairman, of the Washington University School of Law, and Carl C. Wheaton of the St. Louis University School of Law. The third member, Ernest A. Green, died recently.

4,354,000,000-BUSHEL WHEAT CROP FOR WORLD ESTIMATED

Department of Agriculture Puts It Half Billion Bushels Above That of Last Year.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. — The Department of Agriculture estimated the 1938-39 world wheat crop today at 4,354,000,000 bushels.

This compared with 3,686,000,000 bushels last year and 3,549,000,000 annually during the five years 1925-29. Included were all important producing countries except Russia and China for which no estimates were available.

The department said a substantial increase over last year's production was reported from practically all important producing countries except Australia, Italy, Spain and the North African countries. The greatest percentage increase occurred in Canada, where the crop of 350,000,000 bushels was almost double that of the preceding year.

The United States crop of 931,000,000 bushels showed an increase of 6 per cent.

Among important European producing countries the greatest increase occurred in France, where the crop 345,000,000 bushels was an increase of 34 per cent.

The German crop, estimated at 215,000,000 bushels, was 20 per cent larger, while the Italian crop of 297,000,000 bushels was approximately the same as that of last year.

SYMPHONY CAMPAIGN WILL OPEN TUESDAY

300 Workers of Women's Division to Meet at Luncheon; $150,000 Sought.

A campaign to raise $151,000 for the sixtieth anniversary maintenance fund of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will open Tuesday with a luncheon meeting of 300 workers of the women's division at Hotel Chase. The drive will continue through Feb. 21.

As a preliminary, the orchestra will present an hour's broadcast at 7 o'clock this evening, playing at Municipal Auditorium. Persons attending the second "Music of Our Time" concert, starting at 4 o'clock, will be permitted to remain for the radio program.

The orchestra's operating cost for 1939-40 will be $265,000, including salaries of 87 musicians and conductor, artists' fees, rent, stage hands, programs and general overhead. The estimated income will be $150,000, derived from ticket sales, program advertising and returns from the Board of Education for high school concerts.

Contributions totaling at least $115,000 must be obtained to pay operating expenses and in addition there is a $36,000 deficit from depression years when the orchestra maintained high standard programs despite curtailed income. It is operating within its budget this year and this policy will be followed in the future, it was said.

"The orchestra's importance in the community equals that of the schools and other civic institutions," Clifford Greve Jr., general campaign chairman, said in a statement yesterday. "Therefore prices must be kept at their present minimum so the general public can enjoy the orchestra. To achieve this, generous friends must contribute to the maintenance fund."

ROOSEVELT SEES MEXICAN ENVOY ON OIL LAND SEIZURE

Matter Still Between Companies and Cardenas, Not Between Governments, Ambassador Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. — President Roosevelt, in a 45 minute conference with Mexican Ambassador Francisco Castillo Najera and Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles today went into the controversy created by Mexico's expropriation last March of the properties of United States oil companies.

The Ambassador said general aspects of various problems pending between the two countries were considered but declared none of the alternatives for settlement of the oil dispute was discussed. He said his Government was still waiting for representatives of the companies to present their case to the Mexican authorities.

"The matter is still between the oil companies and the Mexican Government—not between the two governments" the Ambassador said.

President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico has publicly invited the oil companies to discuss their views with him on the possibilities of settling the controversy.

Ezekiel Gives Scheme to "Cure" The Depression

pansion would soon obviate any large-scale relief need, the gain, as the author sees it, is obvious.

The assumption throughout most of the book is that voluntary co-operation can be obtained from industry, but if any major industry refused to co-operate in preparing a program, then the Industrial Expansion Administration would prepare a program for that industry, and, under the terms of the law, require the industry to follow it. Concerns refusing to co-operate under the program established in an industry would be required to pay the processing tax that might be imposed on all business, but they would get back no refunds, Ezekiel writes. Or possibly firms refusing to co-operate would be denied a license to do business in interstate commerce.

"Great power would thus be placed in the hands of the Government administrative agency to secure the co-operation of concerns that might stand out against the general decision of the country that industrial production and employment should be expanded. It is necessary for some such positive powers to be provided if some concerns are not to wreck any national program. This is shown by previous experience. At the same time, this previous experience indicates that where the necessary powers are provided, big concerns will work with Government agencies very gracefully.

How Ezekiel Figures.

This, says the author, is the way the plan would affect a cement plant after three years of the Industrial Expansion program operating at 80 per cent:

	Before Industrial Expansion	Under Industrial Expansion
Cement production	400,000 bbls.	1,600,000 bbls.
Per cent of capacity operated	20	80
Output per worker per year	2955 bbls	5810 bbls
Workers and salaried employes (full time)	135	275
Average pay per year per employe	$1200	$1800
Selling price per barrel of cement	$1.50	$1.35

The skeptical economist, Prof. Wilcox, raises numerous objections to the plan and particularly to serious administrative obstacles that he believes would be inevitable. The cost of administering such a program might well be prohibitive, he says. Each administrative decision could be appealed to the courts and litigation would involve interminable delays.

"It would be cheaper and simpler to let producers set their prices where they chose," says Prof. Wilcox. "Not price fixing, but curtailment of output would be the method employed.

"In a plan which threatens to restrict production and reduce the national income they serve but to make a bad matter worse," Wilcox says of the administrative difficulties such a plan would, in his opinion, encounter.

Ezekiel Has No Doubt.

Throughout Ezekiel's book there is no hint of doubt. He points out that critics have said that the plan might lead, through excessive powers conferred on a central planning authority, to Fascism but he insists that in its essentials it is a voluntary plan based on co-operative action. He adds, moreover, that the Roosevelt administration is already doing on a very small scale something similar to the Industrial Expansion proposal through the Surplus Commodities Corporation which buys up agricultural commodities that glut the market and distributes them to families on relief.

The immediate job, of course, if Industrial Expansion is ever to be anything more than an economist's bright idea, rests with legislators such as Voorhis. To put over in Congress such a far-reaching program would require tremendous pressure from a wide variety of pressure groups. Until such pressure is prepared through intensive work, Industrial Expansion will remain an interesting brain child.

CONSERVATION GROUP DEFENDS NEW BOARD

Missouri Federation Opposes Interference With Non-Partisan System.

Opposition to any legislation which would hamper the State's new Conservation Commission is expressed in a resolution adopted by the board of directors of the Conservation Federation of Missouri at a meeting at Jefferson City Friday night.

The directors declare that any movement to repeal Proposition No. 4, voted in 1936 to place administration of the fish and game department under non-partisan control, "would be a backward step and would jeopardize the future of Missouri's wildlife program." Specific mention of the pending Quinn bill for repeal of State conservation laws is not made in the resolution.

After stating the proposition was voted overwhelmingly because of the "continued destruction of Missouri's wildlife resources over a period of years," the resolution sets forth some of the accomplishments under the amendment.

It adds that the program has been recognized by such Federal agencies as the Forest Service, Bureau of Biological Survey, Soil Conservation Service and the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Attention is called also to the current Biological Survey allotment of $20,000 and the proposed allotment of $66,000 for the next year.

The resolution warns that gifts from private sources, including $100,000 in cash and 2600 acres of land, were made specifically in recognition of adoption of the amendment and contingent on its continuance. Parts of the commission's program described in the resolution include recognition of the rights of farmers to control use of their lands and provision of scientific services to landowners.

The federation, with chapters in most of the counties in the State, has a membership of about 10,000.

PENSIONS FOR ALL ABOVE 60 ARGUED IN HOUSE HEARING

General Welfare Association Advocate Tells Group It Wouldn't Cost Government Cent.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The House Ways and Means Committee heard the General Welfare Federation's plan for $30 to $60 pensions for the aged advocated today as a means of eliminating all unemployment.

Arthur L. Johnson, executive secretary of the federation and formerly an official of the rival Townsend old age pension organization, told the committee, too, that it would not cost the Government a cent.

The plan proposes that pensions be financed by a 2 per cent gross income tax. Johnson said this would permit giving every one more than 60 years of age a pension, estimating at the same time that the annual cost would range from $2,880,000,000 to $7,200,000,000, depending on the number of beneficiaries and the size of the pensions.

Representative Cooper (Dem.), Tennessee, commented that the figuring was "haywire," and that, by Johnson's own figures, the Federal tax burden would be doubled.

"On the contrary," said Johnson, "it won't cost the Federal Government a cent. This system carries its own freight."

Out of the Pockets.

"But it comes out of the pockets of the people," insisted Cooper.

"You mean you've got a program that will help everybody and not cost anybody a cent," snapped Cooper.

Johnson replied that Cooper was guilty of "fallacious reasoning," asserting the Congressman ignored the fact that the plan contemplates repeal of present payroll taxes as well as a multitude of state and local taxes for the poor and aged.

Dr. Francis E. Townsend, founder of the pension movement bearing his name, was at the hearing, and heard Johnson accuse him of "using the nickels and dimes of the poor" to fight President Roosevelt's Supreme Court plans instead of for revision of the old age pension laws.

As a "Wisp of Straw."

Earlier, Johnson said he had quit the Townsend organization because Townsend had said he was holding out the hope of $200 monthly pensions to the aged as a "wisp of straw that the cow will follow but never reach."

Townsend would not comment to reporters on Johnson's testimony.

Representative Reed (Rep.), New York, denounced as "absolutely cruel" what he said was the practice of some pension plan advocates of telling their followers they intended to get specific pension bills adopted at this session of Congress. He drew an admission from Johnson that the program would "raise prices some."

The federation was organized in July, 1937. Johnson told reporters it was a "non-profit corporation," which to date had issued 295 charters to units throughout the country. Membership for these chartered units, Johnson said, varies from 10 or 20 in small communities to 800 in the big cities. The revenues, Johnson said, are derived from contributions.

Amlie, Roosevelt's Man For the I. C. C., and Why

mander of the American Legion post.

As a graduate student he had studied economics for a short time under some of the brilliant professors at the University of Wisconsin. When the prosperity of the '20s blew up with a loud bang, he became increasingly interested in the whys and wherefores of the American economic system.

In 1930 he was elected to Congress for the first time as a Progressive Republican. He became a Technocrat, fascinated by the hope that Howard Scott's system seemed to hold out.

Defeated for re-election in the Democratic sweep of 1932, Amlie was returned to Congress again in 1934. In the House during these years he was uncompromising in his criticism of both old parties. Neither one, said this outspoken Technocrat, could solve the fundamental ills of our society. Speaking in the House in August, 1935, he credited Roosevelt with good intentions but declared that virtually every single New Deal measure had "tended to make conditions worse" because "the essence of the 'New Deal' is to create an artificial scarcity, holding production down to the end that prices may be kept up."

Denunciation of Democrats.

Excoriating the Republicans for their "Bourbonism," he went on to denounce the Democrats:

"As far as the Democratic party is concerned, the situation is not materially different. Two-thirds of the Democratic Representatives in the United States Congress are just as conservative as are the Republicans. The Democratic party, despite the fact that it may be controlled by liberals in a few states, is nevertheless controlled in a national sense by the reactionary plantation-owning element in the South and the corrupt political machines in the large Northern cities.

"Despite the reputed liberalism of the Democratic party in certain states, there is actually less chance of liberalizing the party nationally than there has ever been. This is because the Democratic party is today the greatest vested interest in the country. It happens to be in power at a time when political power is more important than it has been since 1860. The present Congress is the first 10 billion dollar peace-time Congress in history. The party in political power has the control of the expenditure of this vast sum."

"The old order is breaking down," Amlie concluded, "and must be replaced by an economic system which will substitute planning for chaos, service for profit and abundance for poverty."

Attacked by New Masses.

It was what he preached in and out of Congress. In 1935 he took part in forming the American Commonwealth Political Federation, which looked to a new national party alignment. Its aims and principles were strictly democratic, within the framework of the American Constitution, and Communists were barred. As a result the Communist weekly, the New Masses, bitterly attacked the federation and Amlie as its leader. He was called, with something like a sneer, "an American radical." Since then on other occasions Communists have attacked this American radical. In view of this Amlie is riled by efforts to pin the Communist label on him.

That happened when he was running for re-election in the 1936 campaign. His Republican opponent was Stephen Bolles, editor of the Janesville Gazette. Bolles raised the Communist cry. In his literature he referred to the New Masses article on Amlie. But by changing the caption from "Congressman Amlie Sees Red," as it was in the magazine, to "Communist Amlie Sees Red," it was made to appear that the New Masses looked with favor on the Wisconsin Congressman. (Bolles says now that this was a typographical error.) Despite these attacks Amlie was re-elected.

In the next two years he came over more and more to the New Deal line. When the President's reorganization bill was up in the House, Amlie worked very hard to get the Progressive-Farmer Labor delegation behind it. But the Progressives particularly were annoyed with the administration; dairy prices and reciprocal trade treaties with dairy countries had not a little to do with their attitude. Furthermore the President was talking economy in relief and in the industrial districts of Wisconsin thousands were unemployed. When the vote came, Amlie was the only Progressive to go with the President. This loyal vote on an issue close to the President's heart was also a large factor in Amlie's selection for an important job.

Senate Race; Spanish Issue.

It is doubtful if he could have been returned to Congress from his old district last autumn. That large doubt is one reason why he ran for the Senate. He had antagonized many persons over the Spanish issue by signing a cablegram of greeting to the Parliament of the Loyalist Government and when there were numerous protests he replied by sending out thousands of letters warning of possible danger to minorities, both religious and racial, which might arise in this country.

Last autumn Amlie's old foe, Bolles, ran for Congress and got as many votes as the Progressive and Republican candidate combined. When Amlie's appointment to the Interstate Commerce Commission was sent to the Senate, Bolles was one of the first to respond with the familiar charge of Red and Communist. Democrats in Wisconsin, who prior to Roosevelt were a minority on the fringe of the Progressive-Old Line Republican fight, were particularly incensed.

Amlie, perhaps even more than the LaFollettes, had been regarded as an enemy. For years former Senator F. Ryan Duffy has collected material that he hoped to use on the Progressive in some future campaign. The first witness at Monday's hearing probably will be William H. Shenners Jr., executive secretary of the Democratic State Central Committee. Shenners wired to Senator Johnson (Dem.), Colorado, named chairman of the subcommittee, that will consider the appointment, asking for time.

So both sides are going over the record. Amlie's book, "The Forgotten Man's Handbook," in which he gives answers to 500 political and economic questions, is being carefully studied. So are the articles that Amlie has written for Common Sense, a magazine published by liberals of the type of Prof. Charles Beard, the historian.

No One Seems Hopeful, But—

No one seems very hopeful of Amlie's confirmation. Senator Wheeler (Dem.), Montana, chairman of the Senate's Interstate Commerce Committee, might possibly bring it about by aggressive support but he has indicated he will take no active stand on the issue. The big transportation unions in the American Railroad Brotherhoods might put it over but there is conflict within the Brotherhoods and little prospect of any unified action on the appointment.

Amlie himself seems ready to accept the outcome philosophically. Outwardly at least his Nordic calm appears unruffled. He can, he says, always go back to Elkhorn. And if there is a defeat, administration advisers are prepared to console themselves with the splash that the appointment itself has made.

Even though the tough catfish may not be allowed to make his home in the pool with the inert herring, they say, a ripple of interest has been stirred and no one can predict where that may end.

Amlie to Be First Witness, Chairman Johnson Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Thomas R. Amlie will be the first witness when his nomination to the Interstate Commerce Commission is discussed before a Senate subcommittee Monday, Chairman Johnson (Dem.), Colorado, said today.

He will be followed by W. D. Carroll, chairman of the Wisconsin Democratic State Central Committee, and Luther M. Walter and Maurice Fitzsimmons, members of the Wisconsin Legislature.

Others scheduled to appear before the hearing ends include Judge H. A. Soffer of the Adolescent Court of Brooklyn, Robert C. Fulbright, Houston, Tex., attorney, W. H. Shenners, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Democratic State Central Committee, and Benjamin Marsh, executive secretary of the people's lobby.

DU PONT HEAD OFFERS WAY TO CREATE WORK

Declares Wise Tax Laws Would Release Idle Venture Capital.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Manufacturers and capitalists were advised today by Lammot du Pont, president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., that "courageous investment of venture capital" under attractive legislation would lead to solution of the unemployment problem and to new prosperity in the United States.

He referred to his company's expenditures for scientific research and invention, saying: "For many years the company's consistent adherence to this policy has produced healthy growth and new jobs.

"It is believed, therefore, that adoption of a similar policy by industry as a whole would be an important contribution towards a solution of the nation's unemployment problem.

"In addition to establishment of new industries, changes must be effected in old industries aimed at further reducing wastes and costs. This is a task that involves replacement of billions of dollars worth of worn-out or obsolete equipment with more efficient tools of production.

Quotes Brookings Institution.

"In 1936 the Brookings Institution estimated that between 25 and 30 billions of dollars would be required to make up the deficiency in durable goods alone that had accumulated to that date, largely because of postponed repairs and replacements. According to the same authority, this tremendous task, still undone, would supply jobs to approximately 3,000,000 of the unemployed for a period of five years, and the entire employment resources of the nation would be strained if all parts of the productive machinery were restored to normal efficiency and the pre-depression trend of production were resumed.

"As never before, the industrial structure of the nation needs enterprise and constructive investment of venture capital—the capital that owners are willing to risk on new developments and new enterprises, be the risks what they may—but such capital is hesitant because the prospective return is not worth the hazard. . . .

Possible Uses of Capital.

"Under wise tax laws and carefully considered regulatory legislation, idle capital would be released for the purposes for which it is so urgently required—to rebuild obsolescent plants, establish new plants and encourage much-needed developments that would make possible lower costs to the consumer and thus a wider distribution of industry's benefits, particularly through increased employment. . . .

"Venture capital and employment go hand in hand. Impair or frighten the first and the latter is directly and importantly reduced.

"More capital—venture capital that blazes new trails but is distinct from credit, which shies from venture—always has been essential for business progress. Such capital can be obtained only out of surplus, the income not consumed by current needs, and from the savings of people who can afford the delays and possible losses of experimentation."

Stock List Recoups Some of Lost Ground but on Smallest Volume Of Trading Since Mid-September

Covering by Shorts and Certain Amount of Selective Investment Buying Factors—Average Up 2.41 for Week.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The stock market recouped some lost ground this week, but the rallies which pushed prices substantially higher were accomplished on the smallest volume of transactions since the middle of last September.

Absence of speculative buying, pending Premier Mussolini's speech before the Fascist Grand Council tonight, was given as a reason for the market's lethargy. Covering by shorts following last week's downturn, and a certain amount of selective investment buying were responsible to a large degree for the upturn, it was said.

Market leaders ended the week on an upward slant in today's brief session.

Virtually all groups participated in the resumption of the recovery push, with gain running to 2 or more points at the best. A little profit taking at the close reduced top marks in most cases.

The Associated Press average of 60 stock was up .4 of a point at 50.4. On the week this composite showed a net gain of 2.3 points, its best performance since the week ending Oct. 8. The comeback followed four consecutive weekly declines.

The Dow-Jones average of 65 stocks was .53 of a point higher for the day and 2.41 points higher for the week at 48.72.

Volume picked up a bit on the forward swing, with transfers for the two hours totaling 486,160 shares against 582,530 a week ago. The week's turnover, however, was the smallest since the period ending Sept. 10, amounting roughly to 4,000,000 shares compared with some 7,000,000 in the preceding week.

Weekend Favorites.

Among the day's favored issues were Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Safeway Stores, J. I. Case, Glenn Martin, Sperry, North American, Public Service of New Jersey, American Smelting, Westinghouse, du Pont, Eastman Kodak, U. S. Gypsum and Santa Fe.

Secondary bonds were given a lift. Both sterling and the French franc were unchanged in terms of the dollar. American stocks advanced at Amsterdam, the only large overseas market open at the weekend.

The Washington furore over the administration's international policies was hardly calculated to stimulate Wall street sentiment, but the hope was expressed the latest flare-up might result in a beneficial clarification of the situation. The European scene apparently was a neutral factor, marketwise.

Steels were aided by forecasts mill operations next week would at least hold even with the current week. Motors found support on an opinion voiced in this industry that the 1,000,000-unit output for the current quarter previously estimated was now assured. Aircrafts were propped by advices Great Britain would purchase 250 warplanes in America in addition to 400 already ordered.

Day's 15 Most Active Stocks.

Sales, closing, price and net change of the 15 most active stocks:

Colorado Gas & Electric 19,800, 8¼, up ¼; Loft 12,400, 9⅜, down ½; North American Aviation 12,000, 17⅞, up ⅞; Consolidated Edison 9700, 33¼, down ¼; North American Co. 8700, 24⅞, up ¼; U. S. Steel 8400, 59⅛, up ⅛; Coty 8200, 5⅛, up ⅛; American Power & Light 7800, 6½, unchanged; General Electric 6600, 40¼, up ½; Bethlehem Steel 6500, 68, up 1¼; Montgomery Ward 6400, 49⅞, up ½; General Motors, 5900, 46¾, up ⅛; Anaconda 5800, 29, up ⅜; Chrysler 5500, 75⅛, up 1; United Corporation 5300, 3⅜, unchanged.

Some of the industrial groups, including steels and motors, which suffered most in the prior period, were in the van of the recovery. Aircrafts regained some of their losses and the utilities were most active on the upside. Rails, favorites in previous January trading, were more or less ignored, but managed to achieve small advances.

Carriers Disappoint.

Some were disappointed in the action of the carrier shares, inasmuch as plans for legislation for railroad relief are being pushed in Washington and first estimates of January business showed it well ahead of a year ago.

Utilities were in demand as efforts to settle the differences between the administration and power companies were carried on. The Supreme Court's decision in the TVA case caused a temporary setback, but the shares bobbed to the front again when it became plain the constitutional issues at stake had not been touched.

The bond market displayed quiet strength, especially in the United States Treasury section, where some brand new highs were reached and pretty well maintained. Utility and rail loans, especially the latter, went ahead, and there were some nice gains in the foreign list. The low yield division regained virtually all the terrain lost last week.

Week's Bond Offerings.

Especially gratifying to bond men was the success of the two big new financing issues of the week, the first in more than a month, approximately $105,000,000 in debentures and preferred stock of North American Co., and a $30,000,000 issue by the City of New York, which was disposed of a terms quite favorable to the municipality. Underwriters said the North American loan was quickly disposed of to dealers and institutions.

In foreign exchange markets The Netherlands guilder picked up about half its losses of the preceding week, and the French franc and pound sterling moved narrowly.

Slight gains predominated among commodity futures, with rubber, cocoa, hides, silk and Santos coffee higher, while cottonseed oil and the domestic sugar contract faltered.

Spot commodities, likewise tended upward. Higher were rubber, eggs, cocoa, coffee, hogs, wheat, oats, wool, silk and lead. On the downside were hides, flour, lard, corn, rye and cotton cloth, the latter to about the lowest figure of the recession.

Industrial Activity Down.

Industrial activity declined for the fourth consecutive week, with the Associated Press index standing at 89.1 per cent of the 1929-30 average against 90.3 the preceding week and 70.2 a year ago. Most of the components, except electric output, which was up contra-seasonally, were down in the seasonally weighted average.

The rate of steel mill operations rose more slightly than usual this time of year from 51.2 per cent of capacity to 52.8 per cent. Residential building dropped off, cotton textile mills slowed down considerably and railroad freight car loadings, while they advanced, showed a less than seasonal recovery. Movement of coal, due to the cold snap, was largely responsible for what increase there was.

The blizzard that hit the Middle West was held to blame for a heavy falling off in automobile production.

COMMODITY PRICE INDEX UP IN WEEK

Gains Among Farm Staples More Than Offset Declines in Industrial Raw Materials.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. — Commodity prices edged ahead this week, with gains among farm staples more than offsetting declines in industrial raw materials.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 important wholesale commodities advanced to 66.27 per cent of the 1926 average from 66.21 the week before and compared with 71.73 last year.

Narrow price changes have been the rule in recent months. There has been no week-to-week change running more than a full point in the index since August, when agricultural products fell heavily. The measure continued to fluctuate between 66 and 67, the range that has bounded price movements since last June.

Farm Staples Climb.

Grains were mixed, advances in wheat and oats being balanced by easing corn and rye quotations. Cotton and hogs pointed upward.

Farm staples climbed to within a fraction of the best levels since mid-summer as a result of this move. Prospects for increasing demand by the time the next crops arrive at market are generally considered to have been a potent factor in the recent improvement.

Industrial staples, on the other hand, have pointed downward for several weeks, reacting unfavorably to reports plants were easing operating schedules somewhat more than expected.

Cotton cloth dropped to the low point for the recession established last summer. Several times prices have shown a tendency to pull up from this level, only to react each time as demand dwindled. Other textiles, however, including silk and wool, moved up fractionally.

Hides and turpentine tumbled, while rubber, bituminous coal and lead picked up slightly.

Market-basket items continued their slide into new low ground for more than four years, declines in heavily-weighted flour and lard more than balancing upturns in eggs, cocoa and coffee.

What Index Shows.

The index, with its components based on 1926 as 100, compared as follows:

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY INDEX DOWN TO 89.1

Declines for Fourth Consecutive Week—High in December 94.0 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Industrial activity declined for the fourth consecutive time this year during the latest week, according to recent statistics.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index dipped to the lowest level since November, to 89.1 per cent of the 1929-30 average. This compared with 90.3 the previous week and 70.2 a year ago.

Although holding substantially above the low levels prevailing at the pit of the slump early in 1938, operations have receded from the high established early in December of 94.0.

Steel mill activity was the only major group measured by this index to show a sizable gain this week, although electric power output improved slightly against seasonal expectancies.

Automobile assemblies, on the other hand, were sharply lower. This was reported to reflect largely unusually severe weather conditions in major producing centers, however.

Residential building also dropped, for the second consecutive period. This marks the first time since recovery got under way last spring that home construction has receded for two weeks running.

Freight carloadings held up well because of a heavy increase in coal movement. Miscellaneous loadings, the principal industrial classification, continued the downward trend of recent weeks.

Cotton manufacturing slumped for the fourth week, after allowance for seasonal factors, to the lowest point since October.

The adjusted index, based on 1929-30 as 100, and its components compared as follows:

	Latest Week.	Prev. Week.	Yr. Ago.

NETHERLANDS GUILDER RISES FROM SLUMP

Market Starts Pickup of Lost Ground on Hitler's Reference to Holland in Speech.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The Netherlands guilder moved up sharply this week, recovering a part of the preceding period's severe slump.

Bearing down on the currency had been the general European political uncertainty and an exodus of gold from Amsterdam.

But the Dutch money suddenly shot upward Monday and closed with a gain of .36 of a cent in terms of the dollar as German Chancellor Hitler, in an outline of political and territorial aims, said Germany had no designs on Holland. The bulk of the Monday gains was retained throughout the week.

The British pound sterling, French franc, belga and Swiss franc in the period moved unevenly, with changes small.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank for the week ended Friday reported $24,998,000 gold had been engaged abroad for shipment here, of which $21,270,000 was engaged in Engalnd and $3,728,000 in Holland.

In the preceding week, $13,658,000 gold was engaged abroad for shipment to this country.

The Netherlands guilder took an upward turn in terms of the dollar today, picking up the thread of Monday's sharp rally.

While short covering by operators who had expected the Dutch money to decline further was prominently mentioned in banking quarters as a factor for an advance of .08 of a cent, it was also pointed out that the recent rise in the price of raw rubber would bring more money to Dutch rubber interests and a consequent increase in demand for guilders.

Sterling and the French franc remained unchanged, while the belga and Swiss franc were a shade up.

The Federal Reserve Bank reported the engagement of $732,000 in gold in Holland and $125,000 in England for shipment here.

LATE COVERING MOVEMENT STRENGTHENS OLD COTTON

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—A late covering movement by trade interests today strengthened old crop cotton futures. Final prices were 1 point lower to 3 higher.

Traders on the whole refused to take a definite market position until the 1939 Washington crop program develops into plans more tangible than present hopes and rumors.

Early bargaining in today's session represented trade buying in March and May and selling in October and December by spot houses and New Orleans dealers. Bombay transferred near accounts forward.

Later many operators caught a little of the buying mood apparent in security markets. Demand, according to many cotton analysts, was based chiefly on expectations mill activity in January will show a sizeable increase in offtake per day over the preceding month.

Expanding spindle activity, it was pointed out, however, would come in the face of discouraging cloth sales. Worth Street textile turnover last week was estimated at around 25 per cent of current production.

General rains through the cotton belt followed heavy precipitation early in the week.

COMMODITY MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Dealers in world-traded commodities for future delivery played their hands closely with an eye cocked on 1939 crop legislation possibilities in Washington.

On the plus side at New York included rubber, hides, copper, cocoa, lead, wool tops and cottonseed oil. World and domestic sugar, Straits tin and Santos and Rio coffee slipped a trifle.

LEAD PRICE REBOUND A FEATURE OF WEEK

Price of Export Copper Also Advances During Same Period.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—An advance in the price of export copper and a rebound in the domestic lead quotation cheered American metal producers last week.

Especially encouraging to metal men was the advance in export copper to a high for the week of 10.30 cents a pound from the opening of 10.075. It closed the week at 10.23 cents, nearer the normal relationship between export and domestic copper but still a spread of a cent or so from the home quotation.

The advance was accompanied by a sharp spurt in buying by foreign cartel customers, the peak day's tonnage topping 7000.

Domestic copper remained at 11¼ cents, with consumer inquiry still sluggish.

Substantial sales accompanied a 10-point boost in lead to 4.85 cents a pound. A recovery in London lead had raised the parity with New York above the point where imports were a threat.

Zinc remained at 4.50 cents East St. Louis.

Steel operations stepped up a little further. Railroads helped the week's business with additional rail orders and January business on the whole proved better than December. No. 1 steel scrap sold at Pittsburgh in a range of $15.50@15.75 a ton.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Trade covering in domestic sugar futures today offset additional liquidation in the near months and some Cuban hedging in the distants. Buying for trade and refiner accounts supported a steadier tone and at the close prices were unchanged to 1 higher.

Switching on an active scale dominated world sugar futures today. Steadiness in London was the main factor. Final prices were unchanged to 1 higher.

Duty free raws were slightly lower on the sale of Puerto Ricos at 2.75. Cubas were nominally steady at 2.85 on a duty paid basis, although reported available at 2.80. Refined held in a range of 4.20-4.30.

LEAD PRICE REBOUND A FEATURE OF WEEK

Price of Export Copper Also Advances During Same Period.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—An advance in the price of export copper and a rebound in the domestic lead quotation cheered American metal producers last week.

Especially encouraging to metal men was the advance in export copper to a high for the week of 10.30 cents a pound from the opening of 10.075. It closed the week at 10.23 cents, nearer the normal relationship between export and domestic copper but still a spread of a cent or so from the home quotation.

The advance was accompanied by a sharp spurt in buying by foreign cartel customers, the peak day's tonnage topping 7000.

Domestic copper remained at 11¼ cents, with consumer inquiry still sluggish.

Substantial sales accompanied a 10-point boost in lead to 4.85 cents a pound. A recovery in London lead had raised the parity with New York above the point where imports were a threat.

Zinc remained at 4.50 cents East St. Louis.

Steel operations stepped up a little further. Railroads helped the week's business with additional rail orders and January business on the whole proved better than December. No. 1 steel scrap sold at Pittsburgh in a range of $15.50@15.75 a ton.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Trade covering in domestic sugar futures today offset additional liquidation in the near months and some Cuban hedging in the distants. Buying for trade and refiner accounts supported a steadier tone and at the close prices were unchanged to 1 higher.

Switching on an active scale dominated world sugar futures today. Steadiness in London was the main factor. Final prices were unchanged to 1 higher.

Duty free raws were slightly lower on the sale of Puerto Ricos at 2.75. Cubas were nominally steady at 2.85 on a duty paid basis, although reported available at 2.80. Refined held in a range of 4.20-4.30.

STOCK EXCHANGE 1938 NET LOSS WAS $1,548,417

Total Income $1,829,000 Below That of Preceding Year.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The New York Stock Exchange and its affiliated companies, suffered a net loss for 1938 of $1,548,417, exclusive of $332,000 in initiation fees, its annual financial report disclosed today.

This compared with a net loss in 1937 of $140,476.

The report states that adjustment of building valuation and reserves thereupon reduced the members' equity representing the interest in the exchange of all members by $546,394. Total income was less than that of 1937 by $1,829,000, the outstanding decreases being in stock clearing corporation charges of $622,000 and in listing fees of $955,000. This was accounted for by a falling off in business.

Expenses for the year were reduced $420,000 under the 1937 figure.

CORN PRICES AT LOWEST LEVEL SINCE DECEMBER

Wheat Closes Unchanged to 1-4c Lower With Lower Than Expected Liverpool Price an Influence.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—Corn futures fell as much as ⅝ cents today to the lowest levels since late last December. Weakness at Buenos Aires and lack of export demand contributed to the downturn.

Selling in the corn market here followed commission house offerings but there was some absorption at 50 cents for May contracts. The Liverpool corn futures market, which reported some pressure from nearby Argentine parcels, closed ¼ lower and Buenos Aires finished ½ to ⅝ down.

The wheat market, influenced by lower than expected Liverpool quotations, weakness in corn and forecasts for precipitation in the domestic southwest was slightly lower, closing unchanged to ¼ off compared with yesterday's finish, May 68⅜@½c, July 68⅝c. Corn closed ¼@⅜ off, May 49⅞@50c, July 51c; oats unchanged to ⅛ off, May 28⅜c; soybeans ⅝ off, May 79¾c; rye unchanged to ¼ off, May 46⅛c; lard unchanged to 5 cents lower.

Trade observers, commenting upon lack of export demand for corn, pointed out that while U. S. corn for nearby shipment is offered 4 cents under Argentine in Liverpool, Canadian and Russian barley is available at from 12½ to 17½ cents respectively under U. S. corn. Traders said, too, that corn prices in the interior have moved up rather sharply since the middle of November, largely reflecting sealing of the grain. The average farm price of corn in the U. S. during that time has gained 5 cents on Chicago May, as has the price in Iowa. The Commodity Credit Corporation, meanwhile, reported that loans under the 1938-39 corn loan program through February 2 were made on 131,833,393 bushels, an increase of 15,844,200 bushels for the week.

The Liverpool wheat market, due ¼ lower to ⅛ higher, closed ¼@⅜ off, prices easing on a slow demand for cash wheat and expectation of large world shipments next week.

Two cargoes of American Pacific hard winter wheat were reported sold to Vladivostok, Eastern Russia, but foreign inquiry generally continued light. Rotterdam wheat futures closed ⅛ up to ¼ off and Buenos Aires unchanged.

Little was done in the oats and rye markets and prices were slightly lower with corn and wheat. Action of grains tended to ease the lard market.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Feb. 4.—Wheat prices were lower in world markets today.

Liverpool wheat closed ¼@½d lower after opening unchanged to ⅛d off.

Winnipeg wheat began ⅛@¼c lower and closed net unchanged to ⅛c lower.

Argentine wheat and corn opened unchanged and wheat closed unchanged, but corn finished ⅞@1⅜c lower.

Local wheat receipts, which were 15,000 bu., compared with 40,500 a week ago and 33,000 a year ago, included 7 cars local and 3 through. Corn receipts, which were 28,500 bu., compared with 25,500 a week ago and 67,500 a year ago, included 17 cars local and 2 through. Oats receipts, which were 10,000 bu., compared with 10,000 a week ago and 36,000 a year ago, included 4 cars local and 1 through.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

In the cash grain market Saturday wheat was steady to ½c lower. Offerings of soft wheat were small and met a fair demand. Trading basis was unchanged. Corn was ¼@½c lower. Demand was slow and some of the light supply was carried over. Elevator and outside order buyers showed the interest. Premiums were unchanged to ½c lower, with No. 1 yellow selling ⅛c under the May delivery and No. 2 yellow ¼@½c below. Oats were nominally unchanged. Inquiry was good, but buyers and sellers were apart and no trades were reported.

SHARP RECOVERIES IN BOND LIST LAST WEEK

Domestic Demand Lifts Prices as Foreign Selling Ceases.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The bond market moved sharply higher during the week in a lusty recovery from the preceding week's slump.

With a cessation of dumping of American securities by frightened European investors seeking cash, a consequence of foreign political unsettlement, domestic demand lifted quotations on a broad front.

All divisions of the list joined in the forward movement, with secondary rails and utilities in the van. The industrials generally marked up lesser gains.

Foreign dollar bonds also spurted forward, reflecting an easing of tension over political events in Europe, at least temporarily.

United States Government issues, which had turned a bit soft in the preceding week's general decline, rebounded with vigor, some Treasuries touching new highs for a year or longer.

High-grade low-yield issues generally advanced along with the Federals, turning in cumulative gains on the week.

Capital markets during the period witnessed the first big piece of new financing of the new year. Underwriters quickly sold at public offering a total of $70,000,000 serial debentures, bearing 3½ to 4 per cent interest, and $34,829,000 of 5¾ per cent preferred stock of North American Co., a utility holding company.

Small buying orders were enough to keep the rise in the market going today.

Some utility and rail issues—the center of the demand—extended previous gains a point or more as traders bought in groups which led the January decline.

International Hydro Electric 6s ran up nearly 2 to 79, expanding the improvement they have registered since the parent company, International Paper & Power announced a few days ago a plan for segregation of the paper and power properties.

Up a point or more were Alleghany 5s of 1950, stamped; Great Northern 4s; Northern Pacific 4s of 1997 and Nickel Plate 4½s.

American & Foreign Power 5s added another point to the previous gains, ending at 53½.

The week-end gains helped make it one of the best weeks the market has had in some time.

Transactions were only $3,327,700, face value, against $5,526,000 a week ago. The Associated Press average price of 20 rails for the day advanced .3 to 59.2, making a rise of nearly a full point in the last three sessions.

U. S. Treasury and most foreign loans were mixed in a narrow market. Belgium 6s were marked up a point.

BOND NOTES.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 4. — Erie Railroad trustees sought authority today to pay interest and sinking fund installments on series A extended bonds of its subsidiary, New York, Lake Erie & Western Coal and Railroad Co. Interest installments of $20,763 on $755,000 in series A bonds fell due on May 1 and Nov. 1, 1938, while a sinking fund payment of $12,637 became due March 1, 1938. None of these payments has been made, the petition to Federal Court states.

The horse market was affected adversely by bad weather and prices sagged to the lowest point in several weeks. Orders are reported for good mares and southern material.

Buyers were here for big cheap mules and this class held about steady. The same was true of good qualitied mules of all kinds, including cotton offerings.

Short-Cutting the Law's Delays

and evolved the pre-trial procedure with the result that today it does not take four years to reach trial in Wayne County. Cases go to trial in less than ten months and the average time is decreasing. The docket has been cut by half. Length of trials has been reduced. A 10-minute consultation between pre-trial judge and two opposing attorneys often takes the place of a 10-day trial. More than 50 per cent of civil cases filed are disposed of at the pre-trial stage. Jury trial is waived 65 per cent of the time.

Improving Year by Year.

The 1937 report of the Judicial Council of Michigan states that results in Detroit become "more striking every year." In 1935, out of 4965 cases ready for trial, 2018, or 40.6 per cent, were disposed of at the pre-trial hearing. In 1936, 49.5 per cent were settled there, and in 1937, out of 5789 cases ready for trial, 3189, or 55.1 per cent, were ended without trial.

An example of how pre-trial procedure snips red tape is the case of a man injured in an automobile accident who sues the owner of the car. Evidence includes the medical record kept while the man was in the hospital. Under regular court procedure, the custodian of the hospital records would be summoned and questioned at length as to his name, age and occupation, and finally allowed to produce and identify the record. Similar time-wasting rigamarole would follow with the person to whom the bill was paid, the engineer who mapped the accident scene, the photographer who took a picture of it.

In pre-trial the same evidential matter requires only a few seconds. The plaintiff's counsel shows the Judge his client's hospital record and attests it is genuine, the defense attorney says he is satisfied of its genuineness, and the Judge marks it in evidence. It is not necessary to produce the keeper of the records. The other points are handled with like dispatch.

Typical Points Settled.

Ascertaining the facts before trial expedites procedure. Typical questions put by a Detroit trial Judge to two opposing attorneys were:

"Is there any question of measurements in this case? Very well, you will go to the city engineer's office together and get the detailed measurements.

"Any physical examination required? You will get a certificate from the hospital doctor.

"Any question as to stop lights? Then go to the Traffic Bureau and get a certificate as to the light at the time of the accident.

"Can you stipulate the reasonableness of hospital bills and repair bills? Or the state of the weather? Are there any other facts that can be stipulated? If not, I will set this down a week from today and hold the files."

Depositions of witnesses to an accident may be taken while their memories are fresh, obviating the haziness bound to develop after some delay pending trial. In some instances a notary named by the Court may take them.

Varied claims come before the pre-trial court. One claim of $750,000 for faulty construction of a sewer, which would have taken three or four weeks to hear, was settled in a brief pre-trial when counsel agreed to a proposal of the Judge that the trial be held before him, aided by two engineer friends of the court. It was held outside of regular court hours.

While pre-trial hearings are not arbitrations, the Judge habitually asks attorneys if there is a possibility of settlement. Frequently his advice helps bring contestants to an agreement. Litigants may participate in the informal conferences. They may talk freely with the Judge about their chances if the case should go to trial.

Mostly Smaller Cases.

Most of the cases settled at the pre-trial stage do not involve more than $2000 but occasionally settlements are made representing as much as $20,000. A recent Detroit case, involving a $15,000 claim which would have taken two weeks to try, was settled for $5500 at a two-hour pre-trial conference. In another case, the Judge saw that three litigants had each suffered losses in a joint venture and that all anyone could hope to get out of a trial would be a moral victory. At his suggestion the case was dismissed voluntarily.

Illuminating testimony was given at a Michigan legislative committee hearing in 1934 by counsel for a large Detroit insurance company. He said less than 15 per cent of his cases reaching the pre-trial docket were ultimately tried. Amounts paid in individual cases, he testified, were a little larger than previously, due to the elimination of delay and the greater chance of availability of witnesses. Before the system was adopted there was scant incentive for an insurance company to settle a case promptly for time was likely to favor the defendant. Now, with assurance of prompt trials, there is less reason for withholding early settlement at a fair figure.

The report of the Bar Association's committee, which noted the testimony at the legislative hearing, points out that the pre-trial system is beneficial to both sides. Of 18 large casualty companies, it found, the Detroit company had the smallest number of pending suits per $100,000 of earned premium. Its percentage of such suits was only six as compared with 13.1 for the group of 18 companies. As a result its reserve for pending litigation were less than half the amount set aside by the others.

Results in Boston.

So successful was the Detroit innovation that a similar plan was adopted in Suffolk County, Massachusetts, which embraces Boston, on Sept. 1, 1935. It is now being extended to other counties at the request of local bars and it is contemplated that it may be introduced in several counties in New York. It was instituted recently in an Ohio community and is under consideration in Florida.

Under the Boston system, automobile accidents and other cases involving motor vehicles are referred to an auditor appointed by the court. He hears evidence, makes findings of fact and finds either for the plaintiff or the defendant. He makes a written report to the court. The report is prima facie evidence should a jury trial be sought. Very few cases reach a jury.

In Suffolk County pre-trial agreements of counsel are usually obtained in suits against municipalities because of highway defects, public liability cases, insurance cases, suits involving notes and contracts. Counsel agree, for example, that certain highways are public, on ownership of premises where an accident occurred, genuineness of a signature on a note, payments on it, and whether the signer of a contract had authority to do so. These and other such stipulations save a lot of time at the outset.

Within a year the Boston courts doubled their disposition of cases over the figure for the preceding year. The plan was extended in 1937 to Essex County, Massachusetts, which has only one judge. At the beginning of a seven-week term he devoted a week to pre-trial work. He disposed of 93 cases. It was necessary to enter only 147 trials on the docket.

Bar Committee's Report.

The bar association's committee which conducted a pre-trial investigation, observed:

"Both court and bar in Massachusetts have suddenly learned that when opposing attorneys come face to face in the presence of an impartial third person with the cards laid face up on the table, suspicion will drop away and that the result—almost inevitable for psychological reasons—is either an amicable settlement or a clarification and narrowing of the real issues in dispute."

Los Angeles, scene of an unusual jury elimination system, adopted the pre-trial plan without special legislation on March 1, 1937, after the courts had become so congested that 90 cases appeared on one day's docket. Pro tempore judges were recruited without success, but in two weeks of pre-trial procedure 16 cases were disposed of which, it is estimated, would have taken ten and one-half days for trial. The next month pre-trial procedure settled 29 cases, saving seventeen and one-half trial days and cutting nineteen and one-half days from the calendar the following month. As a consequence, Los Angeles is abreast of its dockets for the first time in years.

Dallas gave the pre-trial system a six months trial beginning last March on recommendation of the district judges after consultation with the bar association. At the end of that period the plan was continued in effect by an overwhelming vote. The association so voted after the record showed the disposition of 30 per cent more jury cases, a substantial saving of time to witnesses and litigants, a reduction of jury costs, more definite settings and a speedier administration of justice.

Los Angeles System "Unique."

The Los Angeles jury plan, part of the progress of judicial reform noted by the American Judicature Society, was described as "unique" by Fletcher Bowron, former presiding Judge of the Superior Court there, now Mayor of the city.

Prospective jurors are given written vocabulary tests. Twenty-five words ordinarily used in a trial are set down in a column. After each word are placed four other words, one of them a synonym. The juror is asked to mark the word of similar meaning. He also is required to read several routine instructions given in civil and criminal cases and check certain statements as to right or wrong.

His paper is graded and handed to the Jury Commissioner, who then interviews prospective jurors individually. The personal interview weeds out persons who, though high in intelligence rating, appear to lack reason or have a wrong conception of government or law enforcement.

No attempt is made to fix the mental standards too high. A cross section of the citizenry is sought. Tests are prepared with the aid of employment specialists, a university professor, and the chief examiner of the Los Angeles Civil Service Commission. They are first tried on persons of established average intelligence rating to ascertain the grade which will reveal the mental capacity of the prospective juror.

Further Procedure.

Prospective jurors are drawn from the lists of 1,233,479 registered voters. They were chosen at the outset by picking each twelfth name from the voters in every fifth precinct beginning with the first. In the next list the first and tenth voters were called from every fifth precinct beginning with the second and so on.

Before tendering the written test an assistant jury commissioner may excuse those obviously disqualified by age or physical disability. Those more than 70 years old are excused. An effort is made to get about an equal number of men and women, as women, lacking generally the business excuses offered by men, had predominated in some juries. In 1937, 33,726 persons were summoned by letter for jury duty. Replies were 28,402, or 84.2 per cent. Those approved were 7235, or 21.4 per cent, after submitting to uniform tests and standards. Judge Bowron regards this system as "a complete answer to any charge of jury picking."

But it does not stop there. Once accepted for duty, the names of the jurors are drawn from a wheel. The panel is split. Some are selected by lot to serve in criminal cases. Both sections are given preliminary instructions by judges assigned to criminal and civil divisions. Then the civil jurors are drawn as needed from a small wheel placed in open court on the bench of the presiding Judge. It contains the names of all civil trial jurors not actually engaged in a trial. As new cases go to trial, 18 names are drawn for each one. They are placed in an envelope which is sealed in open court and dispatched to a clerk in the trial department who goes to the jury assembly room and directs the jurors by name to report to the proper court.

Other Reforms in Prospect.

The American Judicature Society is actively interested also in many other reforms as well as past accomplishments such as the development of the Court of Common Pleas at Cleveland, which has a Chief Justice clothed by law with administrative powers. Out of Cleveland's conciliation practices grew the pre-trial procedure which is of current and growing public interest.

Besides keeping abreast of developments of a technical nature the society is watching the result of a bill prepared by the Indiana Judicial Council now pending which would co-ordinate the State's judicial system. It would apportion the 92 counties into 10 districts and outlines mechanics for equalizing judicial service among them. A chief Judge, selected by his colleagues on the Supreme Court, would be administrative head of the proposed system, authorized to make assignments and generally "insure expeditious treatment of all judicial business."

Chief Justice Hughes' View.

Full scope of the work performed by the society was outlined by its first president, the present Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes of the United States Supreme Court, who said:

"I am glad to have a share in the work of the American Judicature Society. The society does not interfere with other organizations in the nation and the states but seeks to aid them. It is their fitting complement. Its aim is comprehensive as it takes for its field the administration of justice in all its phases. It has sought to fulfill its purpose by dealing with what is fundamental in relation to the organization of the bar, the selection of judges, the organization of the courts and the methods essential to their efficiency. The society endeavors to penetrate to the roots of the evils that afflict the administration of justice and to ascertain what means are best adapted to the improvement of the system of administration. There are common problems which must be solved and whatever may be the need of local differentiation in dealing with these problems every community may be helped by the experience of others. The society encourages the widest co-operation and the freest expression and thus endeavors to afford a clearing house of experience and expert opinion."

The Metal Goods Corporation has taken a 10-year lease on a three-story building, 318 by 55 feet and two one-story buildings, with a total of 60,000 square feet of floor space, at 5201-37 Brown avenue in the northwestern industrial district. Total annual rentals for the period will approximate $100,000, according to the Griffith & Greves Real Estate Co., which negotiated the lease.

The concern will expend approximately $25,000 for alterations and improvements, which will include the erection of a large rear loading platform and the installation of a steam heating plant.

The buildings are units of a group with 8⅛ acres of ground, recently purchased by the Central Holding Co., through Arthur S. Martin & Son, from the Union Boulevard Holding Co. represented by the Mercantile Commerce Bank & Trust Co. The group was originally owned and occupied by the Bridge & Beach Manufacturing Co., which erected the buildings at a reported cost of $1,300,000.

a consideration of $37,500. Mary Potter Love, Inc., handled the transaction.

Pennsylvania Colonial.

Built from plans by Jamieson & Spearl, architects, the house is a three-story and basement structure, with upper story in roof space. It is Pennsylvania Colonial in design, with sloping roof. Construction is of red brick, with stone sills and frame. A paved terrace is enclosed by a brick and stone balustrade.

The interior is Colonial white, with the exception of mahogany doors. The first floor consists of living room, library, dining room, sunroom and kitchen. The second floor includes four master bedrooms, with three baths, and servants' quarters. There are fireplaces and mantels in all the public rooms and in the master bedrooms.

There is a two-car garage, with small attached greenhouse, erected since the house was completed a number of years ago. The site, comprising approximately two acres, is enhanced by landscape work.

Ridge Top Purchase.

Maury Hill of the Hill Bros., brokers, purchased the residence of Charles E. von Brecht at 4 Forest Ridge, Clayton. Edward L. Bakewell, realtor, negotiated the sale.

English in architecture, the house stands on a 2½-acre landscaped site. The first floor consists of entrance hall, living room, sunroom, singing room, kitchen, pantry and maid's dining room. There are five master bedrooms and two baths on the second floor. The third floor comprises receation room, two maids' rooms, with bath and storage space.

The sale price was not made public.

A noteworthy number of sumptuous residences in the Wydown section has been acquired recently. These include 2 Brentmoor Park, acquired by P. O. Eisenbeiss; 5 Brentmoor Park by Mrs. H. H. Culver; 30 Southmoor drive, by H. Stuart Jamison from interests represented by the First National Bank, through Mary Potter Love, Inc.; 3 Southmoor drive, by Dr. O. P. J. Falk from Blasdel Shapleigh, assistant secretary of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., represented by Franciscus-Maginn, Inc., and A. T. and Whitelaw Terry, respectively; 219 Woodbourne drive (Ellenwood) by Henry L. Griesedieck Jr., vice-president of the Griesedieck-Western Brewing Co., through A. T. & Whitelaw Terry.

Construction in Ellenwood.

Construction has been started on two houses on the east side of De-Mun avenue, south of Wydown boulevard, in Ellenwood, one for Thomas B. Sherman, member of the Post-Dispatch staff, and the other for Arnold H. Marimont, president of the Fairfax Construction Co. The sites, 79 by 167 feet each, were purchased recently through the John Grether Real Estate Co. from the heirs of the late Thomas Skinker, who laid out Skinker Heights, which includes Ellenwood, bounded by Skinker road, Wydown boulevard and De Mun avenue.

Dominating Wydown boulevard from an angle, the Sherman residence, of the town house type, is unique in conception. It will be fireproof and air-conditioned. There will be a two-car attached garage with drive encircling the house. The Maremont residence, original in design and of fireproof construction, is well under way.

Designed by Nagel & Dunn, architects, both houses, comprising two stories and basement, will be on a scale commensurate with Ellenwood, which includes Alexander, Fauquire and Woodburn drives.

JOHN STRACHEY GOES HOME, DROPPING FIGHT FOR ENTRY

Says He Could Not Wait for Hearing, Still Denies He Is a Communist.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—John Strachey, British author and lecturer, left for home today without seeing through his fight for unrestricted entry into this country and still denying he is a Communist. He sailed on the liner Aquitania, on which Luise Rainer, the actress, also departed for a stage appearance in London.

Strachey said he could not wait an expected five months for the Labor Department hearing to which the United States Circuit Court recently ruled he was entitled after his visa was revoked on the grounds he was a Communist.

Forbidden to give lectures he had planned, pending a decision in his case, Strachey spent his time here, after a two-weeks' detention on Ellis Island in October, preparing a history of the New Deal and visiting friends. "Nothing subversive," he remarked.

SUIT FILED TO COLLECT $5021 IN FREIGHT UNDERCHARGES

It Contends Billing Was at Scrap Iron Rate Whereas Shipments Were of Pipe Fittings.

Suit to collect $5021 representing freight undercharges was filed in United States District Court yesterday against Lester A. Crancer and George B. Fleischman, operators of the Valley Park Steel Products Co. and the Mid-Valley Steel Co., by Trustee Guy A. Thompson of the Missouri Pacific Railroad.

The petition said the freight rate charged Crancer and Fleischman on shipments made from Texas and New Mexico in 1936 and 1937 was for scrap iron whereas the shipments were of pipe fittings, calling for a higher rate. Crancer and Fleischman recently lost an injunction suit to prevent application of the higher tariff to their shipments of metal.

LEGISLATOR'S SUIT DELAYED

Defendants Tell Court Their Lawyer Is at Jefferson City.

Hearing of an unlawful detainer suit filed by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation against the occupants of a residence at 7161 Delmar boulevard, University City, was postponed until the end of the current session of the State Legislature when the defendants filed an affidavit today stating that their attorney was Maurice Schechter, a State Representative.

The continuance was granted by Justice of the Peace Louis L. Hicks at Clayton in conformance with Missouri law which has been interpreted as making delays mandatory when an attorney is attending a meeting of the Legislature. The defendants are Mr. and Mrs. Pietro Randazzo and Dominico Randazzo.

REJECTS PARDON; LOSES HEAD ON GUILLOTINE

Killer Executed by New "Monsieur de Paris," Who Does a Slow Job.

By the Associated Press.

RENNES, France, Feb. 4. — A murderer who refused a pardon was beheaded on the guillotine today by a nervous temporary executioner.

The prisoner was Maurice Pelorge who was entitled by tradition to a pardon as the first convict in line to be executed by the new "Monsieur de Paris."

The prison chaplain said Pelorge had shown only a desire to die since confessing his crime at Christmas time and, therefore, rejected the traditional pardon offered him by President Albert Lebrun.

Eighty-year-old Leopold Des Fourneaux was the executioner, at least temporary successor to the hereditary position held by his nephew, Anatole Deibler, who died Thursday.

Critics said Des Fourneaux, former assistant of Deibler, was proficient but lacked the expert technique his master had acquired during 40 years in which he had beheaded 400 persons.

They complained that Des Fourneaux did not let the blade drop fast enough.

Deibler had reduced the time of an execution to only three or four seconds. Officials said Des Fourneaux took 10 or 15 seconds—time enough for the victim to turn his head and see the blade falling.

Whether Des Fourneaux would succeed permanently to the position was not known as the Ministry of Justice never announces officially such a succession. It had been understood that the former executioner had bequeathed his position to his nephew, Andre Obrecht. The nephew—not Des Fourneaux—had been expected to put Pelorge to death.

Appointment of either, however, would fulfill the tradition that France's high executioner be a member of the Deibler family. Des Fourneaux was the uncle of the former "Monsieur de Paris" and had been his assistant since 1876.

$44,000 BANK FRAUD CHARGED

Woman, Ex-head of Alabama Depository, Pleads Not Guilty.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Feb. 4.—Mrs. Annie Ward-Ganguet, former president and cashier of the closed Bank of Cuba, Ala., was placed under $10,000 bond today on charges she misused $44,172 of the bank's funds.

A special Federal agent, called in because the bank was a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, lodged the complaint charging Mrs. Ward-Ganguet misappropriated the funds between June 1, 1937, and Nov. 26, 1938, when the bank was closed for liquidation. Mrs. Ward-Ganguet, who had been president and cashier for eight years, pleaded not guilty at her arraignment today.

A JAPANESE ENVOY'S IMPRESSIONS OF OLD BRITISH CUSTOMS

Treasury, He Says, Writes Four Types of Letters, Last Saying, "Go to Hell."

(Copyright, 1939, New York Tribune, Inc.)

LONDON, Feb. 4.—There are only four types of letters which the British Treasury can write.

The first is, "You cannot have the money"; the second, "We have nothing to add to our previous letter"; the third, "This correspondence must cease," and the fourth, "Go to hell." So the Japanese Ambassador in London, Mamoru Shigemitsu, recently confided to a British Cabinet Minister, Leslie Burgin, who repeated the story at a luncheon.

Burgin also quoted the Ambassador's impression of the English national game of billiards: "Two tall men; two longer bamboos; three little balls. One touches, says: 'Damn'; the other says: 'Hard luck, old man.'"

EX-CONVICT CONFESSES ROBBERY OF MAIL BOXES

Prisoner Says He Forged Indorsements to Checks Exceeding $30 and Destroyed Others.

An ex-convict arrested early yesterday after a fight with another man in a rooming house at 3927 McPherson avenue, where both resided, admitted, police announced last night, that he had stolen mail from many residences and apartments in the midtown area since he came here from Detroit two months ago.

He identified himself as Arthur Peltier and said he was released last July from Leavenworth penitentiary after serving two years for theft of mail. He was not able to fixe the amount of money he had obtained, but said he forged indorsements to checks for more than $30 and destroyed those for lesser sums.

WOMAN TO KEEP HUNDREDTH BIRTHDAY AS DAY OF PRAYER

Mrs. Katherine Reiss of East St. Louis Bedridden for Last Three Months.

Mrs. Katherine Reiss, 3015 Regent place, East St. Louis, plans to celebrate her one hundredth birthday Feb. 22 by devoting almost the entire day to prayer.

She resides with a son, Rudolph O. Reiss, one of the last two surviving of her eight children. She has been inactive physically since she broke her hip in a fall 10 years ago and in the last three months has been confined to her bed.

One of her favorite recollections is of Civil War days when she was left at home with several small children while her husband, William Ceries, fought with the Union Army. Ceries died following the war, and in 1869 she married Robert Reiss of Cape Girardeau.

PROBATION FOR ARMY OFFICERS

Woodring Seeks Three-Year Trial Period for Second Lieutenants.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. — Secretary of War Woodring in a letter to Speaker Bankhead of the House suggested legislation today that would permit the War Department to revoke the commission of any Second Lieutenant who in his first three years is deemed unsuitable for a military career.

The navy keeps its young officers on a probationary status for seven years. They may be discharged in that period without a bonus. Woodring said such a regulation would "contribute to the efficiency of the army."

FOR BETTER LIVING IN AUSTRIA

Hitler Aid Tells Vienna Nazis He Will Try to Raise Level.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Feb. 4. — Joseph Buerckel, Reichsfuehrer Hitler's commissioner for German Austria, acknowledged tonight that the Austrian standard of living was "not yet what it should be."

Addressing a Nazi gathering in his new capacity as Nazi district leader from Vienna, Buerckel said he would do all possible to raise Vienna to the level of the rest of Germany. He said a rumor the German Reichsbank planned confiscation of all privately-owned gold was an "impudent" lie.

Wife Wed at 15 Seeks Annulment.

Mrs. Dorothy Robertson Stich, who was 15 years old when she was married seven years ago at Chester, Ill., to Jack Francis Stich of Indianapolis, filed an annulment suit in Circuit Court yesterday, alleging she was "intimidated and coerced." Stich filed an entry of appearance and a general denial. She resides at 2314 Montgomery street.

OHIO VALLEY FLOOD CHECKED BY FREEZE

Cold, However, Adds to Suffering of Homeless—Five Known Dead.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 4.—The rich valley of the Ohio from Pittsburgh to Louisville, whose residents still have a vivid memory of 1937's record flood, saw relief from the therat of a new inundation tonight as freezing temperatures stemmed the flow of tributaries.

Predictions of fair weather throughout West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky brought signs of flood abatement, but the cold weather added to the suffering of thousands of residents. West Virginia listed three known dead and upward of 1500 homeless.

Landslides and high water blocked roads there and in Kentucky, where Mayor W. K. Evans of Middlesboro reported two aged men died of exposure in the flood area.

Troops Ordered to Stand by.

Gov. A. B. Chandler of Kentucky sent highway crews into stricken communities along the Licking and Cumberland rivers. National Guardsmen were ordered to stand by, but Maj. Frank S. Lebkuecher at Frankfort said conditions were under control.

The Ohio at Cincinnati and Huntington, W. Va., was rising at the rate of .3 feet an hour. United States Meteorologist W. C. Devereaux at Cincinnati forecast a general crest of 56 feet from Huntington to Carrollton, Ky., by Sunday or Monday. The river rose above 50 feet here. The expected crest, unchanged throughout the day, was in contrast to the 79.99 foot level two years ago, which swept away homes and left 200 dead along the 981-mile course.

At Pittsburgh, earlier fears of a flood in the "golden triangle" area, confluence of the Monongahela, Allegheny and Ohio, were allayed as the Weather Bureau predicted a crest of 26 feet—one foot above blood. Serious damage does not occur there until a stage of 30 feet is reached.

52-Foot Stage at Huntington.

Water rose two feet above the 50-foot flood stage at Huntington, and up river at Point Pleasant, where the Kanawha enters the Ohio, veteran rivermen reduced their crest forecast and little inconvenience was predicted for the old river town.

Red Cross and flood emergency agencies were at work along a broad front in West Virginia and Kentucky, where smaller streams wrought the greatest damage. The Buckhannon River in the central section was falling, and 500 persons returned to their homes.

Pomeroy (O.) Main Street Flooded.

The main street of Pomeroy, O., always flooded during high water, was inundated as the stage there reached 46.2. Several families moved from their homes and others prepared for hasty exits at Callipolis, O.

The lowlands were inundated at Huntington, W. Va., where a flood wall along the Guyan River and parts of the Ohio is in the process of being completed. The wall was no protection in the present emergency.

At East Liverpool, O., the water lapped at a 31-foot level, just two feet from overflow.

The Weather Bureau reported the water rising at one-fourth of a foot an hour at Portsmouth, O., lying behind a 62-foot flood wall. The stage was at 52.3 feet there late today.

The highest crest was expected by the Weather Bureau at Ashland, Ky., where forecasters said a 59-foot level might be reached. The stage was 56, five feet above flood, tonight.

Ohio Emergency Agencies Ready.

Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio held national guardsmen, highway department crews and the State highway patrol in readiness for an emergency. He said the emergency agencies would work in co-operation with neighboring states.

The Cincinnati bottom land is "very slightly affected at present stages," said City Manager C. O. Sherrill. Lieutenant-Colonel D. O. Elliot, United States District Engineer, ordered workers to be prepared to move equipment to higher levels at Fernbank Dam should the crest reach 57 feet.

The big Miami River, emptying into the Ohio at Lawrenceburg, Ind., was dropping rapidly.

More On Hats

by Inez Robb

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.

IT'S all right for Yankee Doodle to stick a feather in his cap and call it macaroni.

But let a woman stick a flower pot or a cup and saucer on her pretty noggin and call it a hat, and you've got a national issue, and that's no baloney.

Class lines, political issues and the old-school ties were forgotten as Illustrator Neysa McMein on the Eastern seaboard rushed to the defense of the modern hat, as Joan Crawford on the Western seaboard roundly denounced it and as Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in Washington, D. C., tactfully took to the middle of the road.

So women's hats remained controversial despite the fact Lily Dache, the noted New York and Paris millinery designer, has done a Gallup. The results are 50-50 in her poll of the nation's masculine and feminine leaders to prove crusading columnists Dorothy Thompson and Westbrook Pegler wacky in their recent declarations that women's hats, as of 1939, are all little outrages of the first water.

—o-o—

Pegler took off his coat and really went to work on the subject. He said that women have permitted the milliners to crown them with a type of hat which not only makes them look absurd but makes husbands and other males ashamed to be seen with them in public places. This was only the beginning. Further, Pegler continued: Often has it been suspected and suggested, half in earnest, that those who create and dictate the styles of women's hats have hit on this or that freak of fashion with no other motive than an impish intent to test their independence and intelligence.

—o-o—

● "THIS YEAR, however, there can be no doubt of their purpose, for they have issued monstrosities too hideous for any artistic excuse. Moreover, they win their bet that women will stand for anything bearing the stamp of style, for, notwithstanding the general feminine verdict that the season's hats are awful and that no woman more than a year or two beyond the age of flapper can look less than horrible beneath one, millions of them have been sold at from $3 to $50 each."

And there still was more of the same. On the other hand, Mrs. Roosevelt was much more charitable.

—o-o—

"It seems to me that a great number of women today are wearing becoming clothes and hats," Mrs. Roosevelt replied to Mme. Dache's telegram asking for her "honest opinion" on feminine headgear. "After all, it is possible to be in fashion and not exaggerate too much whatever the fashion may be.

—o-o—

● "VERY YOUNG PEOPLE can wear almost anything and look well," continued Mrs. Roosevelt, whom the cliff dwellers of Washington, D. C., regard as one of the best dressed first ladies in decades. "However, I must say that some people who wear little disks at different angles on their heads, and various other exaggerated styles, do look a little picturesque."

If Mrs. Roosevelt's soft words were calculated to turn away the wrath of both camps, not Joan Joan Crawford's!

—o-o—

"I heartily agree with Dorothy Thompson and Westbrook Pegler on the grotesquerie of miniature hats," wired Miss Crawford, wading right in and letting fly with a near pollysyllable in the clinches. "Miniature hats have their place in musical comedy and museums, but not on the head of a lady."

—o-o—

● "WOMEN HAVE never been more alluring than they are today," retorted Miss McMein, who paints all those pretty girls on the magazine cover. "Today's hats make any old face look pretty."

Elsa Maxwell, out on the Pacific slope, threw in her beret and wired: "If women have no wit in their heads, they have a right to wear somebody else's witty concoctions on their heads! Vive la chapeau moderne!"

—o-o—

"I NEVER LOOK at a woman's hat," wired Walter Winchell virtuously. "I only look at her eyes," which is something we never knew till now.

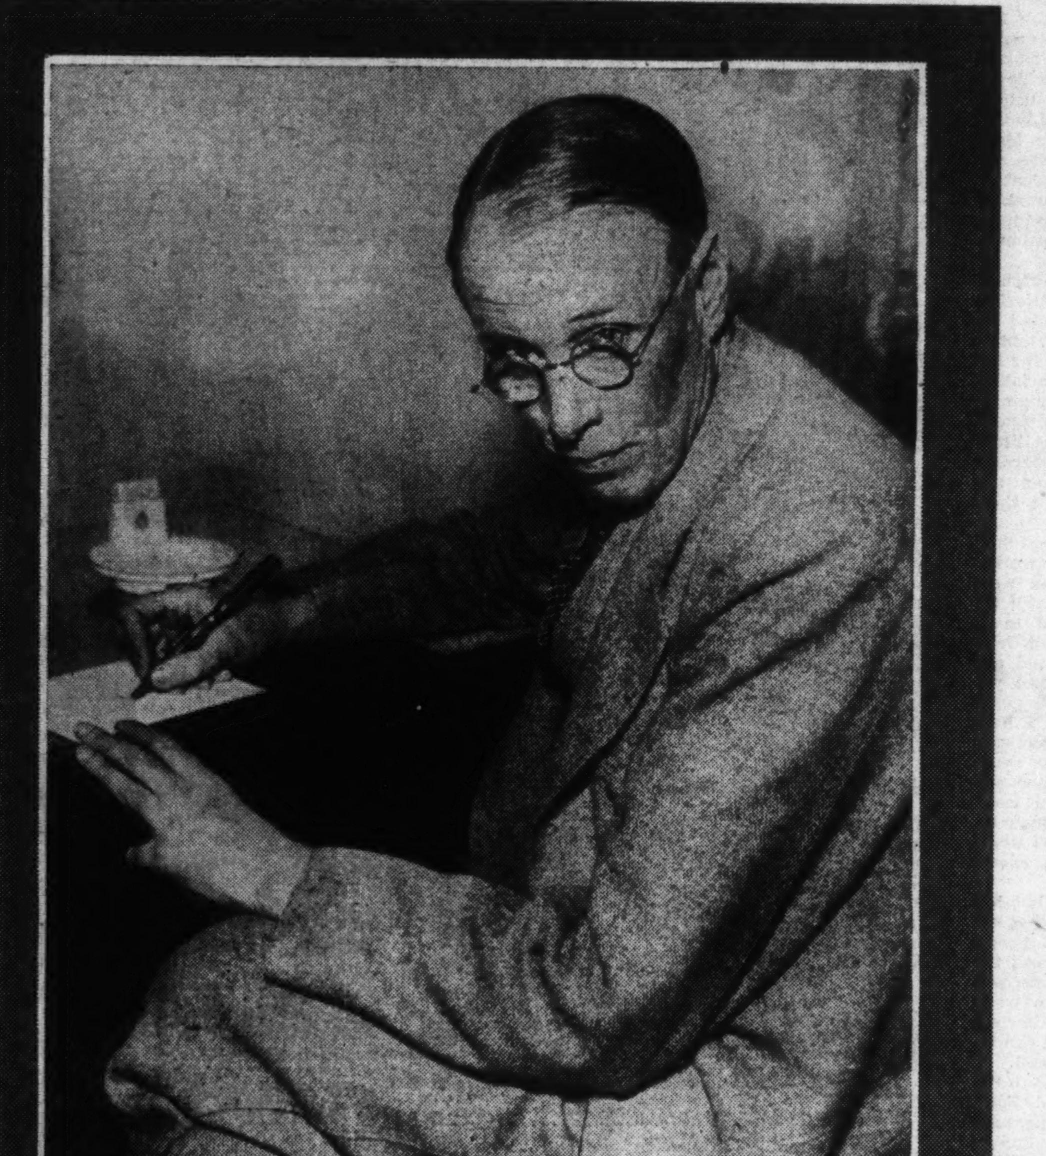
Louis Bromfield, himself a husband, said cryptically: "Women are slaves of fashion."

And now will you please excuse me while I go out and send a wire to columnists Thompson and Pegler, "Don't paste this in your hats; just go soak your heads and oblige."

SINCLAIR LEWIS ON THE STAGE

Noted Writer, in St. Louis, Believes He Is Good Actor Despite Hoots of the Critics

By VIRGINIA IRWIN



SINCLAIR LEWIS . . . "WHY SHOULDN'T I TRY ACTING? THERE'S A LITTLE NATURAL EXHIBITIONISM IN ALL OF US."

"I NOW exist only in the the theater," tall, lanky Sinclair Lewis assured me, in exactly the same tones a very young man once used to inform me that I was the light of his life. There was something of an awful finality, a sort of there-is-no-turning back note in "Red" Lewis' declaration. This man of the once-flaming, but now-gray mop has convinced himself that at 54 he will at last consecrate himself to the theater and he intends to convince the world that Sinclair Lewis is approaching this new life with reverence, and not as a lark.

If Mr. Lewis, author, and until recently leading man, of "Angela Is Twenty-Two" dramatizes a bit his new but nonetheless desperate devotion to the theater, it can perhaps be excused as a hangover from the past month in which he was not Sinclair Lewis, but Dr. Hilary Jerrett, the 55-year-old physician of the "Angela" opus who takes unto himself a 22-year-old spouse only to learn that it's true what they say about June and January. Mr. Lewis is no longer the Dr. Jerrett of the piece, which opens at the American Theater tomorrow night, but he continues his personal appearance with the show as the playwright who delivers a prologue and epilogue in the tradition of the commedia dell'arte.

Of the prologue and epilogue with which Sinclair Lewis contents himself since he has relinquished the lead to Philip Merivale, the pugnacious playwright says, "If I do it well enough, it should be far from the least amusing part of the play."

Of the play itself, he confesses: "It is being perfected as we go along. I am such a new playwright. I have so much to learn. There are flaws which we are constantly discovering. The play can stand much improvement."

On tour since Dec. 30, "Angela Is Twenty-Two" represents the hardest labor the man who made America "Main Street" conscious has done since he sawed wood for the parental cookstove as a boy back in Sauk Center, Minn. To begin with, Lewis discovered that it was harder to write a play than a novel. And to end with the present interview, he has discovered that it was chain-gang stuff to attempt to do the necessary rewriting on "Angela Is Twenty-Two" and do the leading male role at the same time. That there have been plenty of changes made in the play since it started out on tour in Columbus, O., and that there will be plenty more made before the piece is ready for Manhattan, Lewis admits.

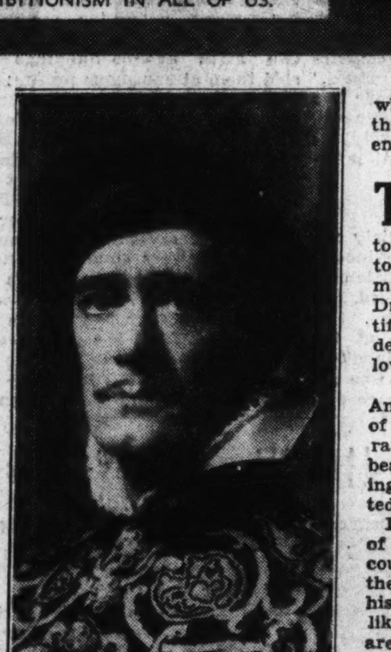
—o-o—

"BUT it has been the most complete experience a playwright could have," this most famous of American novelists beamed as he paced the room, hitching up his high-water pants. "Playing a role in a play you have written is the ideal way to detect the flaws you have written into the thing. You get the feel of the play, see where two or three words will change the whole tone of a scene, understand the fine points of entrances and exits. Playing in the thing yourself, you see a great many things that you never think of from a purely literary standpoint while you are writing the play."

Lewis strikes no modest pose in discussing his month's tenure as a stage star. He's quite honest in his stated belief that he wasn't at all bad, and he defends himself against the whacks which have been taken at him by the critics for not sticking to his last as playwright by saying, "Why shouldn't I try acting? There's a little natural exhibitionism in all of us."

The truth of the matter is, of course, that the slightly awkward and not the least bit handsome Mr. Lewis was too far removed from the matinee idol to satisfy the customers' idea of an actor who should play the role of the romantic Dr. Jerrett in "Angela Is Twenty-Two." As one critic put it, "Since the author has his flaming spirit and brilliant intellect incased in a personality that has fewer fine points for public exhibition than are found in most men, it is just as well he has retired as an actor, entrusting the characterization to a player of Mr. Merivale's authority."

This same critic, in reviewing the play, opined that "it is not until the author speaks briefly in his epilogue that the audience knows fully what he has been driving at," and such a criticism might at one time have drawn sparks from the easily-ignited Sinclair Lewis. But evidently no more. Seemingly chastened at the hands of the theater, Lewis assured me that he saw a great light when he read that review.



PHILIP MERIVALE . . . LOOKS MORE LIKE A HERO.

Only once since "Angela Is Twenty-Two" went on tour, has Mr. Lewis displayed the red-headed disposition that has made him famous as a participant in the Dreiser-Lewis slapping match, as the man who once denounced fundamentalism from the pulpit of a Kansas City church and climaxed his sermon by giving God 10 minutes in which to strike him dead, and as the chief figure in many another entertaining tale of temperament.

—o-o—

THE famous Lewis talent for talking out of turn made its most recent appearance in a town where Mr. Lewis was playing to a packed house. In the very midst of the scene where Lewis as Dr. Jarrett proposed to the beautiful 22-year-old Angela a stagehand decided to get a close-up of the love-making.

"There," Lewis explained, "was Angela seated on a settee in front of a window. And there I was raving on about how sickeningly beautiful she was. And there staring in the window was a half-witted stagehand."

Instead of ignoring the intrusion of the stagehand who of course could not be seen by the audience, the irate Mr. Lewis blew up and his proposal speech went something like this: "Angela, my love, you are so sickeningly beautiful. I want to ask you to be my wife, but how in the hell can I propose to you with a half-witted boob peering in the window?"

Since "Red" Lewis' acting apprenticeship, he puts more "umph" than ever into his story telling, a talent for which he has been noted since the days when he was chairman of the Yale Courant, tended a Socialistic furnace at Upton Sinclair's Utopian colony in New Jersey, went down to sea in a cattle boat, to Panama to help dig the canal—all adventures before the Lewis boy found his career in writing and produced such explosions as "Main Street" and "Babbitt."

Lewis' god as a playwright is George Bernard Shaw, just as H. G. Wells was his idol back in the days when our carrot-thatched hero crossed the Atlantic on a cattle ship as valet to a cargo of steers to pay a literary pilgrimage to the home of the author of "The War of the Worlds," "The Days of the Comet," and "Tono Bungay." The young Mr. Lewis did not meet the master on this trip, but he did stand at the hedgerow in silent worship and watch Wells puffing his pipe in his library. Later when "Main Street" hoisted Lewis into fame overnight, he journeyed to London again and Wells was among the welcoming committee of English literary lights. When Lewis confided that he had played nursemaid to a boatload of cattle in order to get to England and see Wells, that famous gentleman was practically tearful.

THE inspiration that was Wells in Lewis' earlier years, Shaw is today in his playwrighting. Reverently, Lewis says, "What Shaw does by sheer genius, I am attempting to approach by hard work."

With an ear to the theatrical ground, Lewis believes that he has detected unmistakable signs that the theater is about to rub the sleep out of its eyes and burst forth in a new glory. "I believe," he says, "that America is at the dawn of one of the most exciting theatrical eras in history, and I am proud to try, as writer and player, to be part of this dramatic explosion."

Lewis voices something of this "discovery" in his prologue to "Angela is Twenty-Two" when he swaggers onto the stage with a sort of bashful insolence and declares that being the father of the piece he must in the American tradition take the blame for all of its vices, and not being the mother of it, must be consoled for being deprived of taking satisfaction in any of its virtues.

Of his present determination to devote himself to playwriting, Sinclair Lewis says that "it is only natural, since every writer secretly nurses an ambition to be a playwright." And although "Angela Is Twenty-Two" is his most serious venture into the field, it is not Lewis' first indication of interest in the theater. In 1919 he wrote "Hobohemia" and in 1934 "Jaywalker," both of which enjoyed scant success. And it was only last summer that Mr. Lewis had his tryout as a thespian, when he played Doremus Jessup, in a dramatization of his own novel, "It Can't Happen Here," at the summer theater at Cohasset, Mass.

Lewis deliberately chose Cohasset for his summer vacation because there was a summer theater there. He wanted to study the theater at close range, but he had no idea at the time of trying the acting end of the business. When someone suggested a production of his "It Can't Happen Here," with Mr. Lewis himself in the leading role, he was secretly more than a little scared, but the production turned out to be probably the most successful stunt ever staged in a summer theater. And what's more, the ambitious-to-be-a-successful-playwright Mr. Lewis got a good bit of education that came in handy in the writing of his present piece.

—o-o—

AMONG the stars at Cohasset was the beautiful Fay Wray of the screen, who collaborated with Lewis on "Angela Is Twenty-Two." And among New York producers who visited Cohasset to witness the Lewis debut was John Wildberg, now producer of "Angela Is Twenty-Two."

Of his experiences so far with his new play, Lewis says, "It's been more exciting than all my travels around Europe. There's always something new turning up. In Europe, nothing was really new in the real sense of the word. You'd try to ask for the railroad station in French and the taxi driver would give you a dirty look and say, 'Whaddya want, the depot?' I wouldn't trade my experience on the road this past month with the play for a trip to Tibet."

In this beatific frame of mind, Mr. Lewis of the superlative talent for starting disturbances, refused to be riled during this interview when he ordered a morning paper and the waiter brought him a grapefruit. He couldn't even get very excited when a woman called him on the telephone and, as he repeated the conversation, asked if he were Dorothy Thompson's husband and would Mr. Lewis try to persuade Miss Thompson to lecture at the something-or-other-society the next time she was in the city?

"Dorothy," sighed Mr. Lewis, speaking of his wife, Dorothy Thompson, ablest of women correspondents, "is probably responsible for half the customers who come to see me in 'Angela Is Twenty-Two.' They want to find out what the gink looks like who's married to the famous Miss Thompson."

NO MORE REGIONALISM IN AMERICAN ART

By Otto Fuerbringer

THERE is no better way in which to find out for yourself the correctness of Grant Wood's recent pronouncement that regionalism in American art is dead than by going to the two exhibits of American art now on view at the City Museum. The most recently opened show is the work of artists living west of the Mississippi. Except for the fact that it doesn't contain as many first-rate painters, it differs not at all from the general American show which has been up for the last month. Nothing but talent now divides American artists.

Speaking at the University of Missouri, Grant Wood said: "The excitement of regionalism reached its peak in 1935 and no longer is an issue of importance—not because of failure but because of success." In other words, the American artist, having gone through a phase during which he had to demonstrate that America was worth painting in a rough and broad American technique, now feels himself liberated to paint anything he pleases.

Thomas Hart Benton's "Susanna and the Elders" is a good symptom of this liberation. For years Benton has painted only those subjects which could immediately be identified as being Middle Western or Southern. "Susanna" is still in an Ozark setting, but the subject stems from the Orient.

The surprisingly large number of abstractions in the two shows is another indication of the new freedom. There is no such thing as a Middle Western or a California abstraction. Not even an American abstraction.

Moreover, there is nothing particularly Kansan about John Steuart Curry's tender portrait of a bull. The animal could be in pasture anywhere in America. Nor is the "Pig Run" of Frederick Shane, who comes from Kansas City, necessarily Midwestern. And B. J. O. Norfeldt's "Road and River" owes much more to the Frenchman Vlaminck than to his residence in New Mexico.

—o-o—

IT IS HARD to generalize, because there have always been some painters who have remained strong individualists. But the principal idea that gave American painting its vitality in the last decade was the regionalism which made every artist go back to first principles and paint that which he knew, those subjects with which he had grown up. Those principles have now been mastered, and American art is less restricted. It should, as Grant Wood said, become more vigorous and independent than at any other time in history.

At last week's session of the symposium on art sponsored by the American Artists' Congress Bill Sentner, CIO labor organizer, urged the artists to get together in a labor union. "I've seen it happen many times," he said, "that a show card painter got a job decorating the walls of a restaurant while the real artists were passed up. But did the artists protest? No, I sat around with them eating coffee and doughnuts while they scoffed and jeered. But when the show card painter was through he got off his ladder and ate steak."

AT THE same meeting the talk got around to the American public's taste in art, which, several speakers said, was appalling. What good would it do artists to band together for their economic improvement if the public would not appreciate and buy their work? The taste of the younger generation, which would grow up to buy the pictures of today's mature artists, was especially decried. College boys, a speaker said, had their walls plastered with nothing but Petty's strip-tease pictures from "Esquire."

At this point the lusty Joe Jones lost his patience and said that he, for one, thought it was far better for young men instinctively to like the good qualities in the "two-dimensional drawings of Petty rather than to pretend to liking a lot of the hokum that is hung in museums." He thought, for instance, that it was a far more "normal, healthy reaction" to like the Petty women than to "profess admiration for the Zorn pictures of vain women in the St. Louis museum."

—o-o—

AS TO EXHIBITS: A show by Miriam McKinnie opens tomorrow at the Y. M. H. A., following one by Helen Beccard which contained a half dozen excellent light oils on paper done last summer when Miss Beccard took a packet boat trip down the Mississippi. She has caught the essential grace of the Negroes, whether working, loafing or fishing. . . . An exhibit of work done by Illinois artists for the WPA continues for another week at the Metropolitan Building in East St. Louis. Its best features are water colors by Malcolm Hackett and Max Kahn and some prints by David Bekker. . . . Principia College has bought one of the works of Kathe Kollwitz, the distinguished German sculptress, whose show at the college has just closed.

Fair Enough

by Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.

ONE is tempted to agree with Gene Sarazen that the professional golfers are the most put-upon class of artists, for great are the impositions and wrongs which they suffer. They travel thousands of miles at much personal expense to play in great and secondary tournaments, knowing that they are bucking a brace game whose rewards are hardly comparable to the miserable pay-off handed down by the policy racketeers. The capital prize of the United States Open Championship is only $1000 and that of the British Open £100, and there can be only one winner each year of each of these paltry tips, though hundreds of good men compete.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Mr. Sarazen's lament was further developed a few weeks ago in a magazine piece—a sad story of a crying shame, but less pathetic, on the whole, than that of the ill-used hundreds of professional writers who buck the chancy whims and tastes of the magazines. Here is a large class of more or less qualified performers who not only gamble their time and ability in a highly speculative field but often, when they have turned in first-class work representing diligent digging and fine skill, find their copy tossed back to be tinkered over to suit an editor's arbitrary formula or personal taste.

IN FICTION the leading magazines have adopted patterns as rigid as linoleum cuts, roughly comparable to those of the Hollywood trade. Boy and girl must be brought together or left in peril at certain intervals of the serial to mark the installment endings, regardless of the natural history development of the story at the hands of a skilled narrator. So back goes the writer to his desk to sweep aside his mounting bills and do it over. This means, of course, that the continuity, even the plot, must be twisted out of shape and rebuilt, one painful word after another, with no certainty that even when it has been changed to the editor's specifications he will not finally turn it down—just because.

Natural writing is almost impossible in the field of magazine fiction, what with taboos and house policies and the demand for text to be wrapped around the razor blades and heating systems in the rear of the book. One magazine of national circulation appealing to the country club trade actually bars copy dealing with the lower economic classes on the ground that those who read it do so in the mood of wealth and would be disenchanted by any hint that poverty exists. Such absurd but practical snobbery seems mean enough on its face, but is a little worse to writers who tempt this fastidious editorial taste for a maximum price of $200.

EDITING is an inexact business at best, but it has been complicated by a terrifying jumble of changing and unpredictable house rules and forms and mere personal whims of men who have power to accept or reject copy representing months of work. Undistinguished editors whose absolute limit is $250 or as little as $150 assume the right to instruct skilled men and women to tear apart and rewrite, not once but repeatedly, fiction stories and presentations of fact or opinion and to reject work in the end which, having now been done to their particular orders, is hopelessly unsalable anywhere else.

Writers of this unhappy class console themselves with the not very nourishing thought that editors are but thwarted writers in more or less human form. However true this thought might be, it buys no pork chops or shoes for the baby, nor does it mitigate the cruelty with which writers are kept dangling.

—o—o—

MAGAZINE WRITING, except for a very few box office names, is a hay-chasing job, engaging many more earnest workers than professional golf. Like golf, it is almost wholly speculative, but, worse, the writer often is led by hopes and half-promises to perform hard work, taking weeks of time, for which he receives no pay at all in the end.

In one of our most brilliant slick-paper publications the finished product is a reliable joy, but the casual customer sees nothing of the exactions, the waste of effort and the harsh disappointments which never even reach the hell box.

All that Mr. Sarazen says of golf is true, but there are excellent writers bucking the magazine trade who on reading this piece might be tempted to break out their clubs and try the tournaments. True, they might starve, but that would be no novelty, and golf does keep one out in the open air.

INTRODUCTIONS

By Emily Post

DEAR Mrs. Post: (a) Does everyone have to be introduced to everyone else at a wedding reception? (b) And is it improper to seat the guests at a home wedding? From descriptions of weddings given at home I've only been able to gather that the guests stood, and I'm wondering if this is a convention or in most cases a necessity.

Answer: (a) It would not be possible to introduce them all unless the reception were to include scarcely more than a dozen persons. (b) In most cases it is a necessity. If you have a very large house and can supply enough small chairs (these are usually rented from a caterer) they are arranged in rows and people seated exactly as in church.

—o—o—

DEAR MRS. POST: Are lace cards always handwritten, or may they in some instances be typewritten? Will you explain about this, please.

Answer: Place cards are always handwritten although the writing may approach printing as closely as possible in order to be legible. Typewriting is never associated with any social formality.

Personal Management

ELSIE ROBINSON

"BUT, Lorraine, that light green isn't the least bit practical for office work. Too fancy . . . and it'll soil at the least little thing. Besides, you know how you are with clothes. Getting sick of them before they're hardly broken in. Remember how you were with that expensive beige suit—how I warned and warned you . . . but nothing would do but you must have it. Why, when I was a girl we had just one good sensible—"

ELSIE ROBINSON.

"Aw, Ma, for the luvva Pete, lay off! Won't you ever learn that things aren't now the way they were when you were a girl? Girls don't go on wearing things until they drop off 'em, the way you did.

"Besides—it's my own money, isn't it? So why can't I ever buy what I, myself, really like, without all this jawing?"

"But, darling . . ."

Ma and sis were at it again. The same old story. Sis wanting to run her own life—pick her own clothes and friends—manage her own money. And Ma—adoring, fretting, fussing—insisting on doing it for her.

—O—O—

● "BUT, LORRAINE, darling, can't you see." . . . Ma's sweet, stubborn eyes were blurred with tears. Why, oh why, did the child have to be so difficult? Just a baby yet . . . what did any 18-year-old know? . . . And here she was, demanding the right to run her own life!

These modern girls with their pay checks . . . what difference did a pay check make? Girls needed someone to guide them just as they had 30 years ago. It was all so crazy—! A mother just had to put her foot down.

"Now, Lorraine—you know perfectly well that I don't want to interfere with your private affairs—"

"You—not interfere! That's a good one! Ha-ha!" The girl's laugh spurted, harsh with resentment. Against her mother's plump and placid repose she jangled unhappily—overwrought with nerves . . . overdressed with a glittering tangle of cheap jewelry. Fox-red curls sprayed with little flames about the pixie triangle of her face—the smoldering anger of her tilted, hazel eyes.

"Not interfere! I wish you'd show me just one little thing you haven't your finger in, Ma! If it isn't my clothes it's my friends . . . or my fun . . . or what hours I keep . . . or how much I save . . . or even what I eat! Honest, sometimes—"

—O—O—

● HER VOICE rose sharply, cracked. She yanked her fur sharply . . . chewed an overly scarlet under-lip. Her mother's voice shook.

"That's no way to speak to your mother, Lorraine! Just let me tell you, some girls would be GLAD to have their mothers take such an interest in them as I do."

"Well, I'm not glad—and you might as well know it! I'm sick of it. I hate it! Never let me do a single thing I want—Don't I make the money myself . . . and pay regular board at home? But can I use what's left the way I want to?—Just TRY 'n' do it! You're right there, telling what YOU did as a girl!"

"But Lorraine, darling—won't you understand—it's just that I want to give you the advantage of my experience?"

"YOUR experience! But how about letting me collect a little experience of my own? How'm I ever going to learn anything about life unless I do? Oh, Mom, I know I've been an awful pill lately. An' I'm sorry, but can't you understand . . . can't you see I've got to learn things in my own way?"

—O—O—

● FROM CAPE COD to the Golden Gate that cry is rising from bewildered youngsters to equally bewildered parents . . . parents who can't, or won't see that wisdom can never be acquired second hand . . . that each generattion must find its own truth in its own way.

"When I was a girl" . . . or "when I was a boy" . . . from millions of muddled parents come that same reply. They cannot realize that the world has changed as much in those 30 years as in any previous 300, But the youngsters realize. They need understanding and assurance more desperately than the parents ever dream. Desperately they seek the right way—the right way to handle themselves and their lives. But how can it be found? By letting Mom or Dad manage their lives? No! Ignorant as the youngsters are, they know that second hand wisdom never yet solved life for anyone. Then what?

How about an alternative? Suppose we turn "personal management" into a department of popular education, just as we've turned math., grammar, English, chemistry? Teach youngsters how to run their lives. Create classes, lectures or correspondence course in:

"How to manage yourself . . . How to plan your fun, pick your friends, use your finances, choose your food."

Think it would work? I do!

WELL-DRESSED SECRETARY

CHAPTER 40.

THE secretary must be decorative, of course. But it is not your sole mission in life as it is with the receptionist. An afternoon costume is entirely wrong for you. Consequently you need not have black as your keynote.

We like to see a secretary in a suit. It looks trim, efficient, business like. Some secretaries affect men's wear suits aiming to look as much like their employers as possible.

This we think good sense provided they avoid a mannish appearance by using colorful sweaters, blouses, scarfs and clips.

Incidentally a suit is the cheapest possible way of affording many changes at slight cost since blouses obviously are less expensive than dresses.

Well, let's get you under way and see what you can do.

SEPTEMBER
Printed silk jacket dress (suit effect).
Brown sharkskin suit.

OCTOBER
Gray flannel suit.
Brown tweed jacket (to wear with flannel suit skirt).
Use sharkskin suit.

NOVEMBER
Green tweed suit, matching topcoat with gray fur.
Tweed coat over sharkskin suit.
Tweed coat over flannel suit.

DECEMBER
Gray opossum fur coat over flannel suit and over sharkskin suit, tweed suit, flannel skirt and tweed jacket.

JANUARY

FEBRUARY
(Same as January.)

MARCH
Same suits with green tweed topcoat.

APRIL
Suits without topcoats: flannel, sharkskin, tweed, flannel skirt, tweed jacket.

MAY

JUNE
Sharkskin suit. Silk jacket dress. Add brown cotton tweed suit, checked jacket.

JULY
Cotton tweed suit. Two-piece linen dress. Printed cotton suit. Brown linen skirt to wear with checked cotton tweed jacket.

AUGUST
(Same as July.)

Ten purchases — 14 combinations, exclusive of variations possible with blouses and sweaters, which can be practically endless.

A color scheme restricted to brown and gray, to help out the accessory problem.

This is just the theory of the thing—the formula upon which you can build your own wardrobe and impress your boss, who is well aware of your meager salary, with the fact that you're a darn good manager.

TOMORROW: The executive and the receptionist.

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

NEW YORK'S Miracle HOTEL WOMAN

How the Immensely Rich Mrs. Maria Kramer Took Over a Failing Business and Made It Pay.

By Alvin H. Goldstein

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.

THE most enchanting thing about Mrs. Maria Kramer is her smile, sandwiched between two deep dimples, almost but not quite dimming the brilliance of the 10½ carat diamond ring and emerald to balance she wears on the fingers of her left hand. She is New York's miracle hotel woman. She bought an Eighth avenue hotel, the Lincoln, for $7,000,000, put it in the black in a comparatively few months, and then was selected as president of another Manhattan hotel, making her queen of a $12,000,000 empire. But success is no new sensation to Mrs. Kramer.

Her story is no "rags to riches" fable. Over the din of a jitterbug band that she, herself, selected for the Lincoln, she frankly told a Post-Dispatch reporter that she has "always been all right, financially." Her father was a mining engineer who struck it rich in Arizona, a long way from the bright lights of Broadway. There were boarding schools and finishing schools, and European schools, and then there was the war.

"I always wanted to be useful, to amount to something in the world," Mrs. Kramer said. "If you want me to take my hair down, I'll tell you frankly that I wanted to be conspicuous. I joined the Red Cross as a nurse. I waded in mud and literally bathed in blood, and you can believe me when I tell you I got something out of it. I have never been hungry, but I have seen hungry men. I have never really suffered but I have seen men suffer. I have never been in want, but I know the value of luxuries. I don't think that my values would ever have been the same except for my war service."

It was not Mrs. Kramer but her publicity man who recalled that she had received a Legion of Honor ribbon for field service during the war. He pointed out that she was in Paris on a vacation trip when the war broke, that her brother enlisted immediately, and that she insisted on holding up her end.

After the war she returned to the States engaged to Reginald Ford, a British motion picture magnate and an internationally known yachtsman and sportsman. After her marriage in 1920 she made her home in Europe, known to Paris as the "best-dressed American woman," and, due to her preferences in color, "the lady in gray." Yellowed clippings bear testimony to the fact that she was Page One news when she returned to her native land. Pages were devoted to accounts of her purchases of historic furniture, particularly the bed of Empress Josephine, not unfamiliar to Napoleon, on which Mrs. Kramer now sleeps.

Three years after her marriage, Ford died. The widow, never without a soft spot in her heart for New York, decided to go into business, and at Forty-seventh street and Fifth avenue opened what later became the swankiest women's apparel shop in the area. She made frequent trips to Paris, and, in her own words, "came back with the latest dope."

MRS. MARIA KRAMER . . . "I COULD NEVER RESIGN MYSELF TO A LIFE OF IDLENESS."

"When I told them to wear black, they wore black," she recalled. "When I told them skirts were short—believe me, skirts were short. I made the styles in New York, and if you'd like to know it, I contributed to making them in Paris." For the doubter, Mrs. Kramer has clip after clip from New York newspapers, in which she gives stylists the latest word in seaboard interviews.

—o-o—

AS to her own attire, society columns of the day were incomplete without a description of the dress of the chic Mrs. Ford. Her Fifth avenue shop prospered. She became a familiar figure at the watering spots of the continent.

Meanwhile Max Kramer was approaching the peak of his career as architect and builder. He had designed and built No. 1 Sutton place, the most expensive apartment building in the city; he completed two Fifth avenue buildings and sold them at enormous profits; dozens of motion picture theaters in Manhattan and vicinity were of his making. He built the Edison Hotel and liked it so much he decided to keep it. The Empire Trust Co. wanted to have a home on Fifth avenue, and turned to Kramer for design and execution. He owned a comparatively small building at Forty-seventh street and Fifth avenue, which was leased by a women's apparel shop. Through an agent, he offered the proprietor, a Mrs. Ford, a fabulous profit to surrender the lease so he could proceed with a 35-story building on the site. To his amazement, she refused, and he decided to visit her himself. That's the way the former Mrs. Ford went into the hotel business. She married the landlord.

After the third or fourth visit, Kramer succumbed to the smile and dimple and traded the lease for a marriage certificate. Shortly thereafter he built the Edison and determined to run it himself.

"I could never resign myself to a life of idleness," Mrs. Kramer continued, "so of course I put in my oar when discussions of management were in progress. Although actually, I had nothing to do with the management, I really had a great deal to say about how things were done. My husband's health failed, and more and more I took over the executive end, but somebody else always had the final say-so. One night, I was sitting in the dining room and being somewhat bored, decided to take a walk. With my escorts, I walked idly along until we came to the Lincoln Hotel. Then I recalled that someone had told me it was for sale. I looked this way and that, the men with me paying little attention to my conduct.

"The next day I went to see the owners, and bought the whole business, lock, stock and barrel, for $7,000,000. People said I was crazy. The men who accompanied me that night gave me the biggest laugh. They said: 'Here we were, walking around with $7,000,000 and we didn't even know it.' It was an idea of mine that I could really do something big—I didn't know exactly what—with the place. After all, it was Eighth avenue, and it's difficult to get people from Broadway over to Eighth. They said I had to have a 'name band.'

—o-o—

"I DECIDED that if I had to have a 'name band,' I'd make the name. As an experiment, for the Green Room at the Edison, I picked a fellow named Barron. I called him Blue Barron. He played for me for months. And now he's a $5000-a-week attraction. Whoever heard of Artie Shaw before he came to the Blue Room at the Lincoln? I heard him play, and said: 'That's my band.' He was actually afraid to come to New York. He said he wasn't ready. I put him on here, and what happened—he's been in national magazines, he attracts more jitterbugs than Benny Goodman, and he's leaving here soon for a $7500-a-week engagement."

Just as she designs her own clothes, so does Mrs. Kramer direct the decorations for her hotels.

The Edison is now officially under her management since her recent election as president of the company. A statement issued by the board of directors after she was named to succeed her husband, set forth in part:

"Mrs. Kramer, in her operation of the Hotel Lincoln, which she will continue to direct personally, has shown a remarkable sagacity, reflected in the marked increase in the business of the Hotel Lincoln and it is this fact which determined us in making our present selection. In obtaining her as executive head of the Hotel Edison, we sincerely feel that we are acquiring the services of the outstanding hotel personality in the country and certainly an outstanding woman."

There was more behind the statement than the customary plug issued by publicity seekers. Mrs. Kramer's record at Hotel Lincoln discloses not only that she took a failing business and made it pay, but also that she did it at a particularly unauspicious time. This was her method:

"I came into the dining room and it was deserted," she said. 'What's your cover charge?' I asked. They told me they didn't have a cover charge. I said: 'What's the cover at the Waldorf?' 'Great grief,' they said, 'this is Eighth avenue.' I told them to put on the same cover charge they had at the Waldorf, and, lo and behold, the customers began to come in. I ordered banners with the band leader's name on them for the front of the building, and what do you think? Next week the Waldorf had banners with their band leader's name hanging out. With me the hotel business is just like it was in the dress business. When I tell them to wear black—they wear black."

—o-o—

MRS. KRAMER lives in the present. Questioning fails to draw from her an account of her earlier career. She will say that she is of Aztec and Spanish ancestry and the slightests trace of an accent marks her speech. She is either silent or completely frank. She told the Post-Dispatch reporter that it was the first time she had ever personally discussed her career, having previously dispensed a minimum of personal information through her publicity department. She made no secret that she is fond of clothes, but said she seldom indulges her whims as she is too busy with hotel management. Her penthouse apartment at the Lincoln, each room decorated in the style of a period, is one of her hobbies. At the Edison is the Empress Josephine bed, ornamenting one of her favorite suites. She has difficulty in making up her mind where to sleep at night—the Lincoln, Edison, 15 East Sixteenth street (Blue Book listing), or 8 East Sixty-seventh street, a town house. Then, of course, there is always the necessity of visiting the homes at Malibu Beach, Cal., Circleville, N. Y., and Cannes, France.

She is deeply religious and spends much spare time reading biblical writings.

"I pray for guidance in dispensing these riches," she said. "I feel as I walk down these halls, that they do not belong to me; they are only in my custody for a time. Some day I shall pass them on."

As she prepared at an early morning hour to leave the Blue Room with the last of the lingering jitterbugs, one of the dining-room employes asked in an aside conversation for the loan of $5. Artie Shaw requested a couple of days off for a rest. Each got what he asked for.

"She's a sucker for a sob story," her publicity man said.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION -:- -:- -:- By Martha Carr

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM a young married man in need of advice. My wife is a wonderful girl, about to become a mother. We live with her mother who, according to the doctor, has not much longer to live. My wife wants to live here until her mother passes away, as she believes leaving her at this time might cause her death.

This is where the trouble comes in: My sister-in-law lives close by, and I have grown to like her very much and am afraid this liking may turn to love and cause a divorce between us. My in-law comes to see us every day and I think she has the same feeling for me. Do you think it wise for us to keep living so near and let nature take its course? Or move away? Thank you.

Z. J. Z.

In plain words, your question should read:

"Shall I allow my spineless, disloyal self to be indulged and cause the tragic unhappiness of my wife at a sacred and tragic time and ruin the future happiness of my child and, in addition, bring death to a suffering elderly person who has given me my wife; or shall I use some common decency, control a temporary aberration of a weak mind and the criminal urge of a disloyal husband and a no less low-minded sister-in-law? In other words, shall I prove myself a man or just a common cur?"

—o-o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

MAY I THANK YOU and the donor for the lovely baby bed, that I obtained through your efforts?

Gratefully, W. J.

Dear Martha Carr:

I READ your column every day and feel that you will be able to do something for me. About two years ago I began going steady with a fellow and we often talked about getting married. About a year ago he decided that he did not want to go on and left me; then came back and asked for forgiveness, saying he was sorry for what he had done. When I took him back, he began telling people that we were going to be married Thanksgiving day. Now he has done the same thing over again, and I wouldn't take him back now under any circumstances. I loved him very much and he was respected by my whole family. He has a steady job and makes good money. I can't understand what has come over him. We are both 24 years old. Please tell me what to do in case he should ever come back.

DISGUSTED.

It seems to me that you've solved the problem of what to do in case the young man comes back by saying you wouldn't take him back under any circumstances. Certainly a man so untrustworthy as to put you in an embarrassing and humiliating potion twice, both times without explanation, isn't worth the time wasted on him. Evidently he doesn't want to get married and either doesn't know the kindest way of breaking the affair off, or else likes to have a "steady girl" at his beck and call, without restricting his own freedom. Either way, you should lose nothing by making this separation final.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

APROPOS of the letter written by one who is overrun by other people's children—why do not young mothers teach their children how to behave inside of a house, their own or their friends'? One afternoon a friend brought her darling 5-year-old son to our house. He started by twisting himself in one of my panel curtains on a front window and tore it (no correction from mother!), then he went into the kitchen, opened the icebox, ate some cold chicken and the icing off the top of my cake.

I have two boys, 6½ and 9 years of age. When we go anywhere with them we take a game along and a children's book they can mark with colored crayons. They are told before we go to the friend's house not to touch anything. In this way my husband and I manage to keep our good friends, in spite of the children.

MRS. A. B.

—o-o—

Dear Martha Carr:

I HAVE been married four years and have two darling baby girls, one 3 and one 2 years old. My husband has never supported me. He gets a job, but holds it only a short time and spends most of his time in beer taverns and never brings his pay home. The time he is not working, we live on relief.

I do not love him any longer and have repeatedly asked him to leave, which he will not do. I must depend on my own family for what clothes I and the children have and for the greater part of the household furnishings. I have no money, nowhere to go. My relatives live in a small apartment with no room for us. Can you advise me of a suitable institution where I might be able to place the children until I can secure employment? Either free or small charge. What do you advise me to do? Stay or leave him? My husband has been in trouble repeatedly and is now a parolee. It seems as if I have given him every chance but he does no better.

M. E. H.

For the sake of yourself and your children, it would quite likely be best for you to leave your husband, at least temporarily, until he comes to his senses. If, later on, he indicates that he is willing to work steadily and provide properly for you, you can then decide if he is deserving of another chance. Meanwhile, it would be best to place your children in a day nursery, and for this I suggest that you inquire at the United Charity headquarters, 613 Locust street. If you feel in need of legal advice, consult the Free Legal Aid Bureau, Municipal Courts Building, Twelfth and Market.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

The choir of Union Methodist Church is now holding auditions prior to its spring work. If those interested will write me, care of the choir, 3610 Grandel square, stating their voice and qualifications, I shall arrange an audition with our director.

ARTHUR BARKAU,
Choir President.

WE nominate as best controlled woman of the week, the salesgirl we observed trying to wait on five women, all of whom were pawing avidly at a table of second-hand books priced at 15 cents. As one might suspect, at this mere bagatelle, the books were not exactly literary gems. One woman nudging through the crowd caught the salesgirl's eye.

"Do you have 'The Citadel'?" she inquired brightly.

Blanching obviously, but taking a stern grip on herself, the salesgirl managed a controlled, "No, madam, we don't."

"'Green Light'?" pursued the woman.

Again the negative nod and still a third time, as the woman requested still another best seller. Shaking her head in annoyance, the woman turned and walked away. As she left, we could see the salesgirl clutching the counter. How temptation must have prodded her, but how nobly she conquered it. Never once did she bellow wildly after the retreating figure, "Whadya want for 15 cents—th' Encyclopedia Britannica?"

—o-o—

ANY OF YOU housewives who've been unhappily chafing about your chromium equipped kitchenettes should make it a point this week to buzz into the department store which is showing the display of antique kitchen implements, and see what your distaff ancestors of a couple of centuries ago had to contend with. Salad bowls the size of a small horse trough, pancake turners that looked like fraternity paddles, waffle irons resembling a magnified pair of pliers, measuring cups big enough to mete out the ingredients for a month's supply of bread or pastry. As you totter away from this showing of Gargantuan gadgets, you'll heave a gusty sigh of thanks for these days of streamlining and smaller families.

Much of this kitchenware, which is the property of Andrew J. Haire, New York trade journal publisher, dates back to the eighteenth century and some even to the seventeenth. Among the latter are a broiler and a toaster, both equipped with long handles so they could be used directly over the coals of the open fireplace in those pre-stove days. Quite a far yelp from both are the modern equivalents shown alongside—the electric broiler that does everything but carve your steak, and a toaster that tints the bread to your particular esthetic taste, turns off the current while you loll lazily behind the newspaper, and then flings the finished product up in the air, so that mother's little helper can bat it across the table to you, should he be in a roistering mood.

—o-o—

AS FOR MONDAY, in the household of only day before yesterday, it was, judging from the evidence, not merely blue but black and blue. The long and lumpy washboard looks fully capable of bringing on an attack of those nasty little gray fellows that you see in the soap flakes ads, poking with pitchforks at poor defenseless women bent wearily over the tubs. Then the iron that put the final touches on pa's shirt was a clever little contraption, too. Outwardly quite similar to the present day irons, the little catch lies in the trap door at the side, through which you inserted hot coals, the sole heating unit of the iron.

Other helps to the housewife included a lemon squeezer that must have required years of trunk closing experience before one could work up the necessary power, scoops to take food from the big iron pots and a pusher to get it onto the plates, cleaver-like knives and forks, all large and clumsy looking to us today.

—o-o—

AFTER A FEW DAYS of this standing "over a hot stove, mending your socks, and what thanks do I get for it," who could blame the little eighteenth century woman if she wielded the rolling pin, a lengthy rough hewn object that according to the explanatory card was called realistically a "wooden club."

Display items that may interest the masculine contingent more include an Indian mortar and pestle, the size of a tree trunk, and a square lantern that looked like a bird cage and was carried by the town crier as he broadcast the news reports.

Unique among old-time kitchen contrivances was the mouse trap. A large wooden affair with ropes hanging from beams overhead, it looks more like a miniature gallows, until you get the idea. It seems the mouse, unsophisticated creature, ran into this arbor arrangement, thereby releasing a lever which let down a rope to which was attached a wooden block which in turn knocked the mouse unconscious. No, little Audrey, modernized mouse traps do not have a lever that releases smelling salts to bring the little rodent out of his kayo.

QUEEN MARY—Always a Dominating Person

England's Dowager Queen, Now Past 71, Still Rules British Royal Family—Excepting Edward—With An Iron Hand.

By Seymour Berkson

CHAPTER NINE.

THIS is a matter on which I must get the Queen's advice, was a familiar saying of the late King George V of Britain, especially in the latter years of his rein when more and more he leaned on the judgment of Queen Mary. Even when their children asked permission to do something, the King would usually say: "Go and ask your mother." King George was a gentle soul who cared little for court life and royal etiquette. It was the Queen who ruled over the royal household with an austere dignity that overawed not only the servants but all of the members of her own family with the exception of her eldest son, who is now the Duke of Windsor.

THIS is the ninth of a series of articles on the kings and queens of the world from the book "Their Majesties" by Seymour Berkson, foreign correspondent for American newspapers. Tomorrow Berkson will discuss King Gustaf of Sweden.

QUEEN MARY . . . "THERE SEEMS TO BE LITTLE DOUBT THAT KING GEORGE WAS A HENPECKED HUSBAND."

There seems to be little doubt that King George was a henpecked husband. He was capable, however, of surprising flashes of rebellion, such as the one on that day in May of 1935 when he and the Queen were riding along Piccadilly in London during the procession in honor of their silver jubilee. They were in an open carriage. Every few minutes the Queen nudged the King and whispered: "Now tip your hat, George, and greet those people over there. They seem to be a very important delegation." This went on for some time, the King getting angrier and angrier each time he was nudged until finally he turned to Queen Mary and exploded: "Mary, if you don't stop that, I'll get out and walk." The Queen bit her lip and did her own bowing during the rest of the procession.

On other occasions, Queen Mary objected to the number of cigars the King smoked and the amount of brandy he took after dinner. But all in all, their life was a happy one. The King was relieved to have a Queen who took so many of the royal burdens off his shoulders. As for Queen Mary, wrangle though she frequently did with him, she was devoted to George V. When he died Jan. 20, 1936, she maintained a queenly grip on her emotions through all of the public ceremonies but at the private reception that followed in Buckingham Palace she broke down and cried. It was the first time any of her retinue had seen the Queen cry and only once since has she been observed weeping.

That was the night of Edward VIII's abdication. In early October of 1936, the Dowager Queen said farewell to Buckingham Palace, where she had spent 26 years of her life. She moved to nearby Marlborough House, the traditional "last home" of widowed British queens. When the abdication crisis broke on a startled Britain, Queen Mary tried her utmost to persuade Edward to give up Mrs. Simpson and keep his throne. Right up to the last moment, she kept on trying. The night Edward was preparing to sign away his throne, Queen Mary left Marlborough House alone in her car and ordered the chauffeur to take her directly to Windsor Castle where Edward was spending the last few hours of his reign. It was a foggy night and the Queen's entire household waited up for her return. They had never seen her go out unaccompanied before. They knew what was in the air, as palace servants always do, and they were too excited to retire. The clock struck midnight, then one a. m. . . . two . . . three . . .

It was after 3 when the Queen's car drove up, the palace doors opened and the haggard figure of the Dowager Queen appeared in the entrance hall. Lines of anguish made a ghostly mask of her face. She stiffened up when she noticed all the servants were about and she strode through the hall without a nod or a word to her retinue. Straight up the stairway to her room she walked and shut the door behind her.

One of the gentlemen-in-waiting finally mustered enough courage to approach her. Knocking gently at the door, he entered the room and found the Queen sobbing, her head buried in her hands. When she saw him, she raised her head, dabbed her tears with a little embroidered handkerchief and murmured as if to herself: "If only he had once said he minded."

—o-o—

THE passing years have healed the wound, although some say they thought they saw the Dowager Queen wipe a tear from her eye as she watched the coronation of her second son, King George VI, and again when she visited the Welsh National Museum at Cardiff and looked at the regalia in which the Prince of Wales was invested 27 years before.

Queen Mary, now past 71, leads a quiet life at Marlborough House, surrounded by her favorite collections of regency furniture, old silver, China and rather gaudy water colors. There are 60 servants in her house, but no electric buzzer system. The Dowager Queen rigidly adheres to her old-fashioned tastes and when she rings for a servant it is with an old hand bell handed down from the time of Charles II. Her retinue wears scarlet livery and outside her boudoir an elderly page in blue uniform, his breast covered with medals, sits in almost constant attendance.

The Dowager Queen still rules the British royal family with an iron hand. She is personally superintending in detail the education of her granddaughter, Princess Elizabeth, who will some day be Queen of England. She advises King George VI on many matters of state and counsels his wife, Queen Elizabeth, on what kind of clothes she should wear. Queen Mary has very definite ideas about how a Queen should dress. She never uses cosmetics. She has never given up her attachment to those quaint toques and turbans which have made her hats the butt of jokes throughout the world. What few people know is that one of the reasons the Queen favors this particular kind of headgear is so that the curious public on both sides of a street can see her majestic profile as she rides by.

QUEEN MARY has a huge wardrobe with hundreds of dresses, but they are almost all alike, with discreet high necks and skirts to her ankles. That is why she looks about the same as photographs of her taken a decade ago. When the Duke of Windsor was Prince of Wales he tried to induce his mother to assume a gayer note in the clothes she wore. She emphatically refused. A stickler for propriety, she has even laid down style rules for court dress and for the annual Ascot racing season. Once when several women came to be presented in court wearing skirts slashed to the knee, the Queen flew into a rage and ordered the chamberlains to stop anybody in such garb from entering again. Likewise, no member of the royal set dares to go to the Ascot races in a sleeveless gown. The gates of the royal enclosure at Ascot are manned by special watchers who are stationed there to scrutinize the attire of all the ladies who enter.

Among her other eccentricities, Queen Mary insists on carrying an old-fashioned long-handled umbrella, impeccably rolled, despite the fact these have been out of date since the war. Her only streak of ostentation is her love of jewels. She is fond of blazing diamonds. Recently, when she posed for a portrait wearing her most famous diamonds, she remarked: "I don't think they shine quite enough." She referred to the diamonds as "chips." They were almost egg-sized pieces of the huge Cullinan diamond. The Queen loves those state occasions on which she can bedeck herself in her most majestic flowing gown and wear her heaviest ropes of pearls and her most glittering collar of diamonds.

Royal etiquette is an obsession with Queen Mary. She is obstinate about insisting on the observance of all the minute regulations of the court. From the day she came to the throne in 1910 with George V, she was determined to maintain a rigid respectability in Buckingham Palace and to avoid the gay international set of whose philanderings she heartily disapproved. She laid the law down to George V in these words:

"I am not going to have anyone at this court about whom there is the slightest breath of scandal . . . We have gone far enough already. Now I'm going to set it right."

Apparently, the queen was referring to the free and easy court life of Edward VII as the one that had "gone far enough." She meant that gay divorcees, music hall heroines, and aristocratic courtesans would no longer be welcome at the British Court. Queen Mary had been horrified at all the goings-on at her father-in-law's court. The daughter of the German Duke and the English-born Duchess of Teck, Mary was raised in England during the heyday of Queen Victoria. Victoria herself had taken a great interest in the Princess and in 1891 Mary was betrothed to Victoria's grandson, the Duke of Clarence, eldest son of the Future King Edward VII. Then came the first tragedy in her life. Five weeks before the date set for the wedding, the Duke died. Mary was heartbroken. She had really fallen in love with him. The Duke's brother, who was many years later to become George V, inherited his place in the line of succession to the throne—and his bride-to-be. George, then the Duke of York, proposed to the sad Princess who was still mourning his brother and knew that it was not a love match, that George was doing the gallant, chivalrous thing. They were married July 6, 1893, at the Chapel Royal in St. James' Palace with the aged Queen Victoria looking down at them from a balcony. And as the years rolled by a real affection sprang up between the couple.

Queen Mary reared her children with the same iron hand that she used in ruling the court life of Buckingham Palace. Her only daughter, the Princess Royal, was completely dominated by the Queen who chose her books, her dresses, and when the time came, her husband.

WHEN the Prince of Wales was getting ready to make his first visit to the United States in 1919, Queen Mary read every book about the country she could get her hands on. Then she summoned the Prince to her apartment and gave him a three-hour lecture, just before he sailed, on how to conduct himself in America.

Queen Mary's daily routine at Marlborough House is just as rigid as it was when she was at the height of her glory as a reigning Queen. She is awakened at 7:30 a. m. by her personal maid who brings in with her every morning the Queen's favorite blend of Indian tea and a biscuit. Next, the hairdresser arrives and waves the Queen's hair, while she looks through her mail. After she has finished with the hairdresser, Queen Mary has an English breakfast with all the trimmings. Then she confers with her household officials, with the head housekeeper about matters of administration of the palace, with the principal chef about the day's menu, and with the gardener about her latest whim in flowers. Twice a week, the Queen tours every nook and corner of her house, including the kitchen. This is a practice she got used to at Buckingham Palace, especially during the World War, when rigid economies were necessary. The Queen at that time learned to keep a careful watch over household expenditures and she has never lost the habit.

Queen Mary spends several periods of the day reading and answering her vast volume of mail. Some of these come addressed to "Mrs. Queen" and regale her with the small talk of English provincials. During the illness of the late King George, she used to get an assortment of medical advice from her subjects such as "Rub your husband's chest with camphorated oil when the bronchial signs appear, a thing I always do."

The happiest time of the Queen's life is spent with her children and grandchildren. She loves to have them all over to Marlborough House for luncheon or tea. When King George and Queen Elizabeth come to see her, they kiss her first on each cheek (as a member of the family) and then they kiss her hand (as a courtesy due the Queen). This pleases the old Dowager, for she loves to keep up the royal customs. In this connection, she always makes it a point to be 10 minutes early for any appointment she may have. That has long been a practice in the British royal family.

Queen Mary's once blond hair has turned white, but her eyes are as blue as ever and her queenly figure as erect. Her only "dissipation" consists of two cigarettes a day, one after lunch, the other after dinner; a sip of wine now and then; and an occasional waltz with one of her sons. She has had only a small circle of personal friends, but among these have been two American-born ladies—the late Duchess of Roxburghe, formerly May Goelet of New York, who died recently, and the Countess of Granard, a daughter of the late Ogden Mills of New York.

The Queen has refused steadfastly to have anything to do with the Duchess of Windsor, whom she blames for the abdication crisis despite her son's own assurances that if the former Mrs. Simpson had had her way he would not have given up his throne for her. The only times Queen Mary set eyes on Mrs. Simpson were before she knew her son had fallen in love with the former Baltimore belle. After she learned of their attachment, she refused to have anything to do with her and has not seen her since.

Queen Mary's main hobby is collecting art. She is recognized as one of the outstanding authorities on period furniture, so much so that dealers usually dread her appearance in their shops, because they know she is a sharp trader who always gets things at her own price.

The passing of Queen Mary will mean the passing of a phase of court life which has come to be as closely identified with her personality as the Victorian era was with that of Queen Victoria. And the verdict of history will undoubtedly be that she was "Every inch a Queen," a woman who never forgot and never let other people forget that she was born to rule.

Among the other dowager queens of Europe, there has been no more striking contrast to dignified Queen Mary than the late Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania, who passed away after a life as colorful and adventurous as Mary's was conventional and sedate.

To the very last, Queen Marie tried to be Cleopatra, Sarah Bernhardt and Elinor Glyn at the same time. As spectacularly flamboyant in death as she was in life, Marie saw to it in her will that her finale on earth was no drab affair, but rather a dramatic climax. In accordance with her instructions, her heart was cut out, placed in a mauve-lined silver urn and enshrined in the chapel of her favorite Balcic Castle on the shore of the Black Sea. And by her express command, the ladies of the Rumanian court wore no black in mourning her death. Instead, they wore the nearest thing they could find to the color she described in her last testament as "violet cardinal." Her body, a spray of orchids over her bossom, lay in state in the rococo Byzantine Room of Cotroceni Palace, the same hall where the body of her husband, King Ferdinand of Rumania, was placed after his death in 1927. Queen Marie used to tell foreigners whom she received in audience in the Byzantine Room "I designed this hall. But, you should have seen it when my husband lay there in death at the far end of the room—it was too beautiful for words!"

—o-o—

QUEEN MARY left behind her an open letter to the Rumanian people in which she appealed to all members of the royal family as well as her subjects to co-operate for the good of the country. To all who know the controversies raging within the Rumanian royal family, this farewell letter had a plaintive note in it. For years, the Dowager Queen had been estranged from her son, King Carol, although her fatal illness which eliminated her from the politics of Rumania softened Carol's attitude when the end came near.

Nothing was more characteristic of Queen Marie than the macabre arrangements she made in setting the stage for her last scene. She was a great actress as the events related in the previous chapter on Rumania bear witness. Her vitality was boundless. It did not suffice for her to dominate the politics of Rumania as she did until Carol's return from exile. Her craving for self-expression found outlets in countless other ways. She had a procession of casual romances that shocked the stodgier courts of Europe, especially Queen Mary's in England. She fancied herself a great literary genius and published volume after volume with such titles as "The Lily of Life," "My Country," "Stealers of Light." She also wrote her autobiography. Once, during a feud with Queen Sofia of Greece, Queen Marie wrote a satiric operetta about her and arranged to have it performed in Paris.

She was indisputably the most beautiful queen in Europe. Theatrical in her every movement, she dazzled the peace conference after the World War into giving her country a lion's share of the Balkan spoils and when she came back to announce the victory to her people she rode through the streets on a white horse at the head of a Graustarkian procession. During the opera bouffe of her American tour in 1926 she knelt just as dramatically on a buffalo robe in North Dakota while painted Indians adopted her into the Sioux tribe and named her "The Woman Who Was Waited For."

The latter years of her life were tragic enough. The rift with Carol was never completely healed. And added to it was the grief of a bitter feud between Carol and his young brother, Nicholas, whom he has exiled.

A semi-invalid during the last few years, because of a rare liver ailment that finally caused her death, Queen Marie never lost her zest for life, her restless search for that elusive something which for want of a better word she described in her writings as "beauty."

She wrote her own epitaph when she penned in one of the last literary products of her fertile pen: "I have lived my life with every fiber. There was never a way to Damascus in my life, events which occurred were sometimes merry ones, but mostly tragical or painful and this has modified my appreciation of many things. . . ."

—o-o—

ALL OF Europe's remaining dowager queens have had more than their share of sorrow. Queen Elizabeth of Belgium is still mourning the untimely death of her beloved husband, the late King Albert, who fell to his death in 1934 while mountain-climbing. Theirs was a royal romance of true love, one of the very few among the kings and queens of the world. Queen Elizabeth was the daughter of a Bavarian duke who had become a famous eye specialist. She herself studied medicine and was a full-fledged physician when she met Prince Albert of Belgium and fell in love with him. Their life together was one of intense mutual devotion. I remember seeing them holding hands as they walked along the rue de la Paix in Paris on their annual visit to an American dentist. They were completely wrapped up in each other. Together, they had endured the tragedy of the World War. The Queen had to choose between the land of her birth and the land of her adoption and she chose the latter. Together they had rebuilt the Belgian monarchy along the most enlightened lines in Europe.

When Albert was killed, Queen Elizabeth lay prostrated for weeks, too crushed even to speak. She took steps to retire into a convent, but her sons pleaded with her and finally she was dissuaded. The Queen was just beginning to regain her composure when tragedy struck at the Belgian royal house for the second time. Her daughter-in-law, Queen Astrid, was killed in an automobile accident near Lucerne. After recovering from this second shock, the Dowager Queen found a new interest in life that has helped her to forget her tragedy. Her little motherless grandchildren, Prince Baudouin, Prince Albert, and Princess Josephine, are being reared under her direction. She also finds some solace in sculpture which she has been studying for several years and in the violin which she plays with real talent. But not a month goes by that the Dowager Queen fails to visit the late King Albert's study at Laeken castle near Brussels. The study has been preserved exactly as her husband left it on that fatal day when he went off to stretch his long legs in his favorite pastime.

The story of the Dowager Queen Marie of Yugo-Slavia is not much different, except that the death of her husband was more violent. Since King Alexander's assassination Queen Marie has lived in seclusion with her son, the Boy-King Peter, and has devoted herself entirely to his education.

In far away Japan, there is another Dowager Queen, about whom very little is known except that she spends the declining days of her life raising her own tea leaves and writing poetry. She is the Dowager Empress Sadako, mother of the present Emperor of Japan. Her husband, the late Emperor Yoshihito, died in 1926, and in accordance with the imperial Japanese tradition, she immediately retired to the seclusion of a separate garden-encircled palace in Tokyo from which she never emerges.

Features of General Interest

LET ME Suggest

by Josephine Walter

BREATHES there a woman, no matter how domesticated, who cannot get a slight lift from a new hat, the admiring glance of a gentleman, a new shade of lipstick or, best of all, a trip to New York? Well, I have just returned from such a trip, and I am literally walking with my head in the clouds and my mind in a jumble. I have seen and heard so much about the new trends and ideas in decoration that I have mental indigestion, trying to sort out the various facts and present them to you.

Before I go into descriptions of outstanding rooms that I have seen, however, I want to give you a general impression of what the New York decorators are working with and in what way. To say at the outset that everything goes would, in a way, be correct, for sooner or later you see practically every period, every material, every color and every type of accessory used in some new and adroit manner by some decorator. Yet by assembling all the odds and ends of information you begin to see that there are certain broad trends which will undoubtedly affect decoration for some time to come.

—o-o—

My main trouble, however, is in knowing where to start, for I have so much to tell. I think that this week I will devote to accessories, for there is no doubt that New York is gadget mad. More attention is being paid to lamps, flowers, pictures and table accessories than ever before, many decorators feeling that in these things lies the main chance of the average person to give a room an individual and contemporary air.

—o-o—

● TAKE LAMPS, for example. Never have they been so different and appealing. Never again will you dare pick some nice, simple base, put a white silk shade on it and let it go at that. The base you pick must give the impression of having been chosen with the exact spot in mind and with a shade that could have belonged to no other base. If your room will permit it at all, be sure to select a huge, outsized one, for lamps are imposing affairs today. The base, if possible, should be made from anything that wasn't supposed to be a lamp base originally — for instance, an old apothecary jar, a hunting horn, or an antique bird cage. Coffee pots, urns, wine coolers or egg cookers of old Sheffield silver or tole are dear to the hearts of the decorators.

Shades are just as exciting as the bases, themselves. Dark shades are becoming increasingly popular, especially in metallic papers in such tones as emerald green, deep sapphire blue, or brown. Marbelizing, as it is in everything else, is popular for shades, and shades of thin wood veneer are most unusual and effective. If possible, the shade is identified in some way with the base. For instance, if a base has a painted design of ivy leaves or flowers, ivy leaves of silk or real artificial flowers are placed around the shade to match the painted design. One of the most unusual lamps I saw had a simple, white columnar base and a shade made of gray and white striped awning material. Very new, too, are the lamps of plaster with inset bands of crystal.

● FOR YEARS, we have been eliminating gadgets from our rooms more and more, keeping tables as free of dust catchers as possible. Well, you better dig down in the cellar or root around in the attic and bring some of these buried treasures back to light. Just as jewelry, once banished from milady's attire, is now back in full force, so now no room will be considered complete without some interesting gadgets. Old patch boxes, pharmacy jars, figurines, clasped hands, all are spread out in profuse array on the tables of New York. Little brackets containing collections of miniatures, clocks, or china are focal points of wall interest in many rooms, while groups of small paintings or miniatures are hung in clusters or suspended at intervals on wide ribbon hanging from the ceiling.

BEST OF ALL, however, are the mechanical bibelots of a generation or two ago. A little blackamoor lifting his fife to play a tune which comes out of a music box is a gadget to thrill the heart of any New York decorator. My own personal extravagance was an eighteenth century French "Loterie" (roulette wheel to you) which plays the Marseillaise as the wheel turns. Lacquer pieces, inlaid with mother-of-pearl, are becoming connoisseur pieces and old doll furniture is used for cigarette boxes and such. Even stuffed birds are welcome residents of some of our very best parlors. In fact, New York is mad about our feathered friends and they are seen, not only in decorative ornaments but also in pictures as well.

And speaking of pictures, we might as well mention the many unusual methods of framing that are now being used. Felt is a favored fabric for picture frames as well as upholstery. Other frames are made of plaster which is designed to resemble material that has been tufted or quilted. And plaster, in its pure white, elaborately fashioned forms, is one of the favored materials both for picture and mirror frames, as well as in the decoration of walls.

And much more of all this in the weeks to come, with the hope that some of it will prove inspiring for your spring decorating problems.

Just a Few Cynical Facts About "Better" Foods Grandma Cooked

By Sheila Hibben

Authority on Fine Foods.

PITY THE INVALID OF THAT BYGONE ERA—IF HE LIKED GOOD FOOD.

GOOD OLD DAYS

THERE seems lately to have been a regular epidemic of magazine pieces to the glorification of the food our grandmothers used to enjoy, or if not enjoy, at least cook. Of course, there is that very human conviction that things were always better before we got to know them, but even allowing for that sort of attitude the cooking of our forbears appears to be coming in for a lot of indiscriminate praise recently.

Wondering just how indiscriminate the praise really is, the other day I sat down with a stock of old copies of Godey's Lady's Book, running from the late 1870 to around 1885, and in no articular sequence and tried to figure out just how well our fathers and mothers were eating in those days.

If you have ever given any time to the study of those brown and spotted pages of Godey's, you will realize that trying to figure out anything at all from them isn't easy. There are so many delightful matters that come up to sidetrack you from the business in hand that you get nowhere at all. I, for instance, out to inform myself about what sort of food the American middle class lady "of refinement and delicacy" offered her family 50 odd years ago, found myself frequently off on a far livelier scent.

There, on the very page with the instructions for making calf's foot jelly, a discussion of the right and wrong kind of crepe veils (it was the death of Gen. Grant a short time before that had got crepe so much in the news) seemed considerably more interesting than any sort of jelly. And even more animated and authoritative than the pronouncements on crepe were Godey's warnings at the risks run in using samples of unfamiliar food products. Especially in the early eighties did the new "and completely unknown" brands of baking powder come in for the editor's castigations, so that I find it hard to keep my mind on the recipe for what is modestly called "a plain pudding," or even on the more pretentious cliam of "a good pudding."

It is the Godey recipes which make me wonder whether our parents and grandparents lived as well as we have been led to believe. From the early eighteen thirties to the beginning of the nineties the Lady's Book was the Bible of the middle-class American woman, and recipes for puddings as well as less weighty matters must have been taken as the unadulterated Milk of the Word. . . .

Whether the husbands of these ladies who experimented with the Godey recipes considered a pudding made of bread, milk, an egg, and molasses, "good," is not stated, or whether they liked pickles made of nasturtiums, or thought "the pods of radishes" worth preserving.

Another characteristic of the Lady's Book food page was that the same recipe appeared with such frequency. Evidently the mania for change had not taken possession of the ladies of an older generation, and if "a Nice Veal Loaf" was nice in one issue of the book, it was just as nice in several succeeding issues.

It is, however, in the matter of invalid's diet that we ought to be thankful we are having our grippes and arthritises in 1939 instead of in the 1880s. Under the head of "delicate and appetizing nourishment for the sick," Godey's gives recipes for bread jelly, arrow root jelly, rice jelly, tapioca jelly, molasses and butter, apple water and Indian gruel. A man or woman who cared about food in those days must either have died or stayed well.

Following are some of my recipes for modern enjoyment:

TOMATO AND CORN SOUP
(For Four.)

One cup canned corn, one and one-fourth cups tomato juice, one slice onion (chopped), one teaspoon chopped green pepper, one tablespoon sugar, one teaspoon chopped parsley, four cups rich milk, one tablespoon cornstarch, salt and pepper.

Put the tomato juice, onion, green pepper and parsley in a saucepan and let boil very gently, covered, for 10 minutes. Boil milk and corn together for two minutes, and mash the corn through a sieve. Put back over the fire to reheat. Dissolve the cornstarch in a tablespoonful of cold water, add to the tomato mixture, and let thicken for a minute or two before passing through a strainer. Combine the corn and tomato mixtures, season with salt and pepper and sugar, and serve with croutons.

CALF'S LIVER WITH WINE
(For Four.)

Four slices of calf's liver, butter, one small shallot (chopped), two teaspoons flour, one-third cup dry white wine, three-fourths cup of broth, one teaspoon chopped parsley, salt and pepper.

Wipe the slices of liver with a damp cloth, and rub them with salt and pepper. Saute in butter over a brisk fire, turning to brown on each side for about two minutes, and just before they are browned add finely-chopped shallot. Pour in mixed wine and broth, lower the heat, and cook slowly until the liver is done. Cream flour with two teaspoonfuls of butter, add to the sauce, and let boil up once or twice. Arrange the slices on a hot platter, and pour the sauce over them. Sprinkle with parsley and serve at once.

PORK CHOPS IN CREAM

Four pork chops, three-quarter cup cream, one teaspoon pickled horseradish, one small white onion, one teaspoon soy sauce, coarsely ground black pepper, salt. Have the butcher cut loin or rib chops a little over an inch thick. Rub them with salt and pepper, arrange in dripping pan with the small onion, and brown well on both sides under the broiler. Add three-fourths cup boiling water, and finish cooking in fairly hot oven (425 Fahrenheit), basting several times. When the water has nearly cooked away, pour in the cream seasoned with horseradish, soy sauce and salt and pepper. Let this sauce bubble up in the dripping pan several times, basting the chops with it. Arrange chops on hot platter, remove onion, pour on sauce.

SAUCE FOR BROILED FISH

Heat three-fourths' cup of butter in a double boiler, and when melted season with one teaspoonful of pickled horseradish, one teaspoonful of fresh lime juice, one teaspoonful finely-chopped chives and the same quantity of finely-chopped parsley. Add salt and enough tabasco to make fairly hot. Serve in a sauceboat with the fish.

RABBIT STEW (for 6)

One rabbit, one-fourth pound bacon, six small white onions, garlic, one cup red wine, one carrot, one slice onion, one and three-fourths cups stock, flour, one-fourth teaspoon thyme, one bay leaf, two whole cloves, few grains mace, one sprig parsley, salt and pepper.

Have butcher clean and skin rabbit, but disjoint it carefully at home. Rub pieces with salt and pepper. Rub a bowl with a piece of cut garlic and throw the garlic away. Put the rabbit in the bowl, pour on red wine, and add onion slice, thyme, bay leaf and spices, and let the rabbit stand in this bath for two hours. Heat a large heavy pot, put into it the bacon cut in cubes, and the carefully peeled white onions. Take the pieces of rabbit out of the wine, dust each piece in flour and fry in the bacon fat with the onions. When the rabbit is a good brown, add broth and the red wine in which it has soaked, along with onion slice and herbs. Add carrot, parsley, and salt and pepper if necessary. Let boil briskly for two minutes, cover closely and let simmer over a very low fire for two hours. At the end of this time, if the sauce is not of the desired consistency, add a butterball rubbed with a teaspoon full of flour. Arrange pieces of rabbit on a hot platter, surround by white onions and strain the sauce over all. Serve immediately.

PREPARATION OF "NEW" HAMS -:- -:- -:- By George Rector

GENERALLY speaking there is very little new in the culinary art to write about. An interesting development, however, has occurred in the curing and smoking of hams which deserves mention.

I have become particularly interested in this new process which has brought about an outstanding achievement in flavor and tenderness of ham. You see, these new hams—and we will refer to them as new hams—are prepared and made tender and all ready for you to serve, with or without heating. No more old-fashioned scrubbing, soaking or boiling to get the ham ready for the table. Preparation requires minutes instead of hours to place this delicious meat on your table.

Just to give you an idea how simple it is to prepare this new ham. I recently purchased a middle cut, two inches thick, known as a ham steak. It was placed in the hot broiler oven, seven minutes of heat applied to one side, then turned and basted with drippings in pan, and with five minutes of additional broiling the ham steak was ready to serve. The big surprise of it all came in the eating. The ham was so tender that I actually cut it with a fork. How's that for tenderness?

The time in baking a whole tender ham is amazingly short, as you will see when you read the recipe that follows. Ham is a most economical food, as every last scrap of it can be made into a tasty dish. Moreover, ham is good for breakfast, luncheon or dinner, and this fact alone should recommend the frequent purchase of a whole ham as an everyday household commodity.

BAKED TENDER HAM

Place whole ham on rack in baking pan, fat side up. Put in moderate oven (350 degrees), allowing seven minutes to the pound. Remove from oven, score fat, dot with cloves and pour over the top one cup of pineapple juice and one cup of corn syrup blended together. Return to oven and bake approximately 15 minutes longer, basting until ham is delicately browned. Serve with sauteed pineapple slices.

CREAMED HAM, RICE BORDER

Wash three-fourths cup of rice in cold water and drain. Cook in top part of double boiler with two and one-half cups of milk until rice is cooked, or about one hour 15 minutes. Season with salt and pepper and stir in one tablespoon of butter. Pack rice into buttered ring mold, place mold in pan containing hot water and set it in moderate oven (350 degrees) 20 minutes.

In the meantime prepare the creamed ham. Melt two tablespoons of butter, blend in two tablespoons of flour and gradually add one and one-half cups of scalded milk, stirring constantly until sauce is smooth and reaches boiling point. Season with a few grains of nutmeg and add one and one-half cups of diced cooked ham. Heat to boiling point, remove from fire, add two egg yolks slightly beaten and stir until thoroughly blended with the sauce. Season to taste with salt. Place a large platter on top of rice mold, invert and carefully unmold rice, pour creamed ham in center and decorate rice border with a sprinkling of finely chopped parsley.

HAM RISOTTO

One cup of diced cooked ham, two cups of boiled rice, two cups of canned tomatoes, one cup of broth (any kind), one-half cup of green pepper, minced, one teaspoon of onion, minced.

Cook the green pepper in the broth for five minutes. Add the tomatoes, onion and cooked rice. Bring to a boil and add the diced ham. Risotto is to be served moist but not watery, so if there is much liquid reduce it by evaporation with a few minutes of cooking. Season with a dash of Worcestershire, salt, pepper and paprika. Place a pat of butter on each serving. Very delicious, and I am sure that you will agree with me.

HAM MOUSSE, EPICUREAN SAUCE

Here is a recipe to use up the last morsels:

Two cups ham, finely chopped; one tablespoon of granulated gelatine, one-half cup of hot water, one teaspoon mixed mustard, one-eighth teaspoon paprika, few grains cayenne, one cup of heavy cream.

Put chopped ham in a bowl and pound with pestle until thoroughly mashed. Soften the gelatine in a very little cold water and dissolve in hot water and add it to the prepared ham. Season with mustard, paprika and cayenne. Add the cream which has been stiffly beaten, folding until mixed. Turn into a mold which has been dipped in cold water. Set in the refrigerator to chill. Unmold and garnish with parsley.

EPICUREAN SAUCE

One-half cup of heavy cream.
Four tablespoons of mayonnaise.
Two tablespoons of freshly grated horseradish.
One teaspoon English mustard.
One tablespoon of tarragon vinegar.
One-fourth teaspoon of salt.
Few grains of cayenne.

Beat cream until stiff, stir in mayonnaise, grated horseradish and the balance of the ingredients which have been mixed together.

WELSH RABBIT

One pound of American cheese.
One-third cup of beer or ale.
One teaspoon of salt.
One teaspoon of mustard.
One teaspoon of paprika.
One-fourth teaspoon of white pepper.
One teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce.
Two eggs.

A well aged and sharp American cheese should be used for rabbits. Shred the cheese and melt it with the beer over direct heat, stirring constantly until cheese is melted. Then add the seasonings and the eggs, which have been slightly beaten. Stir rapidly over direct heat for one minute. Serve on freshly made toast and have plates piping hot.

SALMAGUNDI SALAD
(A COMPLETE MEAL)

To two cups of cold diced meat (lamb, veal, beef or pork) add one-half cup of cooked diced potatoes, one-half cup of cooked diced carrots and one-half cup of fresh green peas or string beans. Put ingredients in a mixing bowl and let marinate with one-half cup of French dressing, made with equal parts of vinegar and oil, seasoned with salt, pepper, paprika, a pinch of dry mustard and one medium sized onion, chopped very fine. Marinate for 20 minutes. Then add one-half cup of chopped sweet pickle and two hard cooked eggs, chopped fine. Mix all together with one cup of mayonnaise, taking care not to mash the vegetables in the mixing. Arrange on crisp lettuce leaves and decorate the salad with cold sliced beets cut in diamond shape.

"Never Worry Over Mistakes Of Yesterday"

"Don't Cling to the Hurt; Acknowledge Error, Then Go Ahead."

By Angelo Patri

BOY or girl, if you have made a mistake, and you know now that it was a mistake and that it was you who made it, cheer up. You have learned something. You have grown a bit. You are stronger and more intelligent than you were before. You know what you did not know before.

You have been punished for the mistake. Everybody is certain to get the punishment his mistake brings with it. There is no action without its reaction, and a mistake brings a painful reaction every time. You suffered in your conscience. You suffered in your body. Stomachs ache, heads ache, eyes ache, backs ache, when intelligence is offended by mistakes. You suffered in the opinion others held of you. You suffered because you made others suffer. All this goes with the mistake. It is over. Forget it and go ahead.

Don't think that you have to carry that mistake along with you. You do not. You are not the same person you were yesterday. The mistake and its reactions, changed you. If you acknowledged the mistake and repented it, you were changed for the better. Growth takes root on the ashes of error. Take courage; cherish the knowledge gained by experience and go ahead.

Never lie awake worrying about what happened yesterday or last year. Acknowledge the mistake and go ahead. Keep looking ahead. Keep planning. Keep working toward the end you have in view. You are likely to make mistakes. If you do something worth while you certainly will make a few. But if they are mistakes honestly made in an effort to accomplish something they won't do much harm. They may humiliate you, but that will do you more good than harm, if you don't cling to the hurt. Let it pass. Forget what is behind and go forward. That is the way of life.

Maybe you made a serious mistake, a mistake of behavior that offended other people, maybe hurt them severely. Can you do something to make good to those you have hurt? Try, anyway. There is little good in saying, "I am sorry," if your actions says nothing of the sort. Do something about your sorrow. Make some personal effort, some personal sacrifice to atone for it before you count yourself absolved. Don't let other people keep paying for your mistakes. If you do, you are hopeless.

When an intelligent person makes a mistake he learns by it. The stupid person never learns no matter how many mistakes he makes. Use your error to build your strength, your skill, your knowledge and it will soon be overtaken by success.

Tests Show How To Lose Ugly Fat without suffering a hungry moment, or taking strenuous exercises or harmful drugs

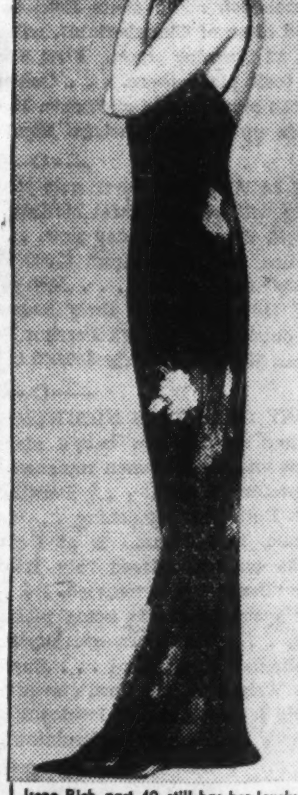
FROM coast-to-coast, you now hear women singing the praises of a thrilling new reducing method. A method which Dr. Damrau of New York demonstrated in tests among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, was responsible for an average loss in weight of 7 pounds per month. Most amazing, this method does NOT call for special diet lists. You never suffer a hungry moment. Nor is it necessary for you to take strenuous exercises, or harmful drugs.

All you have to do is eat sensibly, which means that you avoid overeating, and drink ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice, mixed with ¼ of a glass of water, before meals and at bedtime. Thus reducing the caloric intake considerably.

How This Pleasant Way Takes Off Excess Fat!

Nothing could be easier, or more pleasant. Yet!—this is what happens. First, this delicious drink satisfies your craving for rich, sweet foods. You have less desire to overeat fattening foods—but you do feel comfortably full. Second, the grape sugar in Welch's is quickly consumed, and by this process helps nature to consume excess fat.

Thus weight is lost naturally and safely. And this remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men, as it is for overweight women.



Irene Rich, past 40, still has her lovely slenderness of 16. She says, "Eat sensibly, which means that you avoid overeating, and drink Welch's Grape Juice daily before meals." Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably.

Watch One Thing Carefully

For economy's sake—buy Welch's by the case.

NEW TYPE TOMATO JUICE THRILLS THE NATION

If you think all tomato juice is alike, try Welch's new vitamin-rich tomato juice for the thrill of your life. A noted chemist tested five brands and found Welch's Tomato Juice superior—larger Vitamin C content; as much Vitamin A as milk—and rich in Vitamin B. Welch's is so rich and thick, you can add ⅓ water, or ice, and still have a most delicious tomato juice. So it's economical to serve. Get Welch's Tomato Juice from your dealer today. It's pure, pasteurized, laboratory controlled and Good Housekeeping Approved. Double your money back if you don't say it's the finest tomato juice you ever tasted.

Features of General Interest

THIS new york

by Lucius Beebe

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.

PERHAPS the most exclusive club in the country, including even the celebrated Somerset Club of Boston, and the various little hunting and fishing associations which men of vast means are so fond of organizing, is, of all things, a woman's tong, and its headquarters is, naturally, in Manhattan. It isn't really organized, but its entrance requirements are probably the stiffest of any group in the world, since membership is based upon one distinguished achievement alone: the possession of a chinchilla coat.

"Harper's Bazaar," for its February issue, wanted to run up a layout of chinchilla coats and wraps and was only able to find photographs of nine (eight of them Morocco shots of Zerbe, by the way) in existence. The photographed members of the Chinchilla Club are Mrs. Jay O'Brien, Mrs. Frank C. Henderson, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Mrs. James W. Corrigan, Mrs. George Washington Kavanaugh, Mrs. Allen Lehman, Lupe Velez, Mrs. William Randolph Hearst and Mrs. Stephen Sanford. Others with chinchillas of note are Lily Pons, Mary Pickford, Mrs. Eric Loder, Mme. Francis Alda and Mrs. Corliss Sullivan (formerly Cleveland's legendary Lucy McKinney of Corrigan-McKinney fame) and that is just about all the really notable chinchilla owners in the United States that the leading furriers of Fifth avenue could think of.

One reason why the Chinchilla Club has no waiting list, and probably never will have, is that Imperial Peruvian chinchillas, the finest of all fur bearers, are now practically extinct and that a live chinchilla in captivity where he may be bred is worth up to $1700 on the hoof. The pelts themselves sometimes sell as high as $450 each, and when one considers that for Miss Pons' wrap 110 skins are required (and Miss Pons is on the tiny side at that), it is possible to understand just how snooty this club of fur-bearing ladies of fashion is.

Mrs. Sullivan's coat, to be sure, was bought almost 30 years ago and for something less than $40,000 at the time, so that in the light of mounting prices, with only one or two coats a year now appearing on the market, it can be regarded as something of an investment. Most chinchillas now come from Bolivia, the Argentine and Peru, where they live in almost inaccessible mountain fastnesses, and, since only the backs of the tiny animals are used, it takes a considerable number to make up any sort of wrap. The members of the Chinchilla Club can, obviously, turn up their noses even at the members of the Royal Yacht Squadron.

● THAT WONDERFUL Tyrolean hat being worn so jauntily by Skipper Williams, dean of ship-news reporters and the glory of the New York waterfront, is a hat with a history. To begin with, nobody, while the memory of man runneth, has ever seen the Skipper in anything but the cast-iron derby which came to be as closely associated with his person as his wing collar, black string tie and elephant scarf pin. To imagine him without his pot hat was unthinkable, but one day a few weeks ago, while boarding the Queen Mary, a gust of wind whisked it off his head and into the waters of the lower bay. "Full speed astern!" screamed the Skipper. "All hands on deck regardless of occupation!" But that hat was irretrievably gone, and the next day the green Tyrolean number with a feather a foot long made its appearance, with the Skipper looking like nothing so much as Prince Danillo in "The Merry Widow."

—o-o—

The Barge Office to a man was graveled. Nothing like it had ever been seen before, let alone on the majestic head of the most dignified of all ship-news men. It seems that the hat was a gift of Mme. Jeritza, in whose chalet near Salzburg the Skipper and Mrs. Williams passed their vacation last summer, and she had made him promise to wear it for her. The Skipper had never had the nerve to wear it before his pot hat blew away, and now the boys at the Barge Office are getting up a petition to Mme. Jeritza to please send him a new cast-iron derby, as he doesn't look natural without it. Tyrolean hats may be all right for bell ringers, college boys and Alpine climbers, they argue, but not for the Skipper.

● FRANK CHAPMAN is back from Florida with an enormous hamper of those fabled rock crabs, which he is sending around to friends. . . . Bob Davis writes from Mexico City: "Come on in, the tequila is fine!" . . . Selmer Fougner's "Dining Out in New York," which will appear in the bookstalls shortly, bids fair to be the best gourmet's guide since George Ross' "Tips on Tables," which, while excellent, is now out of date. . . . How the Baron Fougner manages to get in and out of so many saloons, ordinaries, class joints, deadfalls, bistros, eateries and cook shops without ever having to go to Battle Creek is one of the seven wonders of New York. . . . The monocled and literary Achmed Abdullah caused consternation at the Radio Franks Club last week by demanding an order of spinach soup with a poached egg in it.

YEHUDI MENUHIN
PLAYING THE MENDELSSOHN CONCERTO
BOSTON SYMPHONY PLAYING HAYDN
MAURICE EVANS RECITING HAMLET
ARTUR SCHNABEL PLAYING BACH
DEEMS TAYLOR'S "THROUGH A LOOKING GLASS"

MENDELSSOHN'S VIOLIN CONCERTO is scarcely a novelty either on the platform or the waxes but the interpretation offered by Messrs. Yehudi Menuhin and George Enesco in the album of records just released by RCA-Victor has something that will not be found elsewhere. Whether you like it or not will depend on your own feeling about the work. One who regards it as tender, sentimental and essentially feminine may be slightly disconcerted by this performance for Menuhin and the Colonne Orchestra under Enesco go for it with all the energy and dash of a cavalry charge.

I say Menuhin and Enesco for I imagine that the performance must have been a collaboration in every sense. But cavalry charge or not it is a brilliant, finished and crisply articulated performance by all hands.

Another dashing performance in the current releases is that of the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Serge Koussevitsky playing HAYDN'S SYMPHONY NO. 2 in B Flat Major (Victor, two records). This is mature Hadyn and it will have a number of stimulating surprises for those who can think of Hadyn only as safe, sweet and the epitome of eighteenth century classicism. Written as one of the London series it is full of strong feeling and is also affected by a musical speech—unconventional harmonies, chromatic passages, bold modulations—which must have been regarded as highly sophisticated in that time.

The marvelously rich and scintillating tone quality of the Boston Orchestra and the sure control of its conductor make the performance a continuous delight.

—o-o—

AT THIS POINT I shall take the liberty of considering, for a moment, the work of an artist who is a musician only in a figurative sense. This is Maurice Evans, whose full length production in New York of Shakespeare's "Hamlet" has excited quite as much discussion as "I Married an Angel" or similar Broadway attractions.

Mr. Evans has made recordings of FOUR EXCERPTS FROM HAMLET on the four sides of two Columbia records. Besides the expected "To be or not to be" he recites the passages which begin, respectively, as follows: "Oh that this too, too solid flesh would melt," "Oh what a rogue and peasant slave am I," and "How all occasions do inform against me." A ringing resonance of vocal quality, and a meticulous enunciation make the recitations physically arresting but what gives them their deep penetrating power is the way he illuminates their meaning and thereby throws into clear relief the character of the mentally agonized Danish Prince. The reading is passionate and analytical at the same time. It is Shakespeare in the grand style for it gives you the whole of its sense as well as its beauty of sound.

—o-o—

RECENT RELEASES also include Deems Taylor's "THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS" (Columbia, four records). This is the first recording of a work which has much to recommend it. Though in no sense great music, it is full of a pervasive, unaffected charm expressed in well contrived melodies and a nicely colored orchestral texture. The various instruments are used expertly in pointing up the several Lewis Carrol personalities who make their appearance. Particularly poignant is the final section devoted to Alice's encounter with the White Knight.

The suite is given an excellent performance by Howard Barlow and the Columbia Broadcasting Orchestra.

Artur Schnabel's name has been associated so closely with the piano music of Beethoven that his appearance as an exponent of Bach is something of a news event. The two numbers recorded are the TOCCATA IN C MINOR and TOCCATA IN D MAJOR (Victor, four records). The treatment is scholarly and analytical and reveals the masterly structure of the two works with a remorseless clarity.

Romantic coloring is not to be expected in a Bach Toccata but Mr. Schnabel's severity is such that the listener is restricted almost entirely to a consideration of the music's design.

OF THE single records the excerpt from THE CHILDHOOD OF CHRIST, by Berlioz (Columbia), sung by Jean Planel to the accompaniment of the Paris Symphony Orchestra is particularly noteworthy. Berlioz is one of those unfortunate composers who is known to the present day public largely through such bombastic and superficial fragments as the "Benvenuto Cellini" overture, the "Roman Carnival" overture and the March from the "Damnation of Faust." These afford no measure of his capacity to respond to great and moving subjects. In this single record he proves not only his undisputedly great skill at musical description, but also a spiritual depth and a tenderness of sentiment that makes a comparison with Bach not too exaggerated. The rise and fall of the lovely, plaintive melody and the recurring rhythmic figure suggest with a touching eloquence the weariness of the flesh and the quiet exaltation of the spirit traditionally associated with the subject.

Jean Planel's warmly colored tenor voice is ideally suited for the music and he sings it with an affecting artistic stress. The orchestral accompaniment directed by F. Ruhlman is competent.

Since the American conductors cannot fit the better music of Berlioz into their programs, the recording companies certainly ought to do so. It is still a relatively unworked field as far as American audiences are concerned.

—o-o—

OTHER INTERESTING single records now available are "NURSERY TUNES," by D. E. Ingelbrecht (Columbia), played by the Paris Symphony Orchestra under the direction of the composer; FINGAL'S CAVE, by Mendelssohn (Columbia), played by Sir Thomas Beecham and the London Philharmonic Orchestra, and TWO CHOPIN MAZURKAS (Victor) played by Moriz Rosenthal. Sir Thomas Beecham has also made a fresh and interesting version of Wagner's FLYING DUTCHMAN overture on two Columbia records with the GRAND MARCH from Tannhauser on the fourth side.

The Inglebrecht tunes are placed in piquant orchestral settings touched with modern harmonies. Rosenthal's Chopin still sounds completely authoritative. He makes a generous use of rubato but with no exaggerated effects.

PRODUCER OF SHAW'S PLAYS

By HEDDA HOPPER

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4.

ONE of the most interesting men in Hollywood today is the erstwhile hobo-director, who when millionaire producers failed, talked George Bernard Shaw into letting him produce his plays. And after they shook hands over the arrangements, Shaw lent him money, saying: "My associate can't walk around the streets of London without money in his pockets." That man is Gabriel Pascal, producer of "Pygmalion," who did as neat a bit of starving in our town as Clark Gable in by-gone days.

He told me that the thing that made him hang on here years ago was going to all the previews to watch Irving Thalberg's pale, sensitive face, for here was a man Gabriel could respect. "If Thalberg could give his life when he had millions, to keep his ideals, I felt I could skip a couple of meals for mine," he said.

He's more sensitive to vibrations emanating from a person, than to faces. Evidently Shaw is too, because when he convinced the great writer that he was speaking truth, Shaw said, "I believe you're going to bring me greater happiness than I've ever known." And that from an 84-year-old youngster. Yes, achievement still reigns supreme.

—o-o—

Very little is known about Wendy Hiller, who's made a sensation in "Pygmalion." Pascal saw Wendy as Joan d'Arc at Malvern. When he went to her dressing room and told her he'd make her the greatest actress in pictures, a young man sat silent in the corner. He was never introduced, he never spoke. The following week Wendy married him. When Shaw heard of it, he asked, "But why did you let your star marry?"

Gabriel replied, "I couldn't prevent what I didn't know."

But that didn't prevent her giving a great performance. He promised Shaw he'd never have a minor actor in one of his pictures, but the greatest he could find for every part.

—o-o—

So, for his next, "The Doctor's Dilemma," which he'll do in England, he's chosen glamorous red-haired, green-eyed Greer Garson, the English girl of whom Noel Coward said: "She's one of our most promising actresses today." We didn't seem to know that, for we let her sit for a year and a half under contract, without giving her a thing to do. You'll see her first in "Good-bye Mr. Chips." The leading part will be filled by one of our biggest stars and the supporting cast consists of Roland Young, C. Aubrey Smith, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Paul Lukas, Jean Cadell and David Tree—Sir Herbert's grandson. The picture starts in June, but those details have been taken care of already. A new method of doing things.

—o-o—

When Pascal is doing a picture, nothing else exists, not even beautiful women. He'll prove "The Doctor's Dilemma" is much more than a triangle play. Nobody has to show a genius to the public, the public's only too ready to sense what's inside a great artist. Their angelic qualities crash through; the outside doesn't seem to matter. As Emerson said: "What you are, speaks so loud, I can't hear what you say."

He'll follow that with "The Devil's Disciple," which has an American background, and, of course, will be done here. God is what the masses want, pictures must have a daily vibration to the world's consciousness.

And he's also planning to put the life of Amelia Earhart on the screen. He says, "I love her spirit, and want to glorify it. And will try to do justice to the exterior life of an American angel. She was one of the messengers of our civilization, and the mirror of her time. There are many more of her kind than the cocktail drinking type you see so much of." He's already having huddles with Stokowski to do the music for it.

—o-o—

In his spare time, he studies scientific things. He said, "Now I lack the wisdom when I argue with scientists, and won't be satisfied until I can prove my point of view to them. But for that, I have to study."

Our Ambassador, Joe Kennedy, saw the first cut of "Pygmalion" and advised Pascal to spend more money on it. So Shaw turned back his share, which he'd already received, and said, "Use this." Now he's making money because Shaw says he's got to be rich for power, so he'll be able to speak the truth.

"Shaw has the great Olympic mind, and I am only his reflection," he humbly insists. This is, to say the least, disarming.

He paid tribute to little Geraldine Fitzgerald, a fine actress, under contract to Warners, who's playing in "Wuthering Heights." Some years ago, he made "Cafe Mascot" with her for a few thousand pounds. But they thought so little of her at the studio, that she was ignored except for the telephone girl. But you'll be hearing big things about her. Any girl who's discovered by him now, has a future.

Reviews OF NEW MOVIES

By Colvin McPherson

QUEEN VICTORIA'S India, Shirley Temple's India, Gary Cooper's India and even something of Rudyard Kipling's India come to life at the Fox Theater this week in the rambling epic, "Gunga Din," which Hollywood has steamed out of that favorite old five-verse recitation of high school days. The metamorphosis is rather startling.

The poem, it will be recalled, describes a native water-carrier for the British soldiers and begins like this:

"You may talk o' gin an' beer
When you're quartered safe out 'ere,
An' you're sent to penny-fights an' Aldershot it;
But when it comes to slaughter,
You will do your work on water,
An' you'll lick the bloomin' boots of 'im that's got it—"

Since nearly everyone can go on from there, in good Cockney accent, to "You're a better man than I am, Gunga Din!" it will be necessary only to summarize the remainder. Gunga Din (rhyming with "Dizzy") was the regimental "bhisti" and in slaking thirsts, he employed a somewhat unappetizing goatskin canteen. The soldiers abused him but when he was killed in action, the one narrating in the poem decided he was a superior person, of a sort, and figured he might like to see him again, in the Bad Place, where presumably Din would have a thriving trade.

In the 85 lines set down by Kipling, there isn't much of history, romance, characterization, villainy or heroism, just a tribute to a dirty, necessary native helper, so the screen artisans had to imagine much, almost as much as if they were making an epic inspired by Joyce Kilmer's "Trees."

"Gunga Din," therefore, isn't quite Kipling, and isn't quite kosher, either. It has contamination of "What Price Glory," "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," and those romances of Sir H. Rider Haggard in which the adventurer stumbles onto the hidden temple and stares goggle-eyed at the barbaric ceremonies. The temple of Kali, in this particular case, is much like the interior of the Fox Theater, so that, at least, is appropriate.

Gunga Din, as we have known him from the eighth grade on, takes a secondary role to the prankish behavior and enormous prowess of Victor McLaglen, Cary Grant and Douglas Fairbanks Jr. Roughly the idea is that the British are faced with an outbreak of "thuggee" among the natives — an epidemic of murder treaceable to the worshippers of Kali, Hindu goddess of destruction. The thugs, who are called "t'hugs," with the "h" silent, prefer to strangle but will kill with guns, snakes, knives or anything else, if denied their most esteemed manner of homicide. It takes the British two hours of screen time to wipe them out.

Up and down a rocky wilderness go 'Er Majesty's men and the fighting is as hot as the blistering sun. Always in the center of things are McLaglen, Grant and Fairbanks. Skilled not only with firearms, they are good with fists, swords, knives, sticks of dynamite, jiu-jutsu and know more about strangling than the thugs themselves.

For pure, unadulterated, even unnecessary action, "Gunga Din" is of surpassing merit. Again and again, the camera sweeps the range of a whole valley, a whole mountain defile, to show the British and the heathen at it. The number of stunt men hurled through the air, the number of dummies destroyed is staggering. But even when the fun is at its height, Victor is playing tricks on Douglas Jr., or Cary Grant is making noises like Herman Bing over some gold he hopes to steal.

And where is Sam Jaffe, alias Gunga Din? Somewhere around, in glistening blackface and immaculate breech-cloth, practicing on the bugle, neglecting his job as bhisti and deserting his post at "50 paces, right flank rear." In the last few minutes of the play, Din is sent in at quarterback and becomes the (dead) hero of the day, but this doesn't make the spectator very sad or give him much of a thrill. One does not have opportunity to develop a strong attachment for Jaffe-as-Jolson.

Strong characterization is not one of the virtues of "Gunga Din," which must be enjoyed for its military maneuvers, its scenery and such. In sheer action, it probably tops any previous Anglo-Indian melee. And even if its following is made up only of those who had to memorize the poem, it ought to have a sufficient public.

Assistance on the program is given by "Next Time I Marry," which is different from "It Happened One Night," only as a trip from Florida to New York is different from a trip from New York to Reno. Lucille Ball is the heiress, James Ellison the poor lad who brings down the walls of Jericho.

—o-o—

They Made Me a Criminal.

JOHN GARFIELD, whose movie debut in "Four Daughters" was loudly applauded from one coast to the other, has reached stardom in "They Made Me a Criminal," now at the Ambassador. The title is far more sensational than the story.

On the very night in which he becomes a prizefight champion, Garfield becomes involved in murder and has to flee from New York, take a new name and drop out of sight completely. After a cross-country trek, he arrives at an Arizona date ranch run by May Robson. The Dead End Kids are there, being reformed, and one of them, as usual, has a sister, Gloria Dickson.

Date ranches being what they are, and mortgages what they are, it is only a matter of time until Garfield will have to re-enter the prize ring, at an American Legion show, to get money to save the ranch, at the risk of exposing himself. And if detectives weren't kindhearted, he'd be on his way to Sing Sing this minute.

In summary, "They Made Me a Criminal" is not for Garfield what "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang" was for Paul Muni. It does give assurance, however, that Garfield's ability was no flash in the pan, that he is one of the most valuable movie acquisitions in many years and that he is now established by both movie patrons and his employers as a star.

"Charlie Chan in Honolulu," second Ambassador feature, marks the first appearance of Sidney Toler, Missouri-born character star, in the role so long associated with the late Warner Oland. Toler is in every way sufficient. Less placid than Oland, perhaps, he is just as oriental and fits into every situation with just as much ease. The crime involved is a murder on a tramp steamer approaching Honolulu. Eddie Collins, as keeper of a cargo of wild animals, contributes much fine clowning.

—o-o—

Devil's Island.

BORIS KARLOFF, who always gives something extra to his characterizations, even in Class B pictures, does very thorough work as a French surgeon condemned to Devil's Island, in the main feature at the St. Louis. The adventure is the usual one, a drama of horrible mistreatment, attempted escape and reprieve.

"Fugitives For a Night" introduces that general handyman, that professional nobody, the Hollywood "stooge," to movie audiences. Frank Albertson does many chores for his particular charge, Bradley Page. He gets Page to work on time, makes appointments for him, shelters him from unpleasant contacts and eventually takes over suspicion of murder from him.

Comic Ballet Of Trudi Schoop At Auditorium

TRUDI SCHOOP and her comic ballet will make their debut in St. Louis on Tuesday evening at the Auditorium Opera House as one of the Civic Music League attractions. The entire evening will be devoted to one composition, "Blonde Marie," divided into two acts and eight scenes and participated in by 16 members of the troupe.

Miss Schoop, a native of Zurich, Switzerland, came to notice on the Continent in 1929, when she and her company, after five years of minor engagements and rigorous training, scored their first big success in Berlin. Since then they have become famous over Europe and are now on their fourth American tour. The company, recruited from opera houses and ballet schools, represent six nationalities.

"Blonde Marie" was written by the star herself and its modern musical score devised by her brother, Paul Schoop. Taking the title role, Miss Schoop is seen first as a hapless maidservant in the home of the Meyer family. On an important occasion, when the Meyers are entertaining, Marie's gauche behavior leads to misadventure and she is discharged. In the second scene she is a waitress. In due course she falls in love with a tenor, becomes a chorus girl and substitutes for a soubrette at the premiere of an operetta called "Blonde Marie." In the sixth scene she marries a rich husband and lives in a villa, but falls in love with a young painter. The final scenes develop further interest and lead to an amusing denouement.

For the operetta, interpolated into the ballet, Paul Schoop has written special music. The score of the entire ballet is played on two pianos by Lothar Perl and Max Fickel.

'Professor Mamlock' Set for Feb. 17-19

The Russian film, "Professor Mamlock," which tells the story of a noted Jewish surgeon in Germany and his humiliation at the hands of the Nazis, has been booked for the Hollywood Theater, 506 St. Charles street, for Feb. 17, 18 and 19. Already shown in the East, the picture has received unusually high praise.

The author of "Professor Mamlock" is Friedrich Wolf, German playwright who was forced to flee from the country in 1933. Twenty-two of the Soviet Union's leading actors are in the cast. The film will be shown twice the evening of Feb. 17, twice the evening of Feb. 18 and will have dual showings on both the afternoon and evening of Feb. 19.

Mummers Schedule Jesse James Play

An antique American melodrama, "Jesse James," or "The Boy Bandits of the Border," by Clarence Black, has been selected by the Mummers of St. Louis as their fifth presentation of the season at the Wednesday Club auditorium late in April. It will be given in the style of the year in which it was first produced, 1909, with songs of the time introduced between acts by a costumed chorus sitting in ornate stage boxes.

The group is now rehearsing Robert Garten Tierney's "Daughters of Atreus," a modern treatment of the Orestes legend of the Greeks. It will be given on March 16 and 18.

Sinclair Lewis in Personal Appearance at American

SINCLAIR LEWIS, Nobel prize novelist who lately has turned his attention more to the drama than fiction, will appear at the American Theater, beginning tomorrow night, as commentator for his new comedy, "Angela Is Twenty-two," written in collaboration with Fay Wray, the motion picture actress.

The leading role is that of a 50-year-old physician who falls in love with and marries a girl nearly 30 years his junior. When the play, not yet seen by Broadway, opened on the road last month, Lewis himself took the role of Dr. Hilary Jerrett. Since then he has surrendered it to Philip Merivale, the London and New York star who was last here with Helen Hayes in "Mary of Scotland."

Others in the company are Flora Campbell, Royal Beal, Barry Sullivan, Richard Kendrick, Mary Howes, Joaquin Souther, Ann Garrett and Barbara Thatcher.

"Angela Is Twenty-two" had its beginning last summer at Cohasset, Mass., a coast resort 50 miles south of Boston. Lewis had asked John Wildberg, New York theatrical attorney, to recommend a spot near a good summer theater where he might spend July and August. Wildberg recommended the South Shore Playhouse at Cohasset, directed by a friend of his.

Miss Wray was among those who played at Cohasset. Lewis met her and outlined the play to her. Her suggestions led to their collaboration on the manuscript after the close of the summer season. Meanwhile, Lewis himself was enlisted to play the lead in an adaptation of his novel, "It Can't Happen Here," and was such a success that he was moved to take the lead in "Angela Is Twenty-two."

But 10 days as a star in Columbus, Cleveland and Cincinnati convinced Lewis he had had enough of it and the more experienced actor, Merivale, was called from the East. "Angela is Twenty-two" is not Lewis' first play, since his "Hobohemia" was produced in 1919 and "Jayhawker," of which he was co-author, in 1934. He also worked on the latest script of "It Can't Happen Here."

Several of his novels, such as "Arrowsmith," "Dodsworth" and "Main Street" have been successes on either stage or screen.

—o-o—

FOLLOWING Lewis and his company to the American are Cornelia Otis Skinner and her fellow players in a revival of Bernard Shaw's "Candida." The play opens a week from tomorrow night.

Onslow Stevens and John Cromwell are Candida's husband, the Rev. James Morell, and her worshipping poet friend, Marchbanks. Dorothy Sands is Prossy, secretary to the clergyman; A. P. Kaye, who was Burgess in Katharine Cornell's company of "Candida" has that same role, and Philip Faversham, son of the one-time matinee idol, William Faversham, completes the cast as Alexander Mill.

The production had its premiere in Chicago week before last and will be seen on tour until mid-April, when it goes into New York.

Prospects for entertainment at the American after the departure of "Candida" appear very slight. The Pulitzer prize play, "Our Town," will drop out of the running this week in Chicago, a casualty of the same order as "On Borrowed Time" last fall. Nothing else will be available until "Tobacco Road," still alive on the road and Broadway, comes back late in March for its fifth time in St. Louis.

"Bachelor Born" and the return of the Lunts in "The Sea Gull" are still being discussed but without definite indication. A Chicago production of the current Broadway hit, "Kiss the Boys Good-bye," also is not expected here this spring.

Evans' Falstaff, Here Last Season, Makes New York Bow

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.

EACH time Broadway becomes enthusiastic or curious about trends in plays, about meteoric news authors or about resplendent overnight stars there bobs up in rebuttal that delightful, ubiquitous man-of-all-years—Shakespeare.

In his own words, "that reverend vice, that grey iniquity, that father ruffian, that vanity in years" is here to sneer at modern dramatists again in Maurice Evans' production of the first part of "Henry IV."

With light, upholstered avoirdupois that is almost automatically air-cooled, instead of the sultry, fatiguing padding that he used when he first attempted this role, Evans wallows and bounces in the part of Sir John Falstaff with the goodhearted, laughingly pretentious humor of a gurgling barrel of beer.

The philosophy of the fat and bawdy and irresponsible Falstaff is a funny and devil-may-care comment upon escape from the troubles confronting the many nationalities in these war-troubled days. Only last fall Prime Minister Chamberlain, on his return from Munich, used in his defense a quotation from Hotspur, the Lord Henry Percy of "Henry IV" who was described as a man who personified "the romance of medieval chivalry and daredevil fearlessness." Chamberlain, remembering Lord Henry's speech, said of Munich that "out of this nettle, danger, we pluck this flower, safety."

—o-o—

Falstaff had one definite idea in his philosophy and that was to live. He refused to be flirted with by death even when he was thrust into the most threatening sectors or war. He realized that his huge and bouncing body had practically no chance of escaping a footloose sword, but he knew that he could talk and boast and humor himself through the narrow escape of a keyhole.

This was another triumph for Shakespeare, and the old boy should be weary of them by now, and it is even moreso a gala achievement for Evans, a lean young man in comparison with the Graf Zeppelin buoyancy he wears in his costume as Falstaff.

Evans came over from England a few years ago, a totally unknown actor on these shores. He played Romeo to Katharine Cornell's Juliet. From the tender moments of Romeo he did the fiery comedy of the Dauphin in "St. John." He was the good but ill-fated Napoleon in the good but ill-fated "St. Helena." Then there came "Richard II" and "Hamlet" (full length version) and this classical actor found the high niche here that he hadn't found on his native London stage.

Now as the over-voluminous Falstaff, which he tried out in Philadelphia, St. Louis and other cities last year, he interprets one of Shakespeare's most rollicking comedies in a modern sense that it almost becomes burlesque, but burlesque in the true sense of the word rather than the strip-tease product.

Bauer, Spalding, Cassado in Trio At the Principia

THREE leading concert artists, each famous as a soloist, combine efforts in the program which will be presented at Howard Hall, the Principia, on Friday evening. The three are Harold Bauer, pianist, Albert Spalding, violinist, and Gaspar Cassado, 'cellist. This is their first season together.

Spalding, a native of Chicago but educated in Italy, made his professional debut in Paris when he was 16 and for more than 30 years has been noted as a recital and symphony guest artist. Bauer, born in England but now an American citizen, started his career as a violinist also but on advice of Paderewski, turned to study of the piano and began concert work in that field in 1893. Cassado, a Spaniard, made his first visit to this country last season and won an enthusiastic following. He is noted also for his original compositions and transcriptions for the 'cello of works such as the Mozart Horn Concerto, the Schubert Arpeggione Concerto, and the Weber Clarinet Concerto.

Holmes Lectures On Requested Topics

Butron Holmes' new series of travel lectures is an all-request list. At the close of his 1938 lectures Holmes asked audiences to express their preferences for this year and hurried away to the West Indies, Norway, Sweden and Ireland for new material as a result of the vote. His St. Louis appearances begin Feb. 20 at the Auditorium Opera House with "West Indies—Cruising the Caribbean" as the first subject. Four other travelogues follow on successive Monday nights.

Lawrence Tibbett Returns As Symphony Guest Artist

LAWRENCE TIBBETT, American baritone who returns to St. Louis as guest artist of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra on Friday afternoon and Saturday evening at the Auditorium Opera House, will be heard in five different numbers—arias from Mozart's "Don Giovanni" and Verdi's "The Masked Ball" and three Wagnerian excerpts.

The purely orchestral part of the program arrranged by Conductor Vladimir Golschmann is made up of Gretry-Mottl's Ballet Suite from "Cephale et Procris," Debussy's "Nocturnes," the Prelude to Wagner's "Lohengrin" and Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Spanish Caprice." The Debussy selection will include the first local rendition of "Sirenes," to be presented with a choir of 25 women's voices, trained by William B. Heyne. "Sirenes" is rarely performed because of its vocal requirement.

Tibbett's Wagnerian numbers are "Blick ich Umher" from "Tannhauser," "Traume" from "Tristan und Isolde" and "Wahn! Wahn!" from "Die Meistersinger." The singer was last a guest of the Symphony in December, 1935, and since then has had one of the most active periods of his entire career.

From last April through September he filled engagements in Australia and New Zealand, singing in 55 concerts and setting a new record in the number of appearances made by any vocal star. His total audience was made up of some 150,000 persons, with 30,000 of that number at his 10 concerts in Sydney, Australia.

After the Tibbett concerts, the orchestra goes on tour and will not be heard locally until Feb. 24 and 25.

The detailed program for Friday and Saturday:

Ballet Suite from "Cephale et Procris" — — — — — — — Gretry-Mottl
Nocturnes — — — — — — — — — — — — — — Debussy
Aria, "Deh, Vieni alla Finestra" from "Don Giovanni" — — Mozart
Aria, "Eri tu" from "The Masked Ball" — — — — — — — Verdi
Prelude to "Lohengrin" — — — — — — — — — — — — Wagner
"Blick ich Umher" from "Tannhauser" — — — — — — — — Wagner
"Traume" (a study of Tristan) — — — — — — — — — — — Wagner
"Wahn! Wahn!" from "Die Meistersinger von Nurnberg" — Wagner
"Capriccio Espagnol" ("Spanish Caprice") Opus 34—Rimsky-Korsakoff

THE second "Music of Our Time" concert by the St. Louis Symphony comes at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Auditorium Opera House and patrons will have the privilege of remaining over and hearing the orchestra's broadcast at 7 o'clock, without extra charge.

The program for this afternoon features Moussorgsky's "Pictures at An Exhibition" and includes the Suite from the Ballet, "Le Lion Armoureux" by Karl Rathaus, an American premiere; Otto Luening's "Two Symphonic Interludes," new to St. Louis, and Ibert's "Escales (Ports of Call)".

For the Moussorgsky number, which comes last on the program, an innovation is offered in the projection on a screen, for the first time anywhere, of the Hartmann drawings which inspired the musical composition. Alfred V. Frankenstein, music and art critic of San Francisco, will be the commentator.

The drawings, collected by Frankenstein from various parts of the world, have never been displayed in this country. Incidentally, there is no record of any public exhibition since the original one in 1874, when Moussorgsky walked through the gallery in St. Petersburg contemplating his late friend's work.

Although a few have been irretrievably lost, Frankenstein has been able to obtain the originals of a number of pictures described the Moussorgsky work, which conveys a series of tone pictures, introduced and separated by the "promenades," characterizing the composer's wanderings across the shining floors of the gallery. Moussorgsky's suite, originally for the piano, was completed in 1874, but it was not published until 1886, and did not achieve any widespread popularity until it was orchestrated by Maurice Ravel at the request of Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in 1922.

Eddy Concert Feb. 22

Nelson Eddy, popular singing star of the screen, will be heard in a concert at the Auditorium Opera House the evening of Wednesday, Feb. 22. With work on his latest picture finished this week, Eddy tomorrow will begin a tour throughout the United States and Cuba, returning to the film center on May 1.

Production of 'Holiday'

The Philip Barry play, "Holiday," will have three public performances by the Webster Groves High School dramatics department at the Little Theater in the school building, Selma and Bradford avenues, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of this week.

KSD's Friday Night Concert Hour Will Go Into Its Thirteenth Year Feb. 17—CBS American School of the Air's Thursday Programs to Be Part of New York City Schools' Course.

BY J. L. S.

ON the air steadily since Feb. 18, 1927, KSD's Friday night concert hour, now scheduled from 7 to 8 o'clock, will begin its thirteenth year next week with Lucille Manners, the soprano; Ross Graham, the baritone, the 12-voice chorus and the concert orchestra led by Dr. Frank Black as its regular cast. Beginning its WEAF schedule with Edwin Franko Goldman's band, the program was taken over by Rosario Bourdon June 3, 1927, with Graham McNamee as announcer. It was Bourdon who wrote the march which has been the program's theme song ever since.

DR. FRANK BLACK, MUSICAL DIRECTOR AND CONDUCTOR OF THE HOUR-LONG CONCERTS ON KSD FRIDAY NIGHTS.

Jan. 3, 1930, Jessica Dragonette became featured soloist in this concert hour and remained as its star for seven years. The Cavaliers' Quartet also was featured for several years, then in November, 1933, was succeeded by the famous Revelers' Quartet. Vaughn de Leath, the Countess Albani and Lucille Manners substituted for Miss Dragonette when she took vacations, and from time to time notables were guests on the program, among them the late Amelia Earhart, the flyer, and the late Col. Louis McHenry Howe, who was secretary to President Roosevelt. In the fall, Grantland Rice, the sports columnist, joined the cast to discuss football activities.

Miss Manners succeeded Miss Dragonette as the program's featured singer Feb. 5, 1937, and Director Black succeeded Bourdon as musical director. Black, who also is general musical director for the NBC, says that the reason the hour has continued until it now is the oldest continuous network program is that it presents music which listeners want to hear, not music which someone thinks the public should hear.

AS a result of the barring of Tyrone Power from radio by Daryl F. Zanuck, head of Twentieth Century-Fox, because of exhibitors' complaints that there are too many movie stars on the air, the actor will conclude his Hollywood Playhouse engagement at 8 o'clock tonight. Charles Boyer, who played the leads on this program through the fall, will replace Power again next Sunday and probably will continue as its principal actor.

Programs gotten up by Mayor Dickmann and broadcast at 9:45 Friday nights on KMOX feature interviews with the heads of departments of the city government. Next Friday night, the Mayor himself will be interviewed on city administration activities. Thereafter, the Mayor will do the interviewing. He has spotted City Assessor Ralph Coale for Feb. 17, and then on successive Fridays the heads of the Board of Public Service, the Department of Streets and Sewers, Public Welfare and Public Safety, the City Counsellor and the Supply Commissioner. Then he will take up matters of smoke prevention, health and the Municipal Auditorium, and in May will interview, or have interviewed, some of the many superintendents in the departments.

Mary Alcott, a St. Louis singer, who formerly was on WLW, Cincinnati, has joined the KMOX staff.

A salute to KVOA, Tucson, Ariz., is set on the WJZ net at 3:30 p. m. today, when it will become the 168th station affiliated with the NBC in the WEAF and WJZ networks.

THE Thursday period of the CBS network's American School of the Air, which has been a radio feature for the past nine years, has been made a part of the New York City public school system's course of study. As a result of an agreement between the CBS and the city, the Thursday periods, beginning this week, will originate in New York City school auditoriums where the This Living World programs will be dramatized and followed by informal discussions by students. To encourage use of the American School of the Air in classroom work, officials of the Board of School Superintendents of New York are distributing 10,000 teachers' manuals and classroom guides to instructors in the New York City school system.

Senator Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri and Gov. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts will be among speakers in the annual Hello, America program of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, at 10:30 Wednesday night, Feb. 15.

An address by Joseph P. Kennedy, Ambassador to Great Britain, at a luncheon in his honor given by the American Merchant Marine Institute, will be broadcast on the CBS net at 1 p. m. Saturday, Feb. 18.

Raymond Massey is to read the last scene of the play, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," in the course of the American Legion ceremonies at Lincoln's tomb in Springfield, Ill., which will be broadcast on the CBS net at 1:30 p. m. next Sunday.

Weekday broadcasting of the home games of the Yankees and the Giants for listeners in the New York area is now assured. The games will be broadcast on WABC, key station of the CBS network. The broadcasts will be commercial. The New York baseball clubs have not permitted airing of their games in New York except on opening days.

John Barbirolli will return from his vacation to conduct next Sunday's New York Philharmonic concert, in which Walter Gieseking, the pianist, will be the soloist.

Installation of a short wave broadcasting transmitter on the Pan-American Airways' Yankee Clipper No. 17, for use on the plane's first flight to Europe, has been completed by CBS network technicians. The transmitter, a 100-watter with WCBN as its call letters, has been licensed to use eight frequencies between 1600 and 23,000 kilocycles.

Examinations for radio operator licenses will be held in Room 516, Federal building, Market and Twelfth streets, St. Louis, as follows: Friday, Feb. 10, at 9 a. m., all classes of commercial operator examinations; 12 noon, Class A and B amateur examinations; Saturday, Feb. 11, 9 a. m., Class A and B amateur examinations only.

A PICTURE of the arrival of Ruth Nichols, the aviatrix, in St. Louis Friday was broadcast the same day in the radio edition of the Post-Dispatch while Miss Nichols stood in the studios of KSD watching the facsimile process.

The taking of the picture at Lambert-St. Louis Airport, the rushing of the negative to the Post-Dispatch Building, the developing of it, the placing of the picture in the facsimile transmitter, and the process of broadcasting it with Miss Nichols watching, were photographed by Twentieth Century-Fox photographers for a newsreel which is scheduled to be shown next Friday, Feb. 10, in the Fox, Missouri, St. Louis and Ambassador theaters and in theaters in other cities. Miss Nichols was accompanied to the radio studios by Margot Bayne Tanner, who served with her as a technical adviser on the making of the movie, "Tailspin," the first print of which they brought here for a preview, and by Joan Valerie, who plays a role in the movie.

A copy of the Post-Dispatch's radio edition carrying the picture of Miss Nichols' arrival was presented to her at a dinner in her honor given Friday night at the Coronado Hotel by the St. Louis Chapter of the National Aeronautical Association.

Shades of Blue

THE woman who usually solves her spring wardrobe problem by concentrating upon blue costumes has some difficulties ahead of her in 1939. While blue is being talked of as one of the important colors for spring, there are too many different blues for simple wardrobe planning. Some blues have a yellow cast, some accent a green hue and many are definitely in the tones of violet. Brown likewise has its dangers in the choice of ensembles, especially accessories, because the rust accent is varied while there are grayed browns and black-browns to consider.

Time to Take An Outsiders View of Home

It Will Help You in Decorating Problem, Says Expert.

By Elizabeth Boykin

IT'S inventory time, girls. Time to ring your own front door bell and take a stranger's view of the old home place. It will help you in your decoration problems. Have you given up your decorating ambitions because you have to keep on using the same old furniture? Tut, tut . . . all the more reason why you should have a clearage of scenery. A new background will make your old things seem like new.

Helen A. got quite hard-boiled about her living room recently. Tried to take off her rose colored glasses of affection for old familiar things and size up her situation. Here's what she concluded:

Dingy tan walls, droopy scrim curtains, badly fitting drab cretonne slip covers, walnut furniture that wasn't bad, not bad at all, taupe broadloom rug that would take on the character of the room.

That was a challenge. She wasn't doing right by the dearly beloved furniture that had seen her through thick and thin. She set out to rectify that circumstance, and for small expense achieved as pleasant a transformation as I've heard about lately.

She and her husband did a repapering job—choosing a plainish, pinkish-apricot wall paper that did wonders right off the bat. New white organdy curtains very full and with seven-inch ruffles Helen made herself—also slipcovered the old sofa in a new floral sateen with a dark red ground. The same material went on a pair of easy chairs; a third easy chair got a new slip cover of turquoise in a self stripe.

Helen did an ingenious thing with the old lamps. They were nondescript—some of the bottle variety, some of pottery, some with metal bases; none distinguished at all. So she just up and painted them all in a flat surface turquoise blue. Then made ruffled petticoat shades in white organdy, added accessories in turquoise, and now is at work on two needlepoint footstool tops with white flowers and turquoise backgrounds.

If you don't think that was a transformation worth making, and would rather go right on getting more frayed and dowdy in a down at the heels room, don't let me interfere! But if you want to keep up with the times, consider at least how inexpensively you can make a change without throwing away any of your faithful old things.

Filmy Fabrics Are Suggested

THE designers are continuing with their slogan, "Look Pretty, Please," and are suggesting filmy fabrics, lingerie trimmings and flower-trimmed costumes as a means of beautification. Dainty white organdy fichus, berthas made of georgette, bishop sleeves of shirred net and many other accents that are both dainty and quaint characterize the most impressive fashions.

Evening dresses offer the best examples of the return to prettiness such as grandmother adored. Instead of the severe strapless bodice which attained much popularity last year, low-necklines are softened with off-the-shoulder drapery of mousseline or fichus of lace-trimmed net. The filmy cape spreading like wings from the shoulers of a transparent evening frock also has returned to fashion. Usually this cape is floor length and sweeps gracefully as the wearer walks. Also significant in evening fashions are the floating panels added to many of the sheer dancing frocks.

The long-sleeved dinner dress made of net or lace is reminiscent of the informal evening frock which mother wore early in the century. Chiffon and georgette which were then in vogue are again employed in the creation of these frocks, the long sleeves tied at the wrists with black velvet ribbons. Fish net is a newcomer among the sheer materials and contributes a more sophisticated emphasis than the old-fashioned fabrics.

Black taffeta daytime dresses which have embroidered batiste or organdie collars and cuffs, guimpe effects of tucked net and those full undersleeves of frilly white materials peeping out from crisp dark fabrics also are typical of the trend toward pretty effects in costuming. More use is being made of frilly trimming than for many seasons.

Since a hat does much to mark the trend of a complete ensemble, the fashion creators are using yards and yards of colorful veiling to accentuate quaint charm. Flower laden turbans also are important, especially when they look as though they had come from an old-fashioned garden.

Felt Pastel Hats

Not all of the pastel hats which you see in the store windows were created for wear in the Sunny Southland. Many of them were designed for January in St. Louis. They introduce a new freshness to dark winter costumes or make a colorful frock look more striking. Felt is the popular material of which most of these hats are made. You see them in tones of pink, baby blue, light green and various muted violet hues. When they are intended for wear with black outfits, a band of black grosgrain or satin ribbon supplies the "key" note.

Cream Cheese Sandwiches

A nice little sandwich that lends itself pleasantly to teatime serving. Cream together two cakes of cream cheese and two tablespoons butter until smooth, then add one-half cup orange juice, one-half cup chopped pimentoes, one cup finely chopped nuts and a pinch of salt. Spread between thin slices of white bread and cut into dainty shapes.

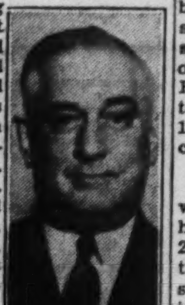
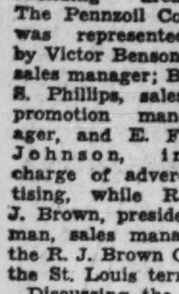
Auto News and Notes

ANNOUNCEMENT OF ITS most flexible and comprehensive campaign since the concern was founded in 1886 was made Wednesday at a meeting and luncheon at Hotel Statler held by the Pennzoil Co. and attended by 75 distributors and jobbers from St. Louis and surrounding area. The Pennzoil Co. was represented by Victor Benson, sales manager; B. S. Phillips, sales promotion manager, and E. F. Johnson, in charge of advertising, while R. J. Brown, president, and A. Bergman, sales manager, represented the R. J. Brown Co., distributor for the St. Louis territory.



Victor Benson.

Discussing the progress of the company, which specializes in 100 per cent Pennsylvania motor oil and lubricants, Benson said: "All indications point to a healthy upturn in business this year, and if the independent dealer has his decks cleared for action, he will get his share. This year promises to see more new cars on the road than in 1938, and every one of them will require the best motor oil obtainable. Our success is built on our ability to serve the motoring public with safe lubrication through a nation-wide group of bonded Pennzoil dealers. Forty-one per cent more car owners are buying Pennzoil today than in 1934."



A. Bergman.

MID-WINTER WEATHER IN many parts of the country brought large increases in sales of Nash cars as dealers demonstrated the weather eye conditioned air system in Nash cars for winter driving. Sales in this part of the country rose 572 per cent in the first 10 days of January as compared with the same period a year ago, according to L. M. Sprinkle, president of the Nash St. Louis Co., distributer. Nationally, Nash retail sales were up 73 per cent. "Since real winter arrived throughout most of the north," Sprinkle said, "dealers have been able to give Nash 'June in January' car weather system the most rigid tests, and the demonstrations have been impressive to motorists. Recently, in the annual Yosemite, economy run, a 'Weather Eye' Nash-Lafayette model was the only car in its price class to finish within the time limit when a blizzard and icy roads were encountered in the mountains.

"In other sections of the country, Nash 'Weather Eye' cars have created sensations by appearing in traffic on the coldest days with drivers and passengers without overcoats, or in shirtsleeves. You could make it hot enough to drive in a bathing suit in mid-winter, if you desired."

AN AUTO-ROCK MACHINE DEsigned by the Auto-Rock Corporation of America, Chicago, to lubricate automobiles and trucks under actual driving conditions is being introduced for use by service stations and dealers. Rugged in construction and simple in operation, Auto-Rock is easily attached to the pit, hoist or rack, and takes the weight of the car body off the springs and gently rocks the auto. It is hooked up to the air line where operating cost is negligible, while finger tip control makes it possible to rock the car rapidly or slowly, jarringly or as if cushioned. A car on it moves the equivalent of 10 miles while it is being lubricated, actual driving conditions are reproduced to insure thorough lubrication. By freeing frozen shackles spreading spring leaves, re-arching springs and disclosing the sources of hidden squeaks and rattles, Auto-Rock is said to enable a station attendant to achieve the long-sought 100 per cent efficient chassis lubrication.

SIDNEY WEBER, INC., OF which Sidney Weber is president, has opened a used car building at 2621 Locust street which has more than 30,000 square feet of floor space. In addition to used cars, it is displaying Dodge trucks in the building. Rex Ryffel, used car manager for the firm, will be in charge of the building as well as of the used car lot at 2221 Olive street.

OLDSMOBILE RETAIL SALES, continuing the upward trend, totaled 3458 units in the second 10 days of January, an increase of 73 per cent over the same period in 1938, D. E. Ralston, general sales manager, reports. Total retail sales in the first 20 days of January were 6641 cars, a gain of 78 per cent over last year. In the St. Louis area, retail sales of Oldsmobiles increased 115 per cent in the first 20 days of January over the same period last year, according to H. A. Klees, zone manager. Ralston also reported that Oldsmobile dealers sold 12,530 used cars in the second 10 days as against 9628 in the previous 10 day period and that their used cars stocks were down 5000 units as compared with 1938.

MARVIN P. YATES, of the Marvin Yates Pontiac Co., has been chosen as one of 23 dealers from as many zones who will take part in the Pontiac factory's monthly merchandising meeting set for Tuesday in Detroit and Pontiac, Mich.

THE BURGDORF MOTOR CO., 2719 South Jefferson avenue, is celebrating its twentieth year in the automotive business at the same location, having started Feb. 1, 1919. H. J. Burgdorf is president of the firm; E. H. Burgdorf, service manager, and O. A. Burgdorf, sales manager. The firm, which is now a Chrysler and Plymouth dealer, has handled a number of makes of cars in the past 20 years and at one time was distributer of Durants.

THE ANNUAL MEETING AND election of officers of the Greater St. Louis Automotive Association will be held at 6:30 tomorrow evening at the Forest Park Hotel. G. B. Norris, special agent in charge for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, will speak on "Modern Methods in Law Enforcement." A special guest will be J. M. Allton of Columbia, Mo., president of the newly formed Missouri Automobile Dealers' Association. Five new directors will be elected from a list submitted by the Nominating Committee, which consists of L. M. Stewart, D. E. Castles and C. F. McClure. G. M. Berry, T. S. Kenny, W. J. Rasmussen, A. R. Lindburg and F. H. Reismeyer will hold over as directors.

U. S. BOY SCOUT WEEK PROGRAM IN ST. LOUIS

300 Units to Give Parties and Attend Special Church Services.

More than 300 units of the St. Louis Council, Boy Scouts of America, are planning to give banquets and parties, and attend special church services in observance of National Boy Scout Week, which begins Wednesday, marking the twenty-ninth anniversary of scouting in the United States.

The observance will open Wednesday evening, when members of scout troops, cub packs, and sea scout ships throughout the country will gather at their respective meeting places to hear a broadcast by President Franklin D. Roosevelt on the significance of the scouting movement.

Special services will be held in about 100 churches of metropolitan St. Louis next Sunday and during the week boy scout speakers will give talks on the significance of scouting in relation to character building before various civic organizations, church groups, and over the radio.

Each unit registered with the council will be required to do a "good turn" for its sponsor during the observance and many troops have already arranged for a parents' night or neighborhood night.

About 100 scouts of Troop 51 of Our Lady of Sorrows Church are encamped with their fathers this week-end at Lion's Den, near Seckman, Mo. Today's program includes hiking, nature study and games.

GIRL SCOUTS.

A two-hour round table meeting for members of troop and Brownie pack committees will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock and in the evening at 8 o'clock at the Second Presbyterian Church, Taylor avenue and Westminster place.

A course of instruction for Brownie leaders and an elementary course for intermediate girl scout leaders will begin Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Second Presbyterian Church.

Two other courses for intermediate scout leaders will be offered, one opening Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Union Avenue Christian Church, Union boulevard and Enright avenue, and the other Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock at the Carpenter Branch library, Grand boulevard and Utah street.

A beginning course for senior scout leaders will open Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the parish house of the Church of the Holy Apostles, 1244 Union boulevard.

The South District committee of the St. Louis Girl Scout Council will meet Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the home of the chairman, Mrs. John W. Calhoun, 3523 Longfellow boulevard.

A meeting of the city-wide organization committee will be held Wednesday noon at the home of Mrs. Arthur Hughes, chairman, 7065 Waterman avenue, University City.

Concert at Y. M. H. A.

The Junior Scholarship Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Edward Murphy, will give a concert of eighteenth century music tomorrow at 8:30 p. m. at the Y. M. H. A., Union boulevard and Enright avenue. The soloists will be Edward Drusinsky, harpist, and Bernard Goldberg, flutist.

NLRB EXAMINER URGES CONTRACT REPUDIATION

Recommends That Necktie Firm Bar A. F. L. Accord and Recognize C I O.

Recommendations that the H. R. Webb Neckwear & Manufacturing Co., 1709 Washington avenue, repudiate a closed shop contract with an American Federation of Labor union and recognize a CIO local as the collective bargaining agency for production workers, were made yesterday in the report of a National Labor Relations Board trial examiner.

The examiner, Earl S. Bellman, who conducted a hearing in November on complaint of Neckwear Workers' Local No. 254, a CIO affiliate, recommended also that the firm reinstate five women who were laid off or dismissed last February and March. The case involved only 12 persons, five of whom Bellman excluded from the appropriate bargaining unit because of their supervisory capacities.

Tracing the history of Local No. 254 back to 1933, when as an affiliate of the A. F. of L., it had a contract with the Webb concern, Bellman concluded the contract never had expired. He said the firm continued to use union labels supplied by the local after the parent union had been expelled from the A. F. of L. in 1937. The fact that the union was expelled was immaterial in so far as it affected status of Webb workers, Bellman asserted.

The examiner declared H. R. Webb, president of the concern, and William C. Klunk, secretary, encouraged employes to transfer their membership from the CIO local to the A. F. of L. United Garment Workers of America last January. He discussed at length testimony to the effect that company executives had complained of difficulty in selling their product with CIO labels.

Bellman said:

"Regardless of the extent to which the respondent may have been sincere and accurate in its belief that organization of its employes by the United (A. F. of L.) would be beneficial to its business, it can scarcely be contended that business expediency justifies the violation of a law duly enacted by the Congress of the United States."

He asserted that the five women involved constituted a majority of the appropriate bargaining units. The women, he said, reaffirmed their allegiance to the CIO last January and they still were employes of the firm within the meaning of the Wagner act. Bellman said the closed shop contract, signed last March, was made at a time when the union did not represent a majority of employes in the appropriate unit.

RED CROSS FIRST AID STATIONS

Total in Illinois Is Increased to 96.

The American Red Cross Mid-Western headquarters reported today it had established 13 new highway emergency first-aid stations in Illinois in 1938, increasing the total in that State to 96. These stations are manned by at least two volunteers, schooled in first-aid work.

The Red Cross report said records showed there was an appreciable decrease in the number of accidents in the vicinity of first-aid stations. The Red Cross said the signs marking the stations apparently served as reminders to motorists to be careful.

STUDY OF OUTBREAK OF UNDULANT FEVER

Bacteriologists Seeking Source of Infection at East Lansing, Mich.

By the Associated Press.

EAST LANSING, Mich., Feb. 4.—Source of the infection that has caused one death and more than 40 cases of illness from a rare type of undulant fever in this college community was sought by bacteriologists tonight as Michigan State College authorities said the outbreak was under control.

Dean Ward Giltner of the college's division of veterinary science said that as nearly as could be determined the exposure to the germ occurred about Dec. 15 and that since the longest period of incubation was 40 days, no new cases were expected.

Little change in the condition of any of the persons under treatment was reported today. None was listed as serious.

Dean Giltner, emphasizing that the outbreak at the college was not an "isolated situation," said, "There is a great deal of undulant fever not only in Michigan but in other states."

Part of the knowledge of the wide existence of the disease, he added, "is due to advances in diagnostic processes developed at Michigan State College in the past year," which he said had increased the number of cases identified and reported about 50 per cent.

Undulant fever, sometimes called Malta or Mediterranean fever, is accompanied by profuse perspiration, pain and swelling in the joints and an enlarged spleen, with undulating temperatures.

310 STREET LIGHTS FOR ST. LOUIS HILLS

Their Erection in Last Large Unsupplied District of City Will Begin Tuesday.

Erection of 310 electric street light standards in St. Louis Hills, the last large unlighted district in the city, will begin Tuesday, Director of Public Utilities Edward E. Wall announced yesterday.

The new lights, which will be of 100 candlepower, will cost about $21,000. They will be placed in an area of about 48 square blocks, between Hampton and Jamieson avenues and Sutherland avenue and Eichelberger street. About 50 department employes will be placed on the job, which will take about 60 days to complete.

The new St. Louis Hills lights will bring to 50,500 the total of street lights in St. Louis, Wall said.

Dorothy Culver Is Married to F. E. Pelton Jr.

Chapel Setting for Late Afternoon Wedding and Reception at Brentmoor Home of Bride's Parents.

THE wedding of Miss Dorothy-Lee Culver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin R. Culver Jr., and Frank Edmund Pelton Jr., took place late yesterday afternoon in a beautiful chapel improvised in the Culver home, 35 Brentmoor. Folds of blue-gray satin draped the ceiling and walls of the west reception room which was softly lighted by arches of candles, the effect achieved by a series of wrought iron candelabra, filled with flickering white tapers. The satin walls were bordered with a tracery of Southern smilax. A recess at the west end of the room had as a background tall white columns topped by Grecian urns filled with deep pink anemones, pale pink tulips and madonna lilies. Here the Rev. Dr. John W. MacIvor, pastor of Second Presbyterian Church, read the marriage service in the presence of the two families and out-of-town guests. As a part of the ceremony the Lord's prayer was sung by Miss Sara Jane Lockett, Miss Elizabeth Rae, Robert Kelly and Lawrence B. Shallcross. Paul Barada, organist, head of the music department of Culver Military Academy, and a close family friend, played the wedding march.

At 5 o'clock the wedding procession started down the stairway on its way to the altar, pastel blue-green gowns effectively silhouetted against flower garden wall paper at one side, and blossoming moonvines and smilax trailing over the balustrade at the other. Instead of the usual bridesmaids' bouquets, the young women carried armsful of Japanese iris and pink sweet peas, each cluster caught to the other by a continuous fold of hyacinth blue tulle to form a single garland.

Miss Arden Beavers, New York, was maid of honor. Miss Janet Jones, Chicago; Miss Elizabeth Craig, Nashville, Tenn.; Miss Constance Lewis, Indianapolis, cousin of the bride; Miss Laura Hale Rand, Miss Frances Ives, Miss Sally Ann Currie, Miss Nancy Russell and Mrs. Alanson C. Brown Jr., were bridesmaids.

Tones of seafoam green, aqua and hyacinth blue were blended in mousseline de sole for their costumes. With a foundation of seafoam green satin their hyacinth blue gowns were designed with off-the-shoulder necklines finished with a row of shirring, and short puffed sleeves. A fitted insert girdle marked high waistlines and full skirts were slashed at the front to reveal an underdress of aqua blue. With these spring-like gowns the young women wore circular veils of aqua blue tulle fastened to the hair by hyacinth and aqua blue corn flowers. Sally and Ann Rubicam, young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rubicam Jr., in ankle-length frocks of sea shell pink organdie, served as train bearers.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father, who gave her in marriage. She was attired in a shimmering gown of silver lace lined with heavy white taffeta and veiled with a filmy layer of white tulle. The lace had a rose motif, with each blossom centered by a glistening heart-shaped paillette. The bodice, fashioned with a slightly revealed shoulder and tiny puffed sleeves, was draped to a slim waistline from which fell a full skirt terminating in a wide circular train. A double ruff of white tulle edged the neckline, sleeves and hem.

Over a silver lace mantilla reaching below her shoulders, the tulle bridal veil was arranged simply from a garland of white baby orchids. The bride carried a small bouquet of white spray orchids and wore as her only jewelry a marquise diamond suspended from a slender platinum chain, the gift of her parents.

David Hamlin Burrell III, Syracuse, N. Y., was best man for Mr. Pelton. Edwin R. Culver III, brother of the bride; William H. Staring Jr., Cleveland, O.; William K. Hoagland Jr., Boston; Brinton Webb Woodward, Topeka; C. Wickham Moore, Stuart H. Smith, H. Fred Hageman Jr. and Dudley S. Giberson were ushers.

Additional guests wore invited to a reception at 5:30 o'clock. Mrs. Culver, mother of the bride, was gowned in pale gray jersey, slightly tinged with a delicate rose. With her costume she wore a necklace of blue moonstones and a turban of blue flowers trimmed with a veil. Her corsage of blue orchids was fastened to her purse. Mrs. Pelton who, with Mr. Pelton, came from Herkimer, N. Y., for their son's wedding, was in peach crepe with which she wore a French blue hat and a spray of white orchids.

The living room was decorated with clusters of pink Picardy gladioli and shadow magnolia leaves which contrasted with the dusty-pink walls and pistachio green hangings. The reception table in the dining room was adorned with

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 4.

NEW HAMPSHIRE hills are covered with snow, its lakes are frozen solid, making an ideal setting for the twenty-ninth annual winter carnival of the Dartmouth Outing Club. More than 1500 women guests, representing nearly every city in the country, are expected for the carnival next Friday and Saturday. Those from St. Louis will include Miss Mary Louise Ewing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. A huge ice statue of Eleazar Wheelock, founder of Dartmouth College, has been erected in the middle of the campus. Built under the direction of Richard Brooks of Gloucester, Mass., the sculpture, complete with beer seidel, a vest and a benign smile, will tower twice as high as any other Hanover ice sculpture ever made. It will be flood lighted and icicles will hang from the seidel.

Outdoor evening, the opening event on the three-day program will be ushered in with a torchlight parade from the campus to the golf course. Three judges including McClelland Barclay, illustrator, will select from the hundreds of guests 20. From this

Winter Sports Attract Many In New York

Skating on Duck Pond Popular—Mrs. Wallace Thorsen Visits Her Sister, Mrs. O. T. Hess.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.

WITH New York blanketed with snow and thermometers down to 5 and 6 degrees above zero, Central Park has put on its own version of an old Dutch skating scene. The Duck Pond at Fifth avenue and Fifty-ninth street, right in the shadow of the Plaza and Pierre's, has been given over to gliding figures in fur-trimmed costumes — worn with long silk tights, sweater and bloomer ensembles, reminiscent of basketball games and women in caracul and mink, with white gloves and hats with veils.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hooker Trimble were skating on the Duck Pond last week with Mr. and Mrs. John Lowell Richards. Mr. Trimble is a first cousin of Mrs. John D. Rockefeller III and of Mrs. John Philip Marquand, wife of the author of "The Late George Appley" and the "Mr. Moto" series. Mrs. Marquand, who was Miss Adelaide Hooker, visited Mr. and Mrs. John Howard Holmes in St. Louis a few years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Richards spent the week-end at Rumson, N. J., visiting Mrs. Wilson L. Smith and Miss Mary Kimball Smith at "Edgeley," where ice-boating on the Shrewsbury River was the order of the day.

Mrs. Wallace Thorsen, the former Miss Mary Louise Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gwynne Evans, spent last week with her sister, Mrs. Otto Theodore Hess of 1192 Park avenue. Mrs. Hess was Miss Julia Evans. Mr. and Mrs. Thorsen who lived in New York for several years when they were first married, now live in Tuckahoe. Their children are Wendy Thorsen and Gwynne Thorsen, named for his grandfather.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Wooster Lambert of St. Louis and New York, who have been on the West coast for several weeks are now in Los Angeles, at the Town House. They spent some time in San Francisco and will not return to New York until the end of February.

Mrs. August E. Brooker, sister-in-law of Mrs. Borden S. Veeder, sailed Tuesday on the Gripsholm for a cruise around South America. Mrs. Brooker was at the Madison last week and was on the pier when her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Clark, sailed Friday on the Kungsholm to the West Indies. Mrs. Clark is known as a writer under ner nom de plume Gretta Palmer.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Penney of 25 Lake Forest, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Hannaway of 430 West Point court, Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Hamilton of 816 South Bemiston avenue and Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Pershall of Brown road and Lindbergh boulevard, spent last week at the Waldorf after a trip to Washington. Jack Penney and George C. Hannaway Jr., both students at Yale, came down from New Haven for the week-end.

Vincent L. Price Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent L. Price was in Washington Sunday for the "command" performance of the hit revival of "Outward Bound," given at the National Theater, as part of the President's birthday celebration. Mr. Price took the part of the minister. Playing in the National theater wasn't new to Mr. Price, for it was here that Helen Hayes, with Vincent Price as Prince Albert, opened in Victoria Regina, before it was taken to New York. After the performance of "Outward Bound" on Sunday, Mr. Price and other members of the cast were guests of the Roosevelts at an informal supper at the White House.

Sailing this week-end on the Columbus are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Nims and Mr. Nim's brother, Arthur Nims of Long Beach, Cal., who have been at the Ritz. They will go first to South Africa, visiting the headwaters of the Nile and later going into the interior. Mr. and Mrs. Nims will return to this country the first week in May for the wedding of Mrs. Nim's niece, Miss Elizabeth Long, of Hartford, and Judson Bemis of Chestnut Hill, Pa. While in New York, Mrs. Nims and her sister, Mrs. Thomas Ratcliffe, and Thomas Ratcliffe Jr., who formerly lived in Kingsbury place but now make their home here at the LaSalle spent a great deal of time at the theater.

Thomas Ratcliffe Jr. is now associated with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in New York, and reviews all new plays with an eye to their movie possibilities. As a sideline, Mr. Ratcliffe puts on plays himself and last Friday acted in three short plays, "The Happy Journey," "Good Night Please," and "The Fall of the City," given in the parish house of Christ Church, on Park avenue at Sixtieth street.

group, the judges will then select the carnival queen who will reign for the length of the carnival, the others serving as her court.

Mary Ann McNary Wed to F. J. Haper

ATTIRED in her mother's wedding gown and veil Miss Mary Ann McNary, daughter of Mrs. William F. McNary, 6108 McPherson avenue, became the bride of Frederick J. Haper, 3100 North Grand boulevard, at St. Roch's Church yesterday morning at 8 o'clock. Mgr. John P. Spencer officiated at the marriage ceremony.

William F. McNary gave his sister in marriage. Her gown of cream lace, over taffeta, was designed with a high round neckline, short puffed sleeves and a full skirt that ended in a train. The bridal veil, of ivory tinted tulle, was secured by a wreath of orange blossoms. The bride wore an ivory cross that her mother had worn at her wedding and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of white sweet peas and roses, copied from her mother's wedding picture. Miss Alice O'Connor was maid of honor. She wore French blue taffeta trimmed with wine colored velvet ribbon, with which she wore a matching French blue hat. Her colonial bouquet was of roses and violets. Wilson Jeanelle was best man.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the Park Plaza. Mr. Haper and his bride will live at 6658 Labadie avenue. She was graduated from Fontbonne College. Mr. Haper, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Haper, was graduated from St. Louis University School of Commerce and Finance.

RECENT WEDDINGS AND ENGAGEMENTS

Washington Scene

By the POE SISTERS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.

"THOSE achieving Washingtons," commented a social historian of the city when it was learned that Pattie Willis, one of the West Virginia Washingtons, a relative of the late Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, great-great-great-grandniece of George Washington, had won new artistic honors in having her paintings selected to represent that State in the New York World Fair Exhibition of Contemporary Art.

As George Washington's birthday approaches again it is well to recall that all his collateral descendants (he had no direct ones) have lived up to the family name.

When on George Washington's birthday his farewell message is read in the United States Senate according to long established custom, two bishops of the Episcopal Church, his great-great-great-great-grandnephews may attend. They are the Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church in the United States, Henry St. George Tucker, who is the Bishop of Virginia, and his brother, Beverly D. Tucker Jr., Bishop Co-adjutor in Ohio.

Another member of the Washington family group is Col. Merwyn Buckey, U. S. A., retired, the oldest living descendant of Samuel Washington, one of George Washington's brothers. When the Washington family group arrives for the reading of the farewell message it is announced formally to the Senate and placed in seats of honor on the Senate floor.

A new organization has been formed in Washington known as "The Daughters of the House" and all daughters and nieces of members of the Seventy-sixth Congress are eligible for membership.

At the balls given here in honor of the President's birthday Monday one of the guests was Mrs. James M. Thomson, formerly Miss Genevieve Champ Clark. She was the first daughter of a Speaker formally to receive the title of "Daughter of the House." When she married in 1915 James M. Thomson of New Orleans, publisher of the New Orleans Item, the House of Representatives presented her with a diamond pendant and a necklace of diamonds. She wore the jewelry at the President's ball.

Mrs. Thomson has been visiting her mother-in-law, Mrs. A. P. Thomson, at Summit Point, W. Va., and her brother and sister-in-law, Senator and Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, in Washington. She will return to New Orleans this week to entertain guests for the Mardi Gras festivities there.

Mrs. Thomson was a guest at dinner on Monday at the dinner given by Mrs. Edward Beale McLean at Friendship in honor of the President's birthday.

Later in the week Mrs. McLean left with her daughter, Miss Evalyn Washington McLean, for Palm Beach, Fla., where they will join her two sons, John R. McLean II and Edward Beale McLean Jr.

Mrs. Jane Fuller Francis, daughter of the late Chief Justice of the United States and Mrs. Melville W. Fuller died this week. The Fullers came to Washington in 1888 when President Cleveland appointed Chief Justice Fuller to that post. They took up their residence in the John Marshall house at Eighteenth and F streets N. W., now occupied by Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, widow of the late Representative.

Mrs. Francis made her debut in Washington with her sister, the late Mrs. Hugh C. Wallace. When she married the late Nathaniel Francis she lived in Paris for several years, returning here some time ago, where she remained until her death.

The remaining members of the Fuller family are Robert Mason, Melville Mason of Washington, Countess J. B. de Luppe of Paris and Mrs. A. R. Genet of Tarrytown, N. Y.

MISS RUTH VIRGINIA ALEXANDER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Harvey Alexander, who will be married March 18 to Harrison Bailey Stubbs. The engagement has been announced informally.

PLAYGOERS' GROUPS URGED IN SIX CITIES

St. Louis Organization Sends Data to Chambers of Commerce.

A plan for strengthening the position and influence of the Playgoers of St. Louis by encouraging the formation of similar organizations in six other large cities was disclosed last night by the committee in charge.

In letters to Chambers of Commerce of Detroit, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus and Indianapolis, Thomas N. Dysart, president of the Chamber of Commerce of St. Louis, describes the Playgoers organization and suggests that groups in other cities, if interested, should begin their plans well in advance of next fall.

The letters contain literature concerning the Playgoers and samples of the pledge cards signed by members. Dysart states that if interest is shown, copies of the Playgoers by-laws and articles of incorporation will be provided. Working with Dysart are Dr. Roland M. Klemme, Max Koenigsberg, B. G. Chapman Jr. and John Ring Jr.

"A year and a half ago we developed in St. Louis, without sponsorship, an organization called the Playgoers of St. Louis," the letters state. "Its purpose was to put St. Louis on the theatrical map by having in the fall and winter season what we now enjoy through our Municipal Opera in summer.

"We felt that, as a metropolitan community, having but eight or nine regular plays at our downtown theater was wholly inadequate, not alone for our own citizens but for merchants who come here to do business and for people living in the nearby trade territory."

The letters state that the plan has resulted in two seasons of more than 20 weeks each and that the plan, if adopted in other cities, would encourage New York producers to send more shows on the road.

F H A POLICIES ON BIG APARTMENTS OPPOSED

County Realty Board Says Multiple Units Hurt Rentals on Existing Property.

Directors of the St. Louis County Real Estate Board announced yesterday that they had adopted resolutions opposing erection of multiple dwelling units in St. Louis County under the section of the Federal Housing Act providing for insurance of loans on apartment projects costing more than $200,000.

Such apartments, they contend, would retard recovery of rental levels for existing property and would have the effect of decreasing tax revenue.

A similar resolution was adopted recently by the St. Louis Mortgage Bankers' Association of St. Louis, which has a membership of 86 firms. In a letter to Stewart McDonald, Federal Housing Administrator, he was asked to refuse insurance of a proposed $3,250,000 600-unit apartment on Lucas and Hunt road north of Natural Bridge road.

Members of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange recently voted against approval of measures pending in the Legislature for establishment of a public housing authority in St. Louis.

COMMERCE CHAMBER VIEWS ON LEGISLATION

Directors Approve 28, Disapprove 26 Bills Offered at Jefferson City.

Twenty-eight bills pending in the Missouri Legislature have the approval of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, which disapproved 26 other bills.

House Bills 6, 7, 8 and 9, all having to do with housing, are among the approved bills. Bill No. 6 would create housing authorities in cities of 10,000 or more population. Bill No. 8 would permit the State or political subdivisions to invest sinking funds in the bonds or other obligations of the housing authority.

These bills were approved on the theory they would permit St. Louis to rehabilitate its blighted districts an dset up the means for raising necessary funds. Bill No. 9, providing for the demonstration of unsuitable dwelling space, would allow the removal of conditions dangerous to public health and safety.

Another bill approved by the Chamber of Commerce is No. 84, providing for a rate of interest not to exceed 3 per cent a month on loans of less than $100 and maintaining the rate of 2½ per cent a month on loans of $100 to $300. The bill was designed to outlaw salary buyers while permitting small loan firms to operate at a profit.

Two Measures Opposed.

Among the bills disapproved was No. 29 creating a Missouri State Labor Relations Board for the regulation of industries in intrastate commerce. The Chamber of Commerce position is that because there are several amendments to the present Federal law now pending in Congress, it would not be possible to write a State law in conformity with the national act at the present time.

House Bill No. 3, which would place the collection of the State income tax in the hands of the State Auditor, was disapproved by the board on the grounds that such an arrangement would increase the cost of collection, and because it would be wrong for any collection agency to be put in the position of auditing its own books.

Bills Approved.

Other bills approved by the Chamber of Commerce board were:

No. 4—Calls for the repeal of the Jones-Munger delinquent and back tax law, passed by the Legislature in 1933. Approval was given because the law has resulted in forced sales with few or no purchasers.

No. 16—Would increase the salaries of the judges and commissioners of the Supreme Court, and of the judges and commissioners of the St. Louis and Kansas City Court of Appeal. Approved because of present inadequate pay.

No. 21—To establish a criminal court of St. Louis County and provided for the election of a judge in November, 1940. Approved because its passage would eliminate criminal jurisdiction of the justice of the peace courts in St. Louis County.

No. 48—Providing that employes continuing to occupy property after termination of employment shall be guilty of unlawful possession. Approved as tending to eliminate sit-down strikes.

School Salary Rise Favored.

No. 75—Giving county school superintendents salary increases for additional duties as school attendant officers. Approval given because of belief bill would result in better supervision of school attendance and attracted better qualified personnel.

No. 85—For payment of blind pensions monthly instead of quarterly. In the event of the death of the pensioner, the amount due for the month would be paid to the legal representative of the pensioner. In the event the pensioner leaves the State for another residence his name shall be removed from the blind pension roll.

No. 19—Authorizing the payment of taxes on real or personal property delinquent for the year 1938, or for any year or years prior to 1938, together with one-half of the penalties and defaulted interest in 10 annual installments. Approved with the recommendation of an amendment to maintain the right of the mortgagee to foreclose the mortgage at any time because of non-payment of taxes.

Other Measures Disapproved.

Bills disapproved by the board were the following:

No. 40—Establishing minimum amounts in the payment of pensions under the Old Age Assistance Law without changing present maximum payments.

No. 44—Repeal of the Missouri Old Age Assistance Law providing pensions for indigent persons 70 years of age and over, and enacting new provisions. Both bills disapproved because they are not in accord with Federal regulations.

No. 86—Providing that in the case of the death of a blind pensioner, that any amount less than $100 due the deceased, where there is no administrator, shall be paid to the person with whom the deceased last resided. Disapproved on the belief that such a ruling would open the way for a large field of injustices.

No. 96—Providing blind pensions for persons 10 years old or more, who have resided in the State for 10 consecutive years.

No. 22—Providing for the remission of penalties, interest and costs, except the commissions of collectors, on all taxes becoming delinquent prior to Jan. 1, 1939, including taxes for 1938; allowing full remission if paid not later than June 30, 1939; 75 per cent if paid prior to Aug. 31, 50 per cent if paid before Oct. 31, and 25 per cent if paid prior to Dec. 31. Disapproved because remission of penalties would tend to encourage nonpayment of taxes and would be unfair to those making prompt payment.

No. 36—Providing that a motion for a new trial in criminal cases shall be filed in writing before judgment within four days after the trial. Disapproved with the statement that this is a "shotgun" motion which has been before the Legislature for the last two sessions.

Against Higher Income Tax.

No. 38—Providing an increase in individual income tax rates on net incomes in excess of $5000. Disapproved because with the revenue now being received there is no need for an increase in income tax rates.

No. 140—Declaring that a mortgage on real estate for the purpose of assessment and taxation. Disapproved in the belief that passage of the bill would increase the interest rates on mortgages.

A proposition to authorize the Legislature to exempt in whole or in part the structural or other improvements made on real estate and to increase, over a period of five years, the rate of taxation on real estate was disapproved on the ground that it carries the danger of increasing the taxes on urban property, and that it would give the Legislature the power to shift the taxation burden on classes of property.

FROM REVOLUTIONARY DAYS TO NOW

The Evolution of the United States Army Uniform

A SIGHT to break the heart of an old-time, hard-boiled drill sergeant—that's what the proposed slate-blue field uniform for the United States Army is. If adopted, it will be another major step in the development of the uniform, changes in which are depicted on this page by PICTURES. The uniforms shown range from the days of '76 to the loosely fitting experimental one now being tested at several widely scattered army posts. This new garb has an open collar without necktie, shoulders are cut to give as much freedom of action as a golfer's jacket, the headgear resembles a trench cap with visor and may be stuffed in a hip pocket. Besides being less visible than the present uniform to air and ground observers, it is less restricting to the person and is easily manufactured.

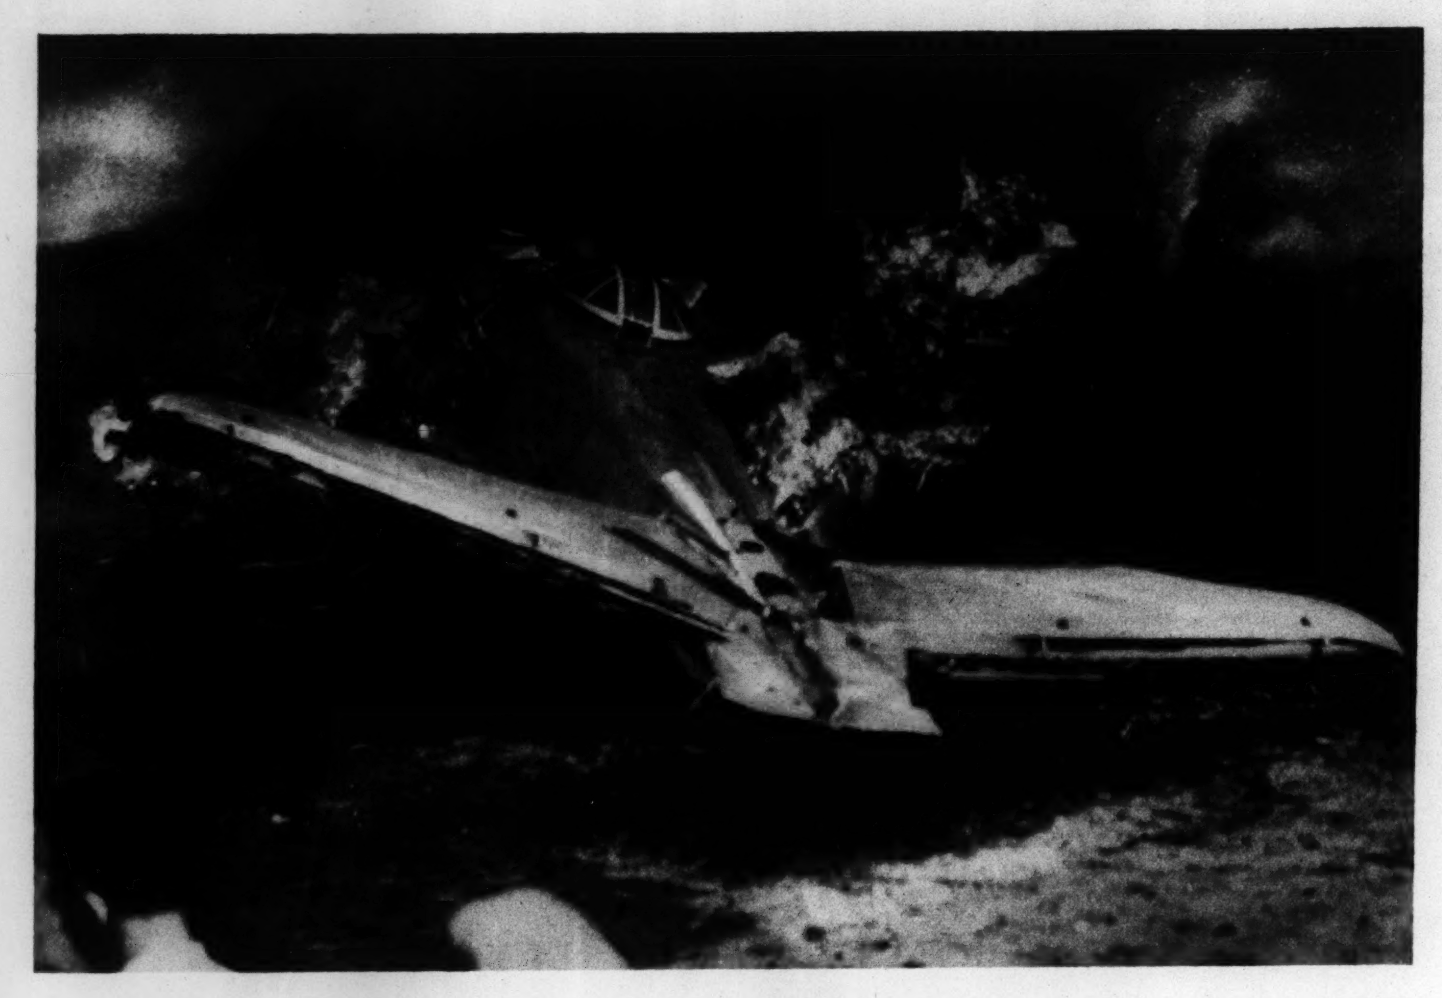
Controversy Over Europe's War Purchases in America



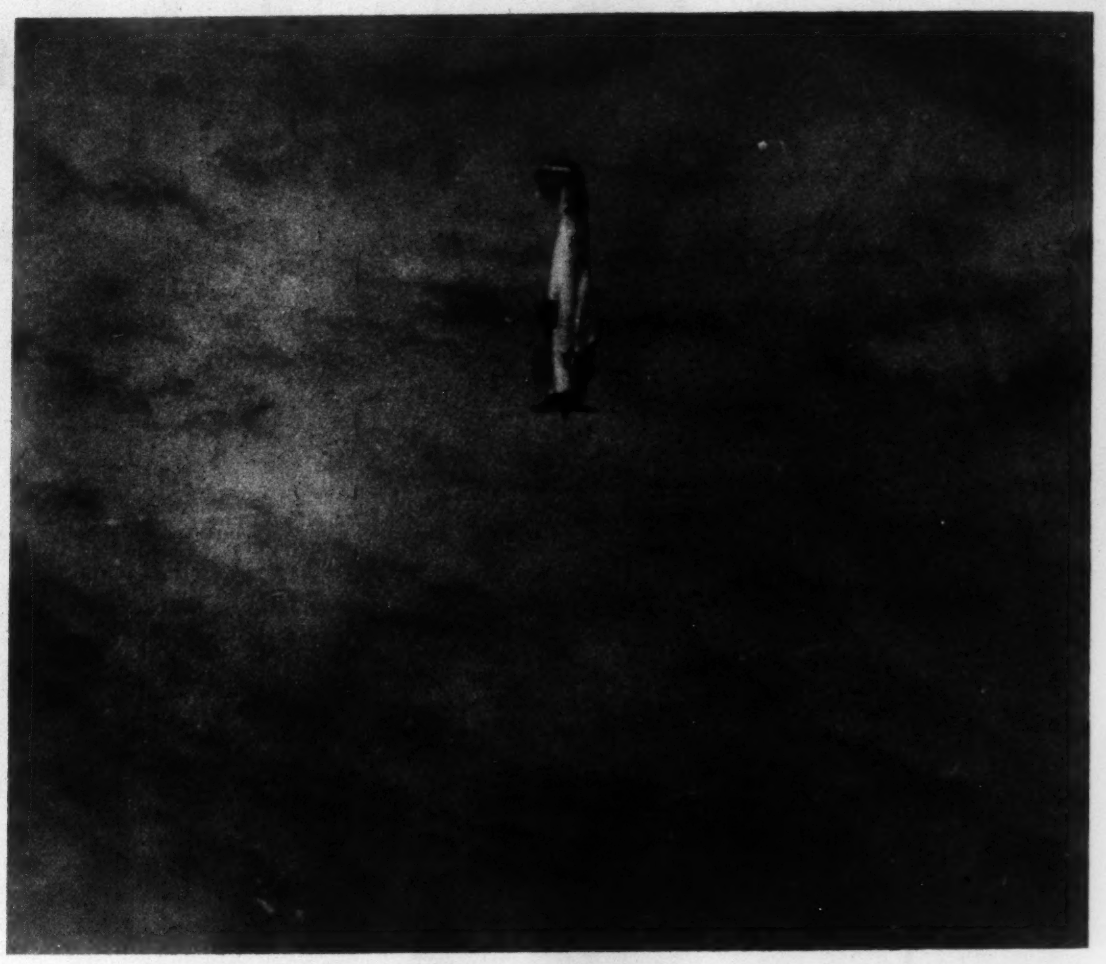
The controversy over sale of military planes to France and England started when this light bomber crashed and burned at Los Angeles, January 23, killing John Cable, test pilot for the Douglas Aircraft Corporation, and injuring Paul Chemidlin (below), a representative of the French Air Ministry for whom the plane was being demonstrated. It was then disclosed France was purchasing 600 military planes from private companies here at a cost of $65,000,000. Although it was asserted the plane had not been bought by the United States Army (which will hold competitions for light bombers March 4) and no military secrets were revealed, some Senators charged the administration was letting France get our most modern planes before our own army. (International News Photos)

FEARS for what might happen to the United States neutrality policy if France and Britain fight Germany and Italy, burst with a bang among opponents of the administration's foreign policy in Washington last week after the President was reported to have made plain to the Senate Military Affairs Committee that he was committed to a course of allowing democracies to obtain war supplies from this country as long as they paid cash.

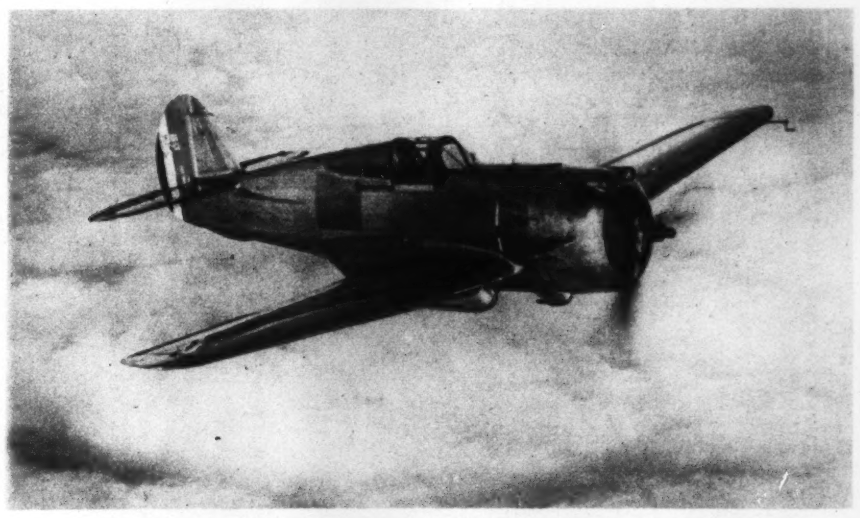
One committee member's assertion that the President had said that in the event of a world war the frontiers of the United States would be in France caused jubilation in France and England, condemnation in Germany and Italy, and consternation among isolationists such as Republican Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California, who asked, "Shall we be eased into war?" Two other members of the committee denied the President made the statement. Nevertheless, Republicans led a move to throw full publicity on the administration's foreign policy, which they criticised as secretive.

The conference between Mr. Roosevelt and the committee was on the President's reported aid to a French Government mission which came here to buy 600 war planes to bolster France's flagging output of only 90 planes a month in the European arms race. Apparently, as long as France is not at war, such purchase from private manufacturers in this country is not a violation of the Neutrality Act. The same thing applies to England, which is buying 400 planes here. Both General Malin Craig, Army Chief of Staff, and President Roosevelt had given assurances that no military secrets were being revealed to the purchasers. The President also had pointed out that the orders will keep otherwise idle airplane factories humming and gradually tune them to a pitch where they can go into mass production if appropriations are approved for the proposed addition of 3000 to 4000 military planes for the United States air forces.

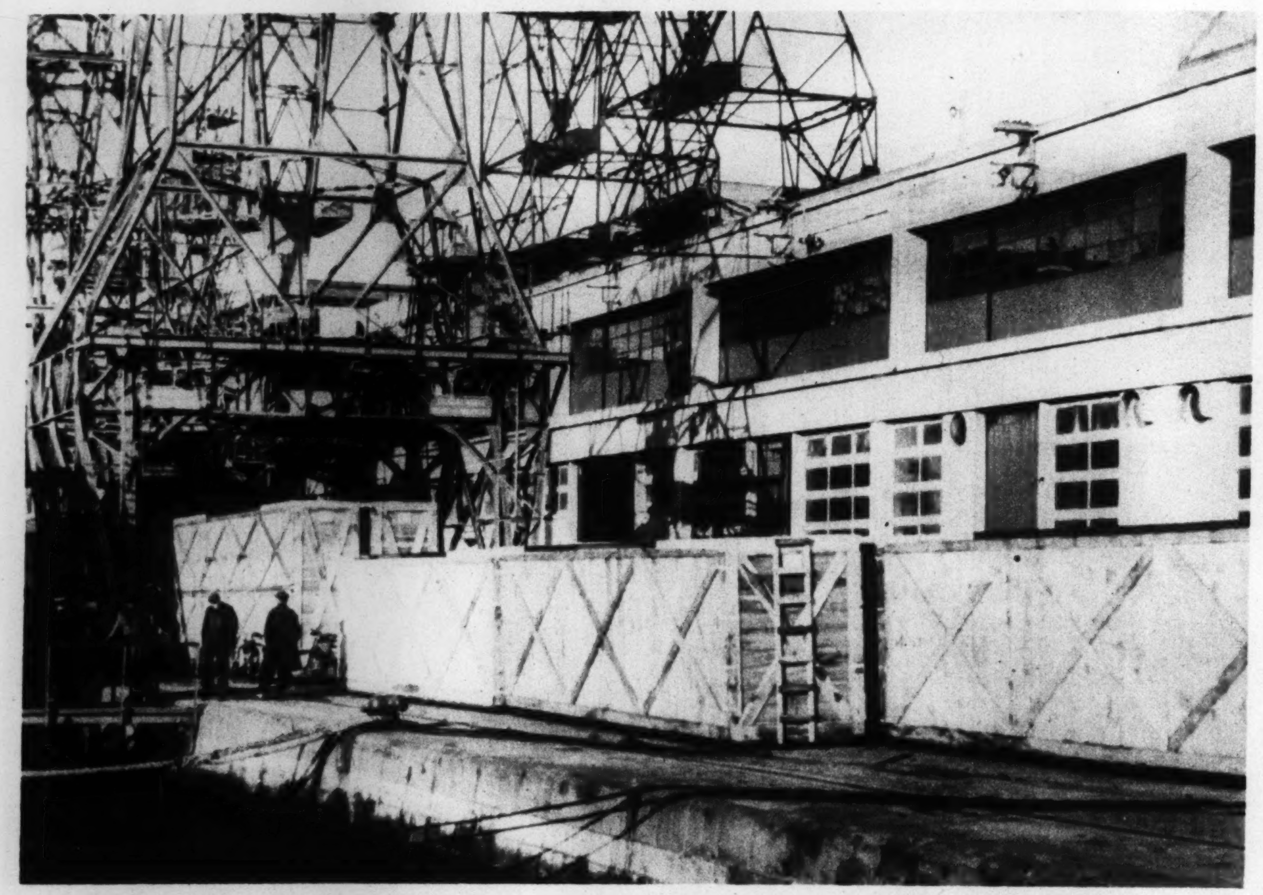
(Associated Press Photos except as noted)



That the French army was ordering 200 of this latest type American pursuit ship, Curtiss Hawk 75A, became known two days later when the ship was dived at record-breaking speed at Buffalo. A mark of 575 miles an hour for a free dive of 9000 feet was claimed, but Federal aeronautic experts expressed "great doubts" that speed had been attained.



A closer view of the Curtiss Hawk 75A with N. Lloyd Child, test pilot, at the controls. The plane is similar to the Curtiss P-36A, a standard pursuit plane of the United States Army. It carries two machine guns and bombs.



Part of the first assignment of military planes bought by France in this country after being unloaded from the liner Champlain at Le Havre. The planes were shipped in sections and will be assembled in French factories.

Child demonstrating how the blades of the 75A's variable pitch propeller were adjusted for the flight, making the record speed possible. Note the flat nosed, radial type, air-cooled motor, which the United States Army had adhered to despite complaints that the European bullet nosed, water-cooled type of engine offered less wind resistance and allowed greater speed.

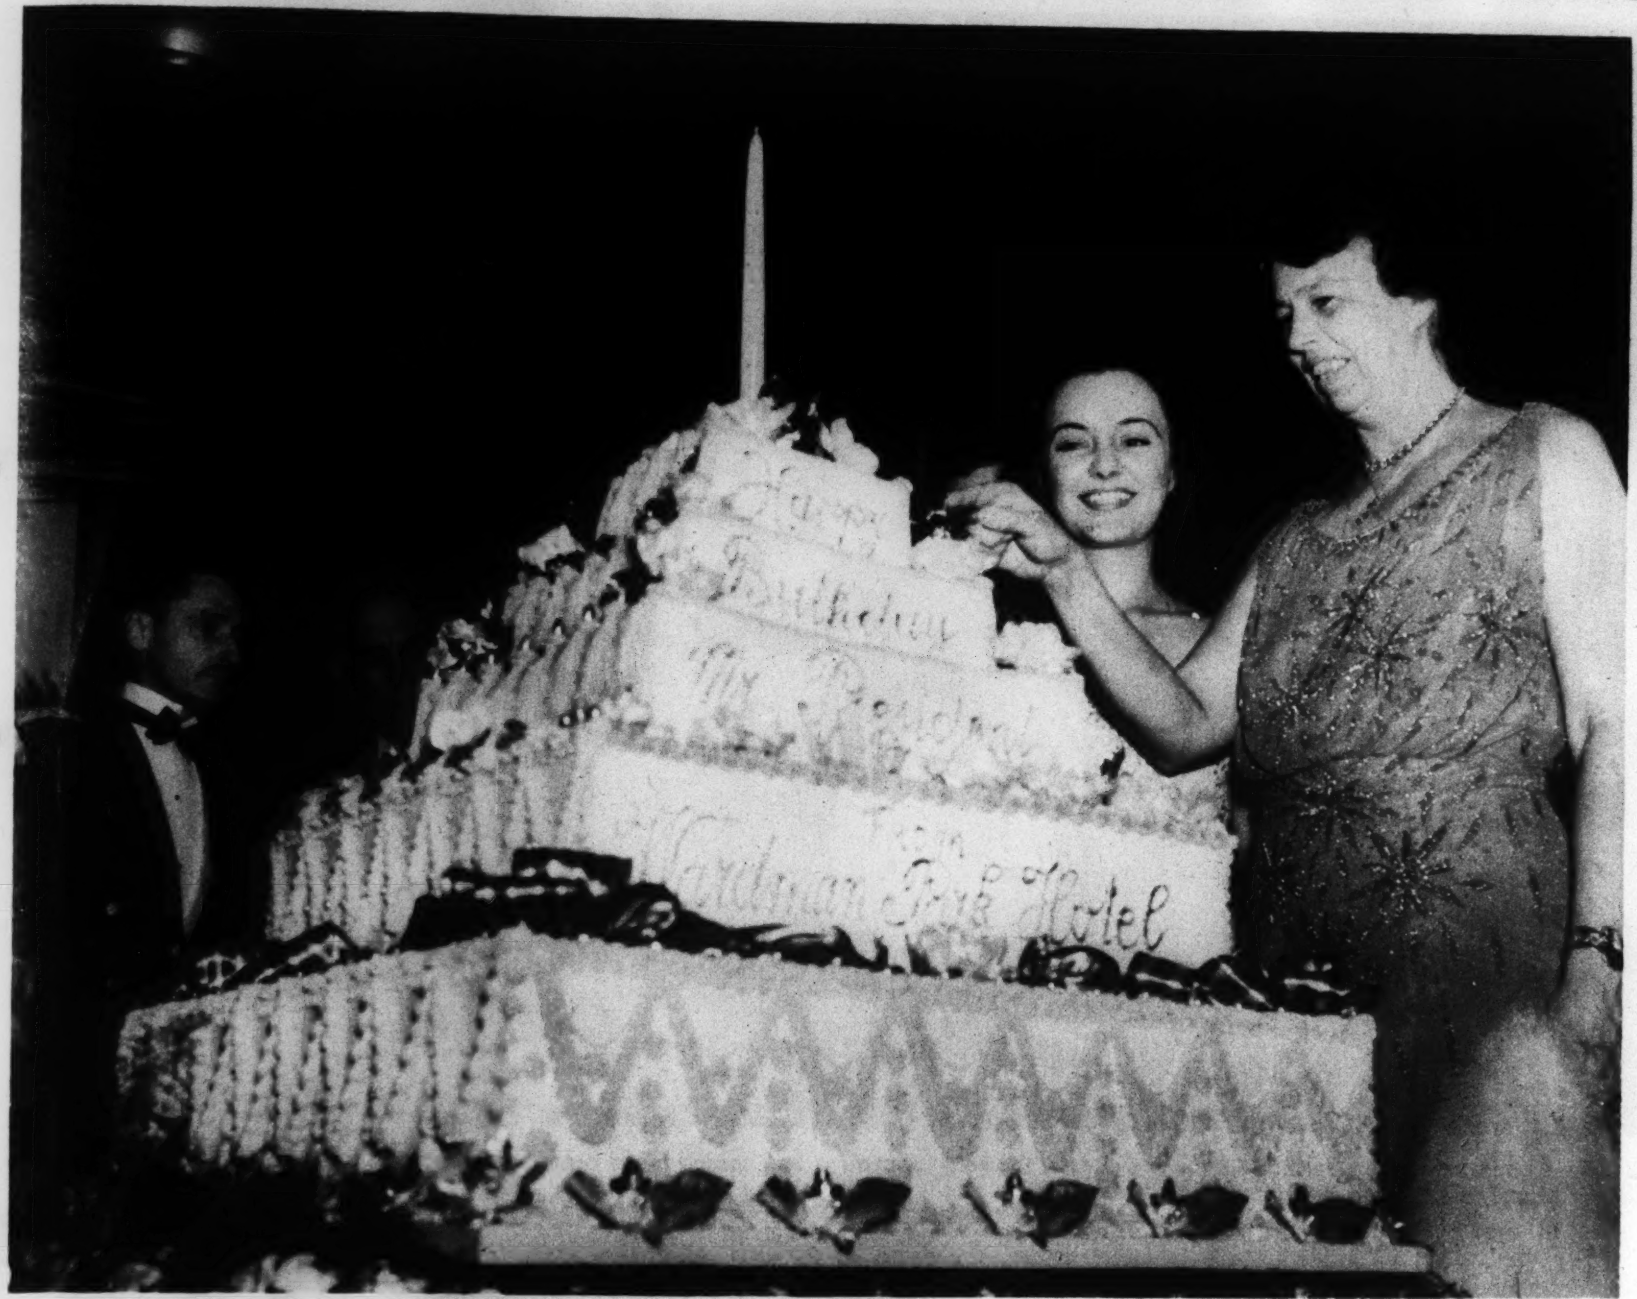
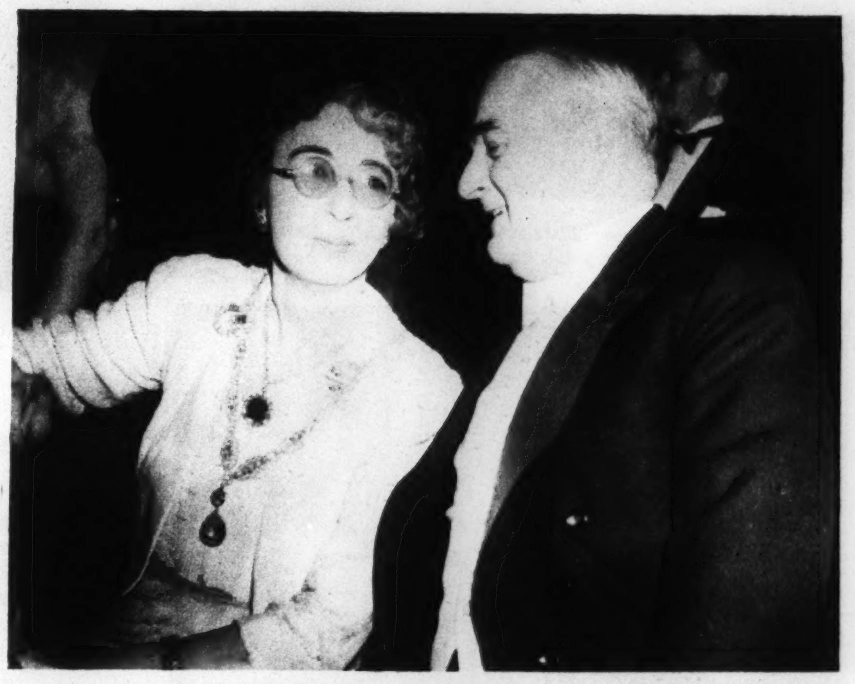
Washington Celebrates the President's Birthday



Happy Birthday Mr. President from Wardman Park Hotel

On the last stop on her tour of seven President's birthday balls in Washington, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt cuts a birthday cake. With her is Andrea Leeds, movie actress.

At one of the balls, from left, Phya Abhibal Rajamaitri, Minister from Siam to the United States; Mrs. Leander Loose of Washington and Kansas City, and Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas.



Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, wearing her famous Hope diamond (large dark stone on end of short necklace) and Senator Joseph F. Guffey of Pennsylvania at the "gold plate" breakfast.

As the President prepared to broadcast his thanks to the nation for its aid in the infantile paralysis drive.
(International News Photo)

THE 25,000 parties which were held throughout the nation last Monday night to celebrate President Roosevelt's fifty-seventh birthday and to raise funds to fight infantile paralysis had their apex at Washington, D. C., where seven balls were held. A dozen movie and radio actors were honor guests at the seven balls and gathered at the White House at midnight to hear the President broadcast his thanks to the country. They and several members of the Roosevelt family topped off the evening at a $25 "gold plate" hotel breakfast, where 200 persons ate green turtle soup and breast of pheasant. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, as cyclonic as usual, made the circuit of the seven balls in less than two hours, and got back to the White House in time to greet guests after the broadcast. As Mr. Roosevelt pointed out in his radio address, half of the net proceeds of the parties went to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, and the remainder will be spent to aid sufferers from the disease in the communities where the money was raised.

WATER polo—a combination of swimming, basketball, football, wrestling, Donnybrook Fair and a trip over Niagara Falls—is being taken up by girls this winter as an organized sport, following its official recognition by the Amateur Athletic Union as a game for women as well as men. Two girls' teams, one representing the Downtown Y. W. C. A., the other the Shaw Park pool in Clayton, have been organized in the St. Louis area, others are being formed, and the first national A. A. U. women's water polo championship meet is scheduled to be held at Washington University in April.

As played under A. A. U. rules, water polo is a rough and vigorous game in which two teams of seven members each try to get an inflated ball through the opponent's goal. The play, which makes heavy demands on lungs, arms and legs, involves passes, dribbles, tackles, hand-to-hand tussles, violent duckings and occasional accidental kicks in the face. Players need to be expert swimmers and durable persons who don't bruise easily. Probably special rules to reduce roughness will be adopted for women's competition, but at present the girls are playing by men's rules. The photographs on this page were made at a practice of the Y. W. C. A. team, which is in charge of Miss Lila Kepple, Y. W. C. A. swimming director and instigator of water polo for women in St. Louis.

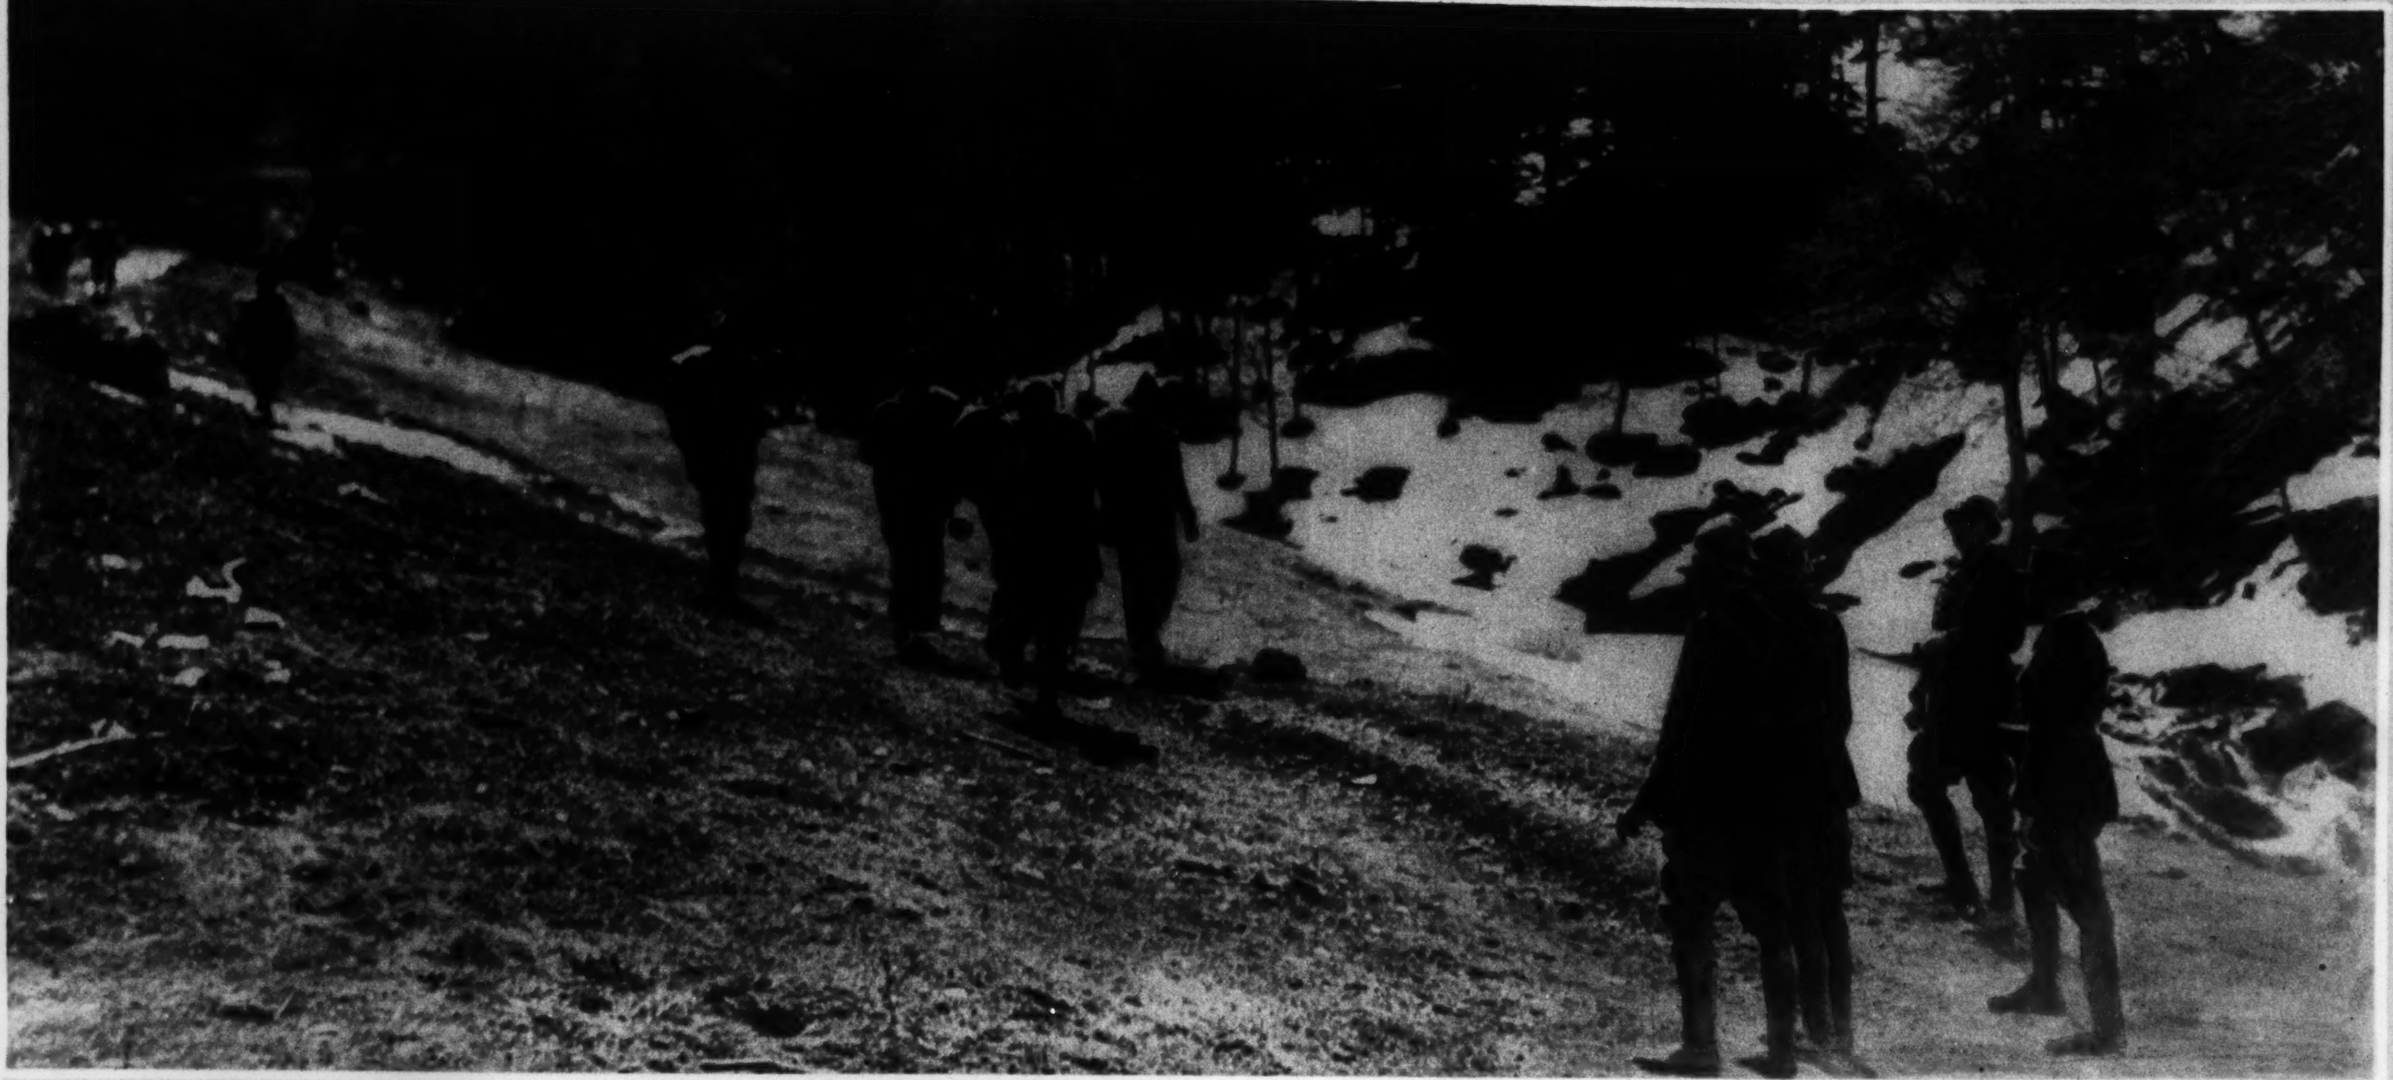
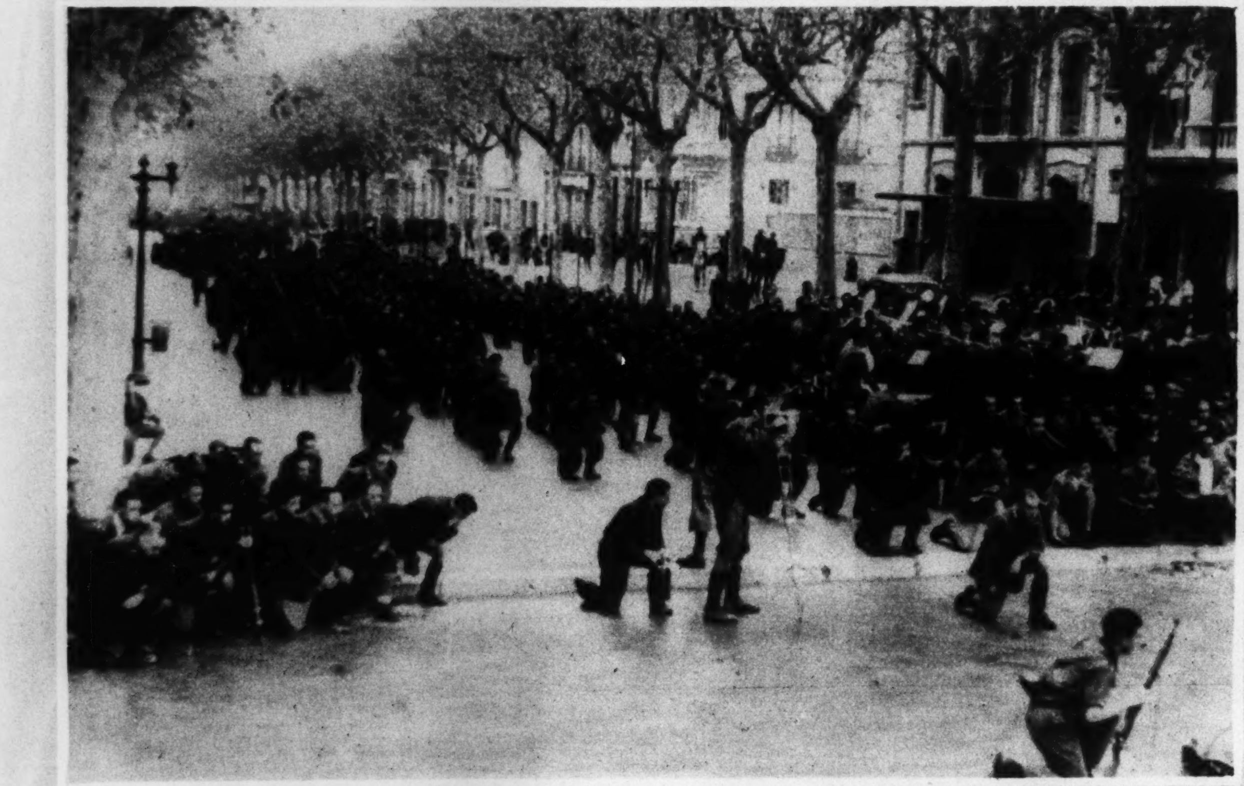
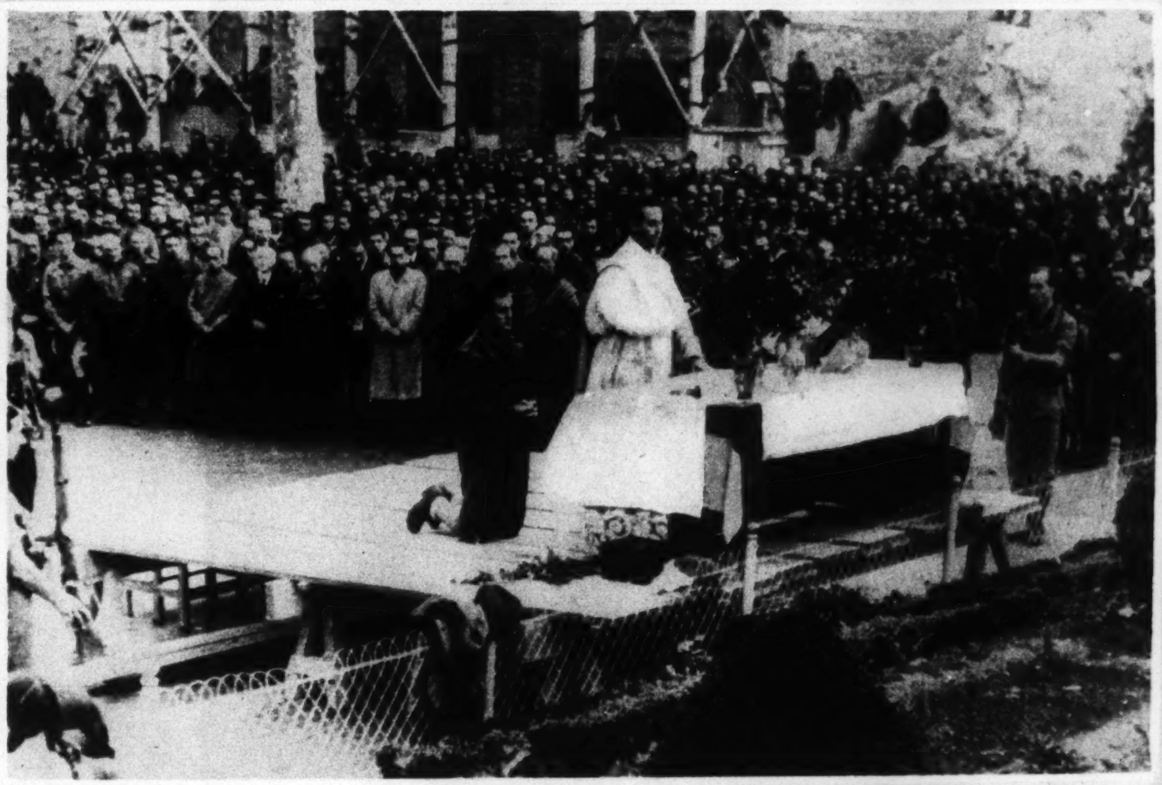
During the Rebel Sweep Through Catalonia



The camera caught these side flashes of drama in the tragedy of the Spanish civil war as Rebel General Franco swept through Catalonia to take Barcelona. Above, a great moment when desperate Loyalist refugees reach the French border after a perilous struggle through the snow-swept Pyrenees. Ahead of them lies surcease from bloodshed, famine and terror, although what their future may be is a serious problem. The French soldiers are waiting to search them for arms before seeing that they are given food and shelter. More than fifty thousand women, children, old men and wounded poured into France after the fall of Barcelona, along with a thousand deserters from the Loyalist army, many of whom slipped across the border on old smugglers' trails.





And on the rebel side, scenes like these. Left, the Fifth Division of Navarre kneels in prayer after taking the key city of Tarragona in the drive on Barcelona. It is a mass, celebrated in the public square. Right; a soldier assists the officiating priest while other Navarrese troops flank the altar with their rifles at present arms.

When Tarragona fell, this joyful reunion took place between two brothers who had fought on opposite sides. The brother with the rebel forces is wearing a steel helmet, and the other, who was taken prisoner, is wearing the beret.

PUERTO RICO, the United States possession in the Eastern Caribbean Sea which has been in the news in the past few years chiefly over violence in its independence movement and labor troubles, is out to show a brighter side to the American public. Through Press Agent Steve Hannagan, the man who made Miami Beach and Sun Valley famous, it is emphasizing the color and charm of its old cities and towns, the beauty of its scenery, the balminess of its climate and other tourist attractions. Currently, Hannagan is telling about the one hundred and first Ponce de Leon carnival in San Juan, the capital, beginning next Thursday and lasting until February 21. As usual, pretty girls are a feature of the publicity photos, with lovely senoritas used instead of bathing beauties or skiing debs. Some of them are shown here.

The festival is named after Juan Ponce de Leon, the Spanish adventurer who conquered Puerto Rico in 1509, was appointed Governor, then set out to find a fabled Fountain of Youth and discovered Florida.

Chauffeurs and Butlers Give a Formal Party

NEGRO chauffeurs, butlers and maids for prominent St. Louis families had an evening in their own polite society the night of January 28 at a dance that for dignity and formality compared favorably with the standards of any other social group. It was the third annual dance of the Chauffeurs and Butlers Association, held at the Castle Ballroom, 2839 Olive street. There were 880 guests, including the 156 members of the association. Besides servants, guests ranged from professional people to elevator operators, porters and janitors. Tails and white ties were requested for the men, but the majority wore dinner jackets. Conservatism prevailed at the affair and there was little jitter-bug dancing. Many persons did not arrive until 11:30, as they had first to complete Saturday evening duties for their employers, and the party broke up at 2:30 a. m. Some of the expenses, and in some cases small cars for the evening, were contributed by employers.

MOVITA of the MOVIES

MOVITA
In "Rose of the Rio Grande."

ARIZONA isn't very far from Hollywood, but Maria Luisa Castaneda went from home to the movie metropolis the long way—that is, via practically all points east. After breaking into musical comedy as a singer and dancer on the West Coast in 1931, she toured the country in vaudeville before movie talent scouts recognized the screen possibilities in her brunet comeliness and she was given a small part in "Flying Down to Rio." By that time her name was simply Movita, and as Movita she has advanced through "Mutiny on the Bounty" and other films—usually playing a tropical charmer—to featured roles. "Rose of the Rio Grande," released last year, is the latest of her pictures to reach the public.

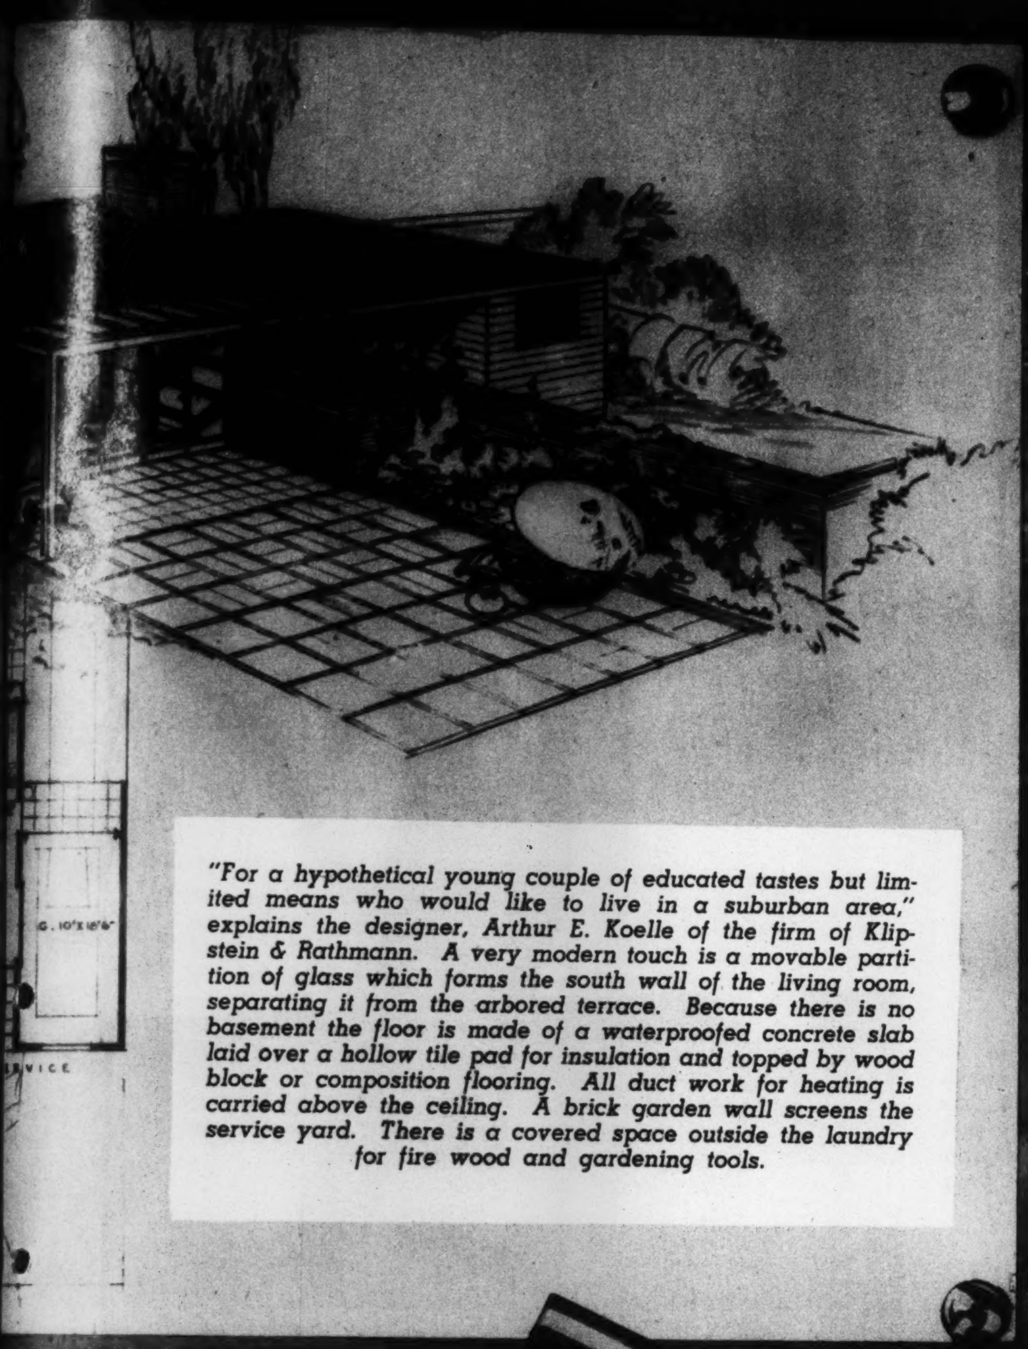
Less than $8000 will build this house in native classical revival style designed by Nagel and Dunn. It is distinguished by a combination living and dining room, 17 by 25 feet, unusually large for this size house, with a higher ceiling than the other rooms. Hallways are eliminated by making this central room give access to other parts of the house. The two bedrooms and kitchen have two exposures with cross ventilation. A novel feature is the car port as substitute for a garage; it is an open porch where an automobile may be protected from snow, rain and sun. If not used for this purpose, it could be screened for family use.

Of frame construction, with contrasting brick veneer around dining room windows, this two-bedroom cottage designed by Walter J. Hubbard would cost less than $5000. The bedrooms are placed in the rear to be away from street noise, basement stairs are easily accessible from outside, and corner windows, of casement type, conserve wall space. Living room and dining room have front and side exposures.

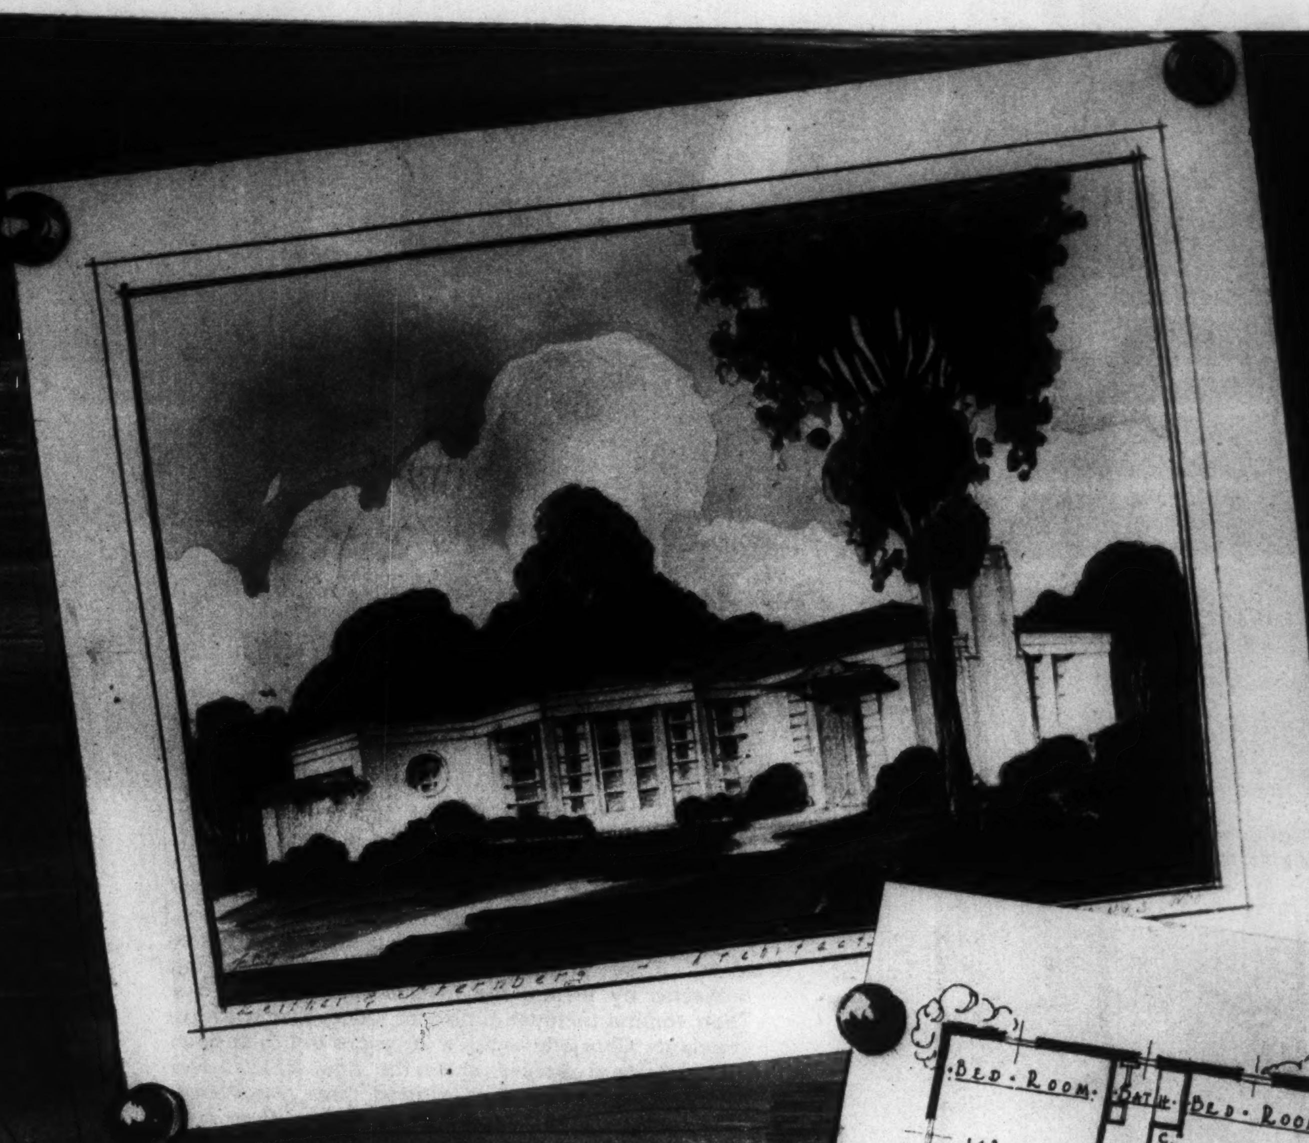
Simplicity characterizes this house of traditional type designed by O. Horace Tucker for a client who wanted for $5000 a four-room dwelling containing space in which two additional rooms and a bathroom could be completed later. It has two stories, the upper left unfinished. On the first floor there is a central hall into which all the finished rooms open. Conveniences include a basement garage and a screened porch in the rear, off the kitchen. The house is faced with white brick.

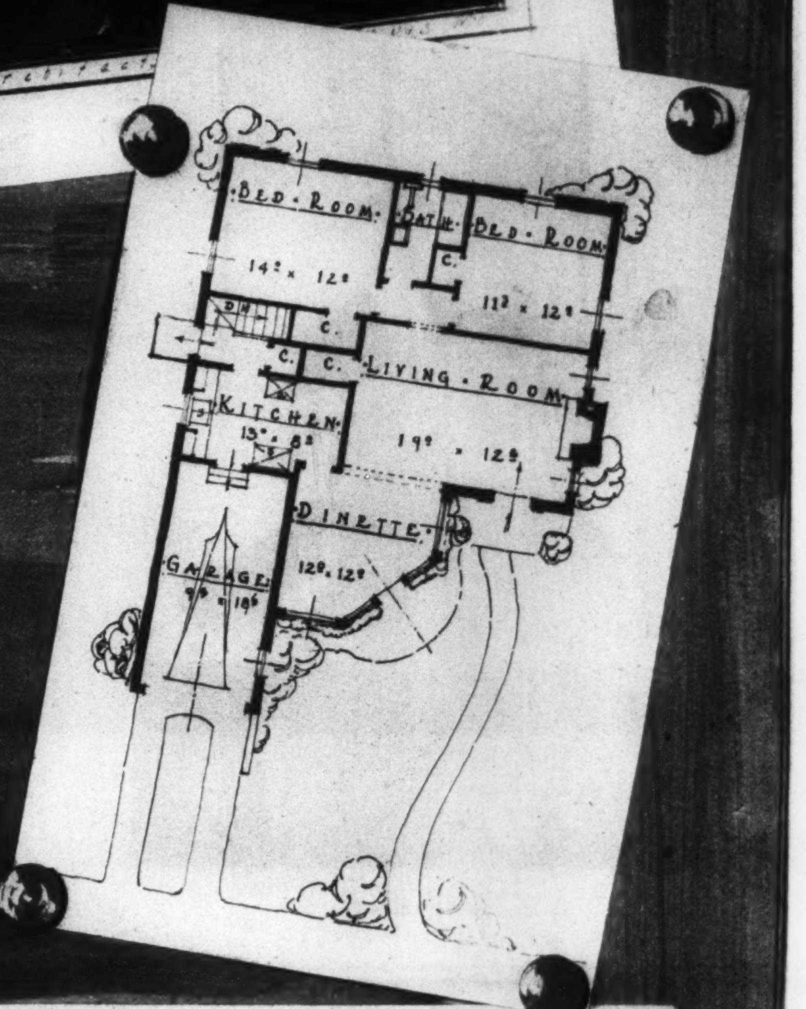
SMALL HOUSES FOR ST. LOUISANS

Six Designs by Members of the American Institute of Architects

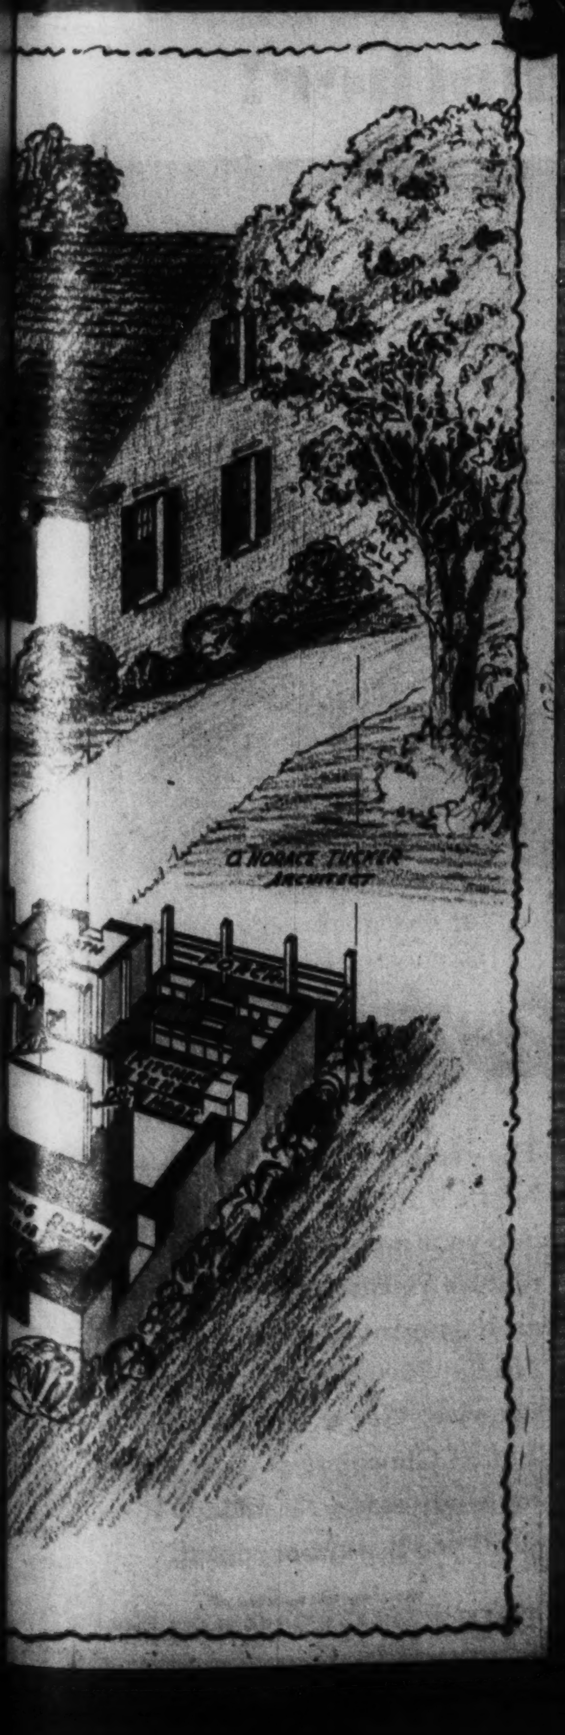


"For a hypothetical young couple of educated tastes but limited means who would like to live in a suburban area," explains the designer, Arthur E. Koelle of the firm of Klipstein & Rathmann. A very modern touch is a movable partition of glass which forms the south wall of the living room, separating it from the arbored terrace. Because there is no basement the floor is made of a waterproofed concrete slab laid over a hollow tile pad for insulation and topped by wood block or composition flooring. All duct work for heating is carried above the ceiling. A brick garden wall screens the service yard. There is a covered space outside the laundry for fire wood and gardening tools.





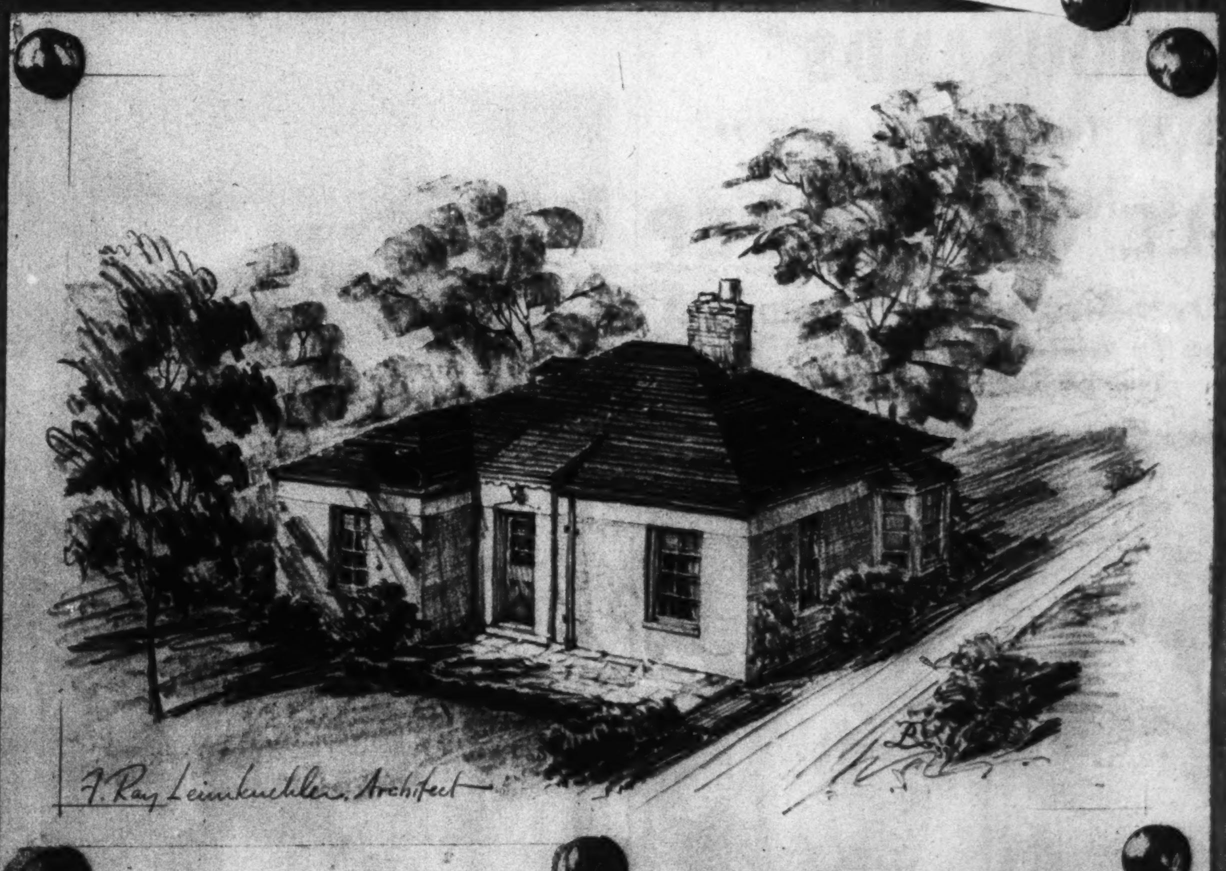
Concrete is the main structural material in this house of modern design of which Fred C. Sternberg of the firm of Reither & Sternberg is the architect. Concrete blocks form the foundation, and the exterior walls and interior partitions are of insulated concrete block construction. The exterior finish is of cement waterproofed mortar, applied with a pressure gun. One of the interesting features is the triangular dinette, with its outer wall formed chiefly of glass. The house is now being built in Brentwood, and the construction cost is stated to be less than $5000.

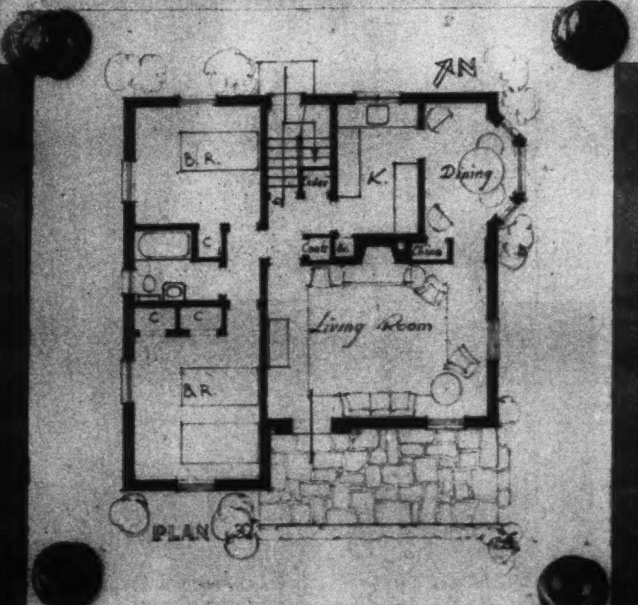


FROM members of the St. Louis Chapter of the American Institute of Architects PICTURES has obtained plans and drawings of a variety of small houses which are presented here to show what a person who builds such a house in St. Louis or its environs can get nowadays for his money. Five of these houses can be built, their architects say, for $5000; the cost of the sixth is placed at less than $8000. These prices do not include the cost of the lot, but do represent the entire cost of the structure itself, complete with heating and plumbing installations, hardware, lighting fixtures, etc.

Architects say that at least one-half the cost of a house usually is spent for labor. Houses here need to be well built because they must protect against both heat and cold, but St. Louis is advantageously situated for the use of a wide variety of construction materials. There is said to be little choice, on the ground of initial price, between brick and wood, the commonest materials for residence construction here, if a frame house is well insulated.

A person who wants to build a small home for his own occupancy may finance it, up to 80 or 90 per cent of the appraised value of the property, by a long-term loan insured by the Federal Housing Administration, if he can meet FHA requirements. These requirements include: The borrower's income must be adequate, and the location, plan and specifications of the house must be approved before construction begins.





A solution by Architect F. Ray Leimkuehler of the difficult architectural problem presented by the small and inexpensive house. Here space is conserved by eliminating an entrance hall, and the arrangement of the two bedrooms, bathroom, kitchen and closets makes for family privacy. The dining room, with its cheerful bay window, may be larger than that shown in the plan if desired. The living room has a fireplace. Access to the basement heater room is from outside as well as inside. The exterior is of cream painted brick facing with white wood trim, red-brown roof and front door. The cost is within $5000.

They both learned to speak and received their education from tutors at their home in California. The team has been appearing at Hotel Chase.

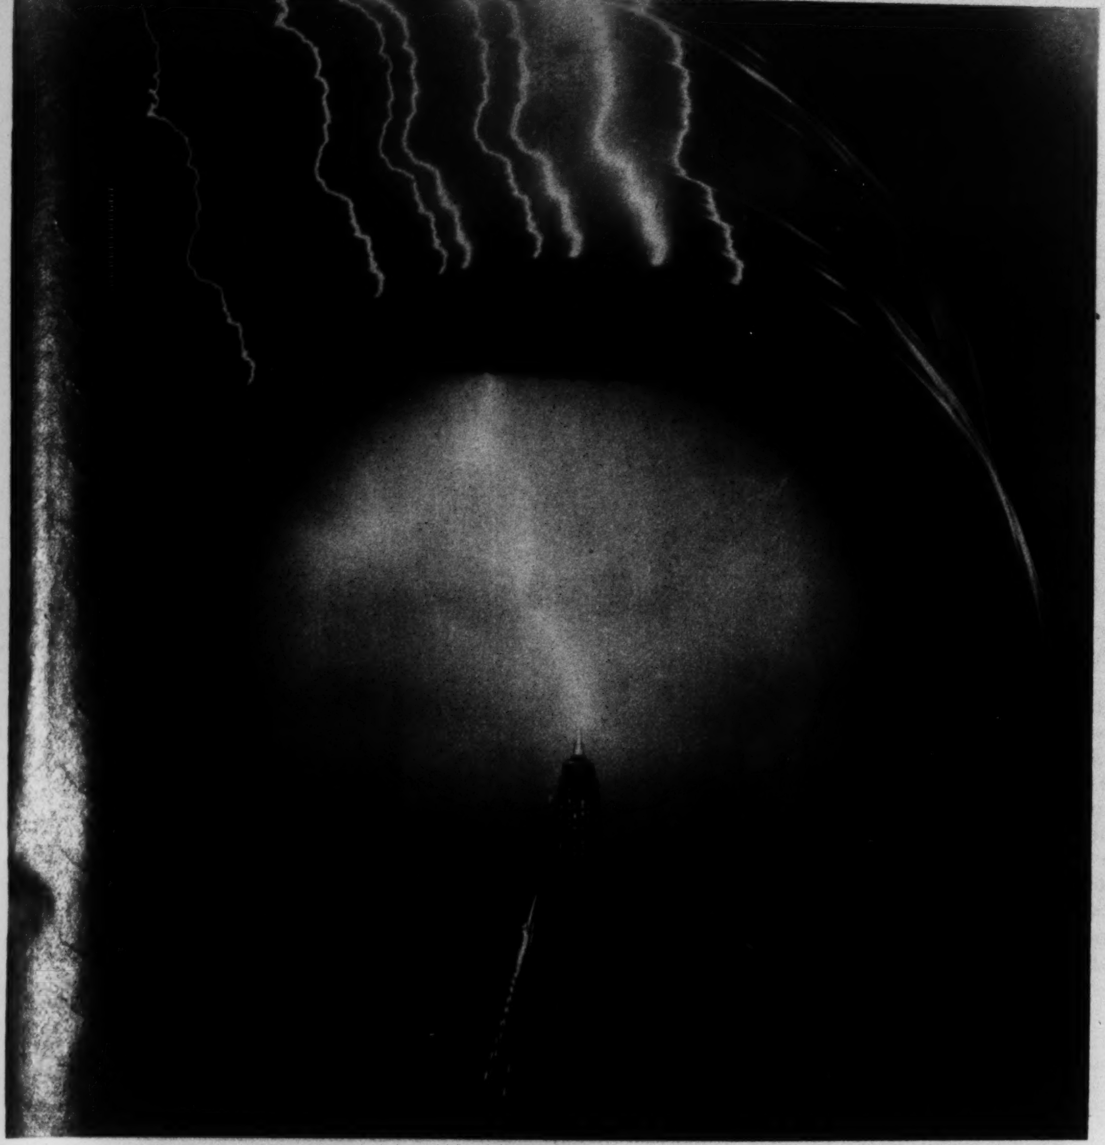
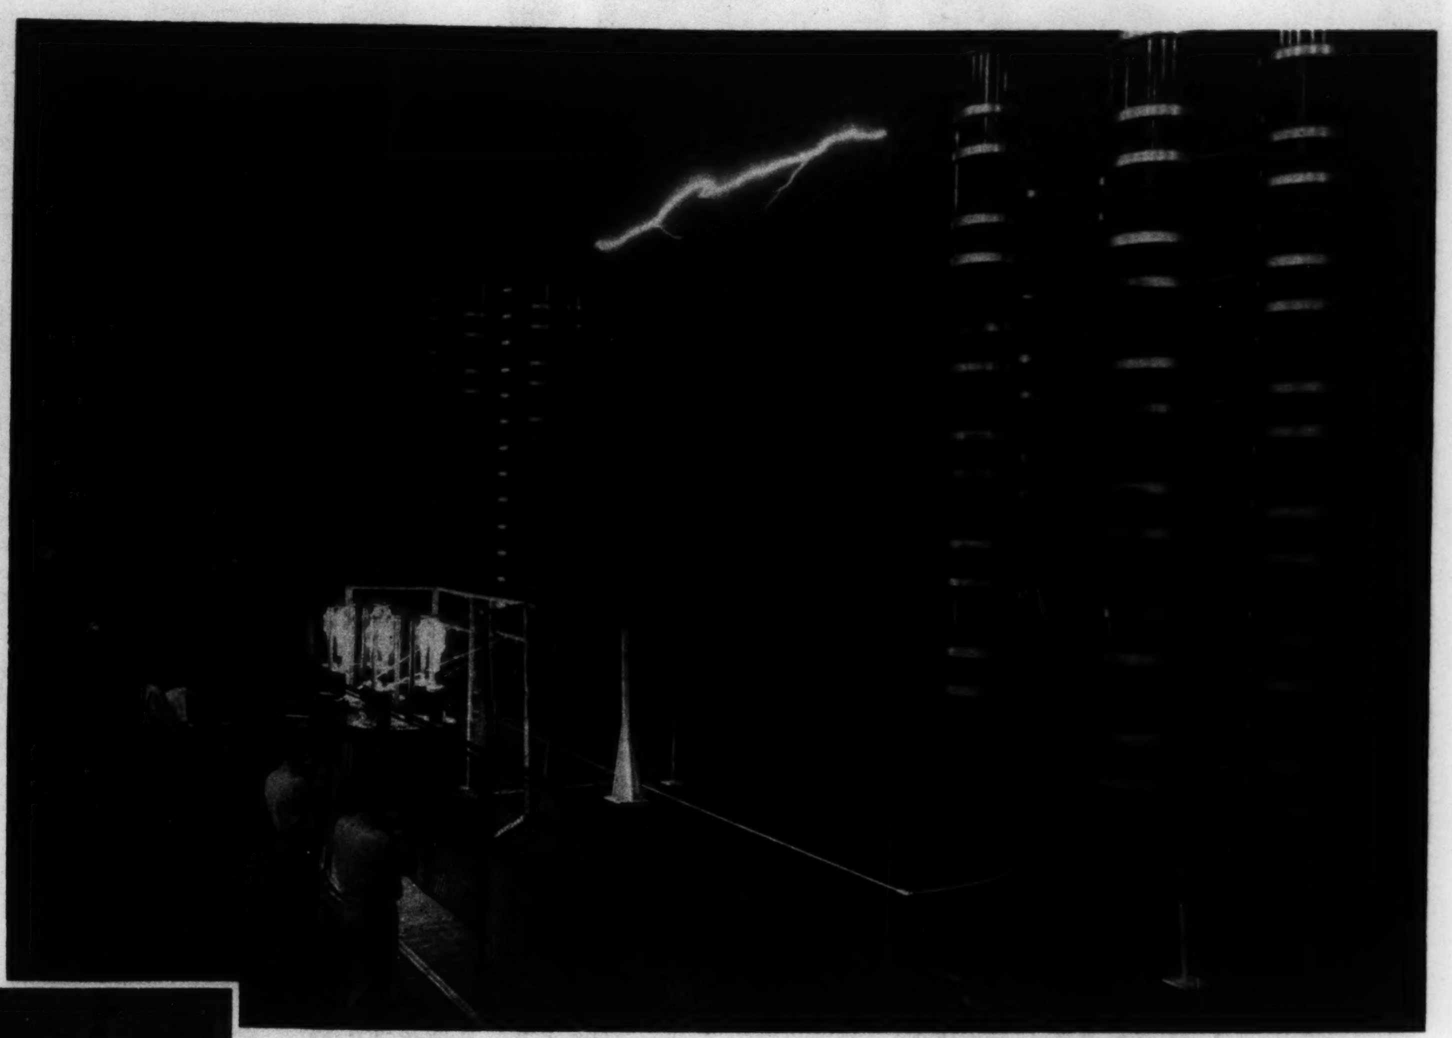
Science Begins to Catch Up on Lightning



The camera shows a bolt of lightning striking the Empire State Building in New York. A special high speed camera disclosed that actually the building was hit 11 times in 0.36 seconds. The series of blurs to the right is the first bolt, second from the left and fourth from right are double strokes.



To continue the research, engineers experimented with man-made lightning, produced by generators hurling 10,000,000 volts across the laboratory. Observers must plug ears because the bolts produce deafening thunder.

The full 10,000,000 volts, charging across a 30-foot gap. The size of the laboratory is indicated by the observers in the background.

The control equipment of the 10,000,000-volt generator.

A new type "capacitator" for the manufacture of lightning is inspected by Karl B. McEachron, chief of the General Electric high voltage laboratory. They are mounted eight or nine to a stack.

ALTHOUGH 190 years have elapsed since Benjamin Franklin determined the electrical nature of lightning by his kite and key experiment, scientists still are baffled by many of its mysteries. In an effort to plumb the subject to its depths, because lightning is still the greatest existing menace to light and power lines, Karl B. McEachron, high voltage engineer for General Electric Co., has conducted intensive research for nearly five years in both man-made and natural lightning. His "laboratory" for the outdoor experiments was the 1250-foot New York Empire State Building. In the course of observation with automatic camera, it was determined that the spire was "struck" hundreds of times, and he and his assistants drew practical conclusions for bettering lightning safeguards. For the man-made variety, machinery was erected at Pittsfield, Massachusetts, which manufactures 10,000,000-volt artificial lightning. One early discovery was that lightning does strike twice in the same place. Another observation was that the bolt from the sky frequently is met in midair by a corresponding, though less powerful bolt, originating on the ground or from the object which is apparently "struck."

A Dance for the Dead

Thought to be a survival from prehistoric times is the custom among Albanian mountaineers of holding a death dance, here pictured, for a dead warrior. At left, the dancers—only men may take part in the ceremony —approach the corpse, singing, beating their chests, stamping their feet. At right, the dancers kneel around the dead man, who is dressed in his best and equipped with rifle, cartridges and cigarette. They remain kneeling until a brother of the deceased pats each on the back.

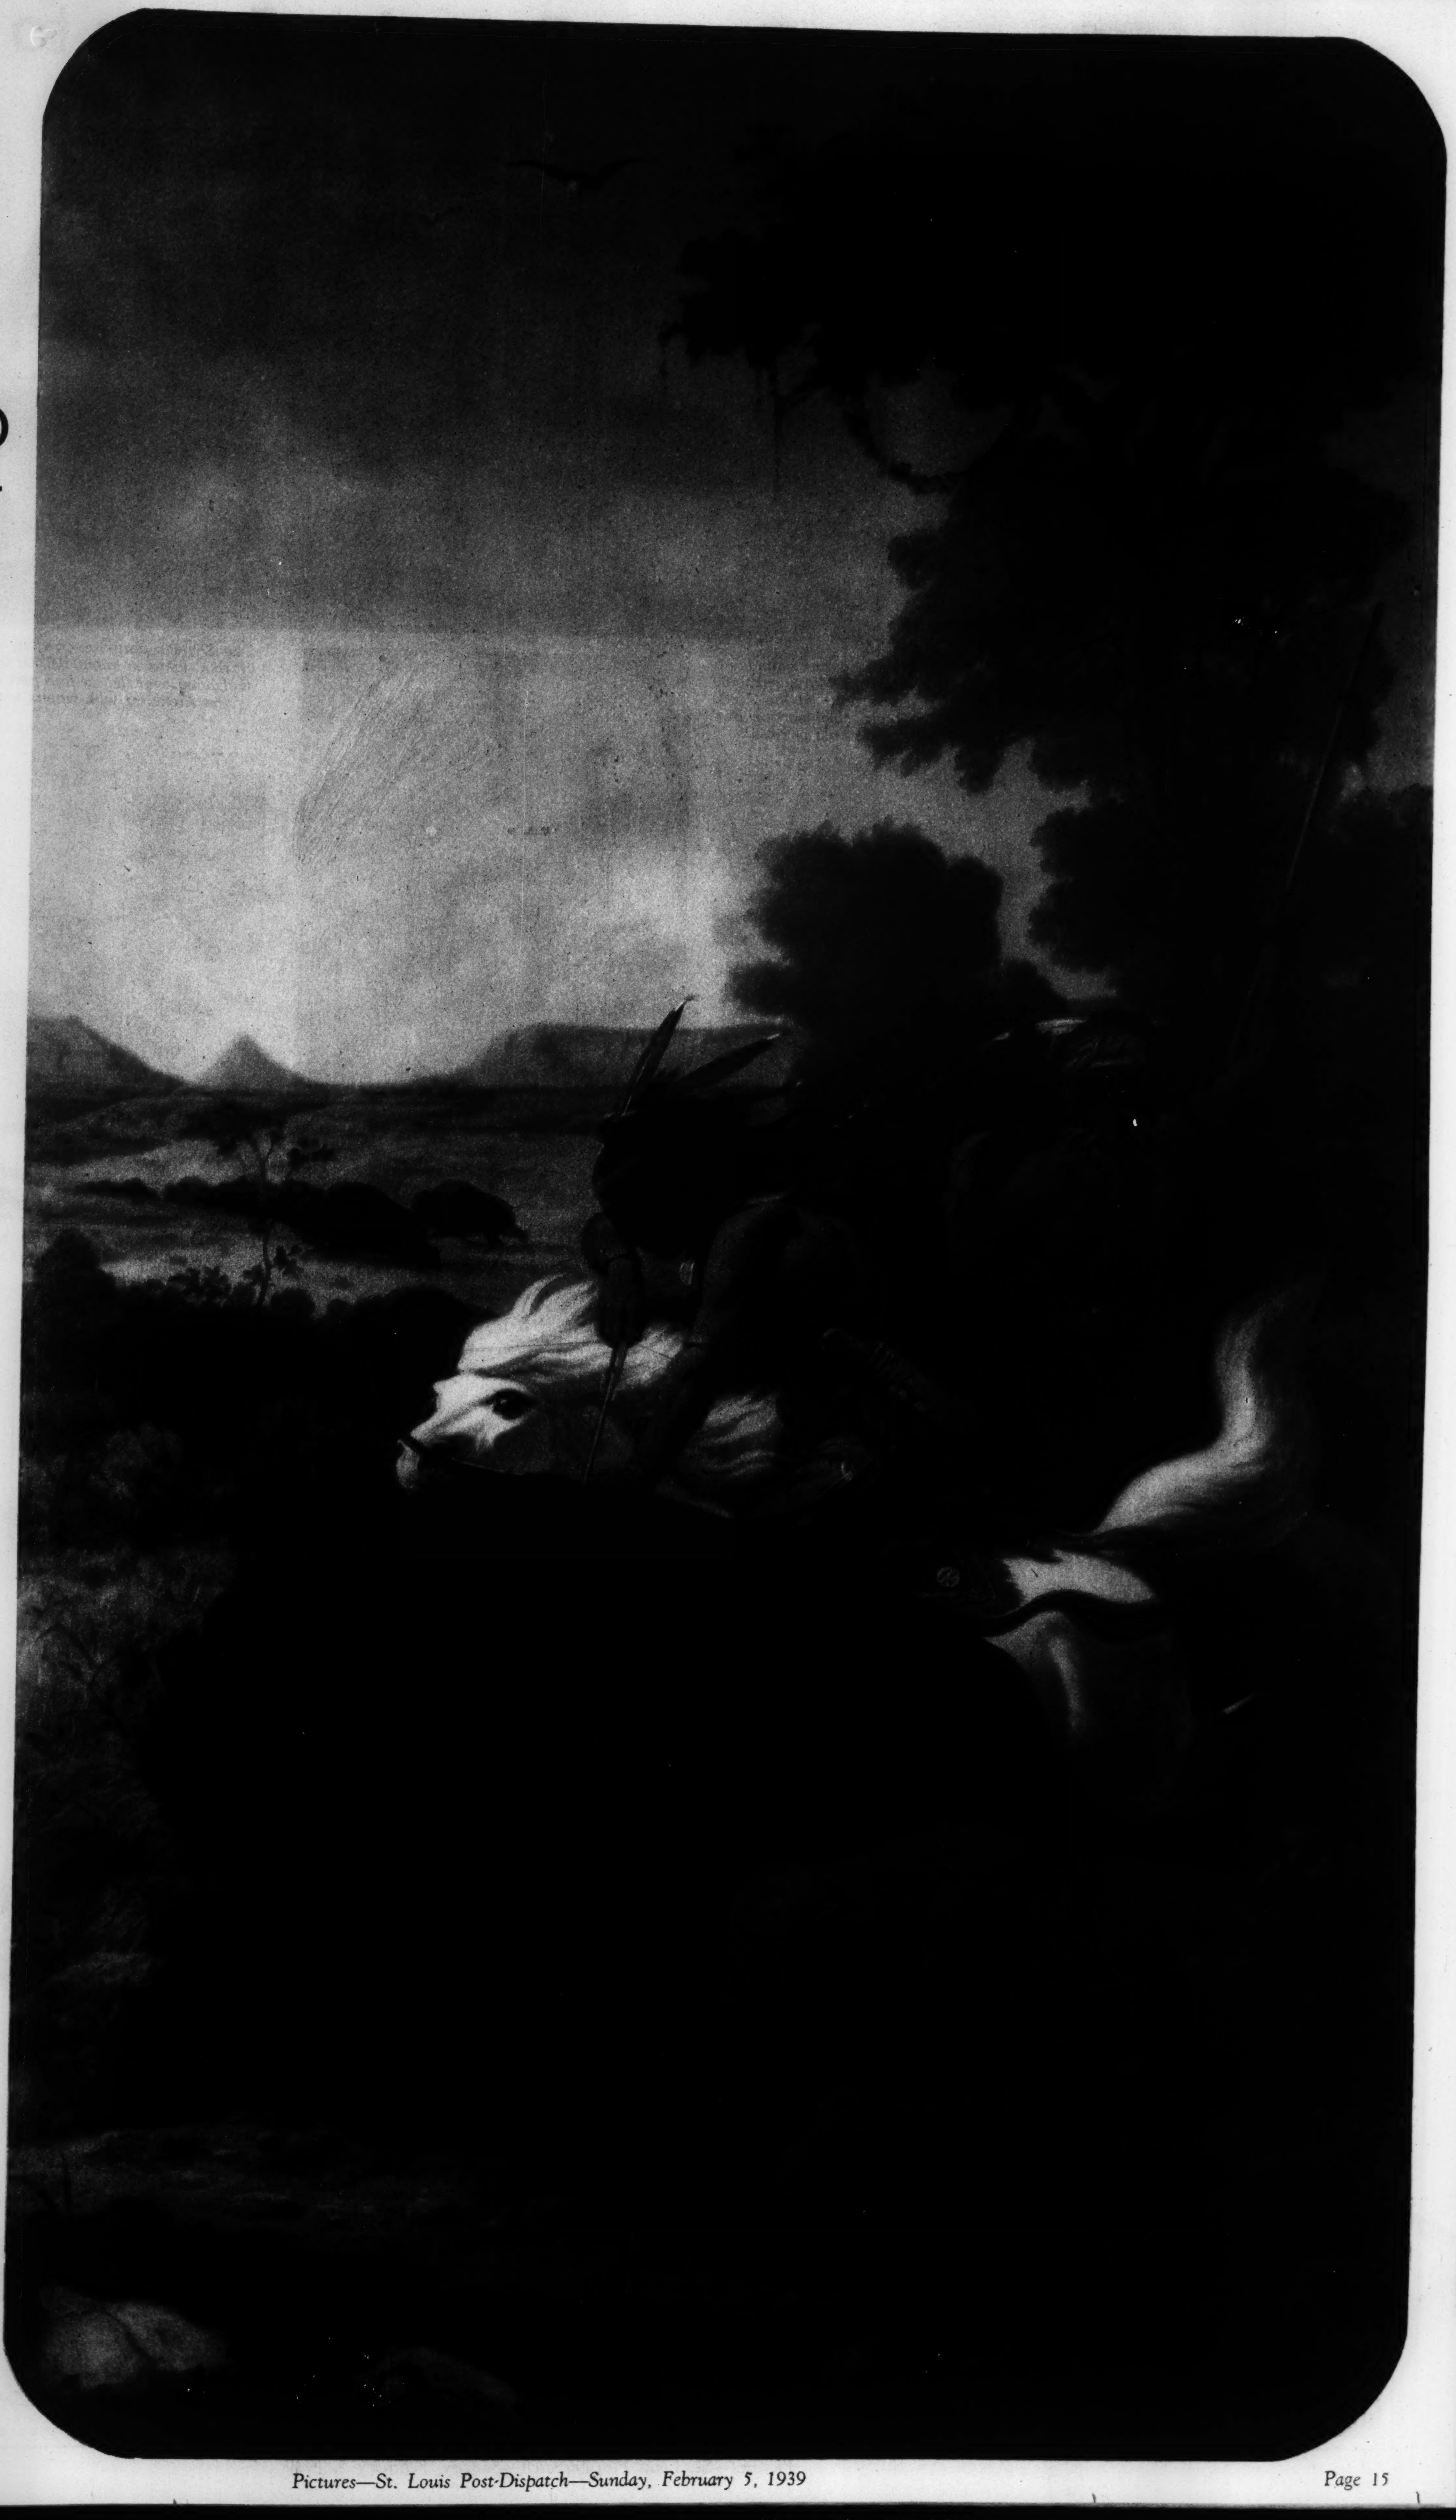
'BUFFALO HUNT BY INDIANS'

by CARL WIMAR

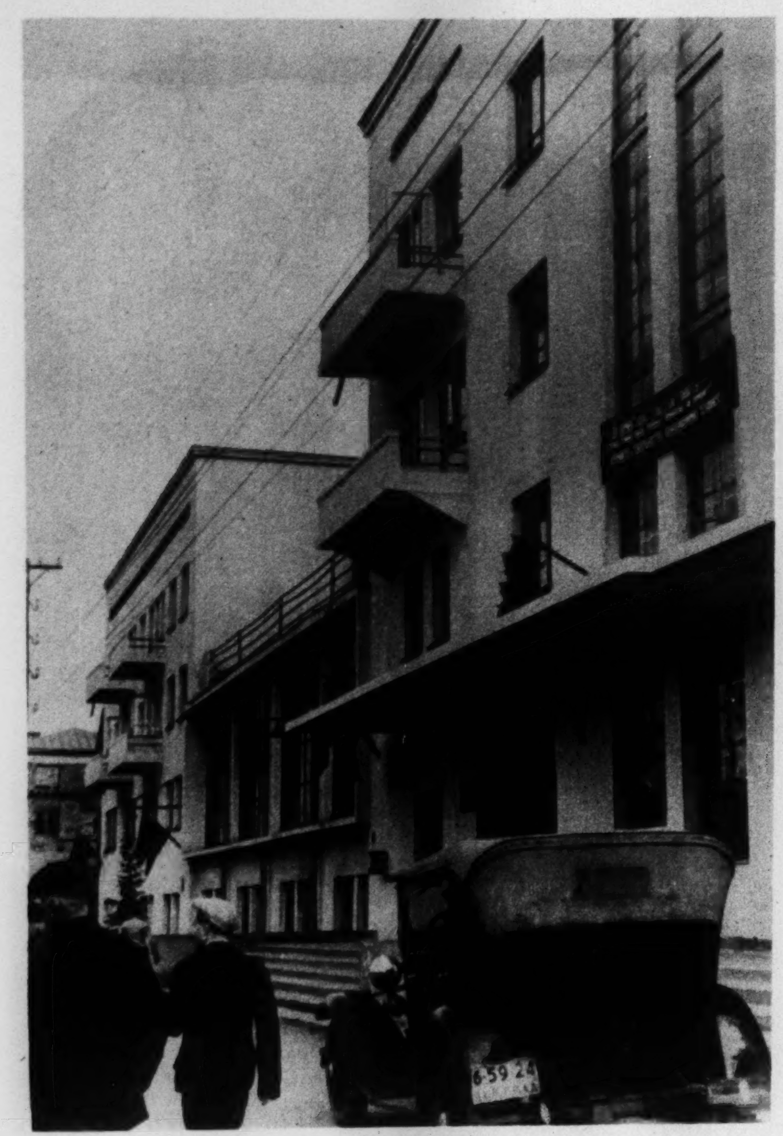
MANY of those who have visited Jefferson Memorial and seen Carl Wimar's painting "Buffalo Hunt by Indians," reproduced on this page, are probably unaware that it is the property of a man who was only recently taken off the relief rolls. Charles Reymershoffer purchased the picture in 1906 from a relative of Henry T. Blow, for whom Wimar painted it in 1861. Straitened circumstances several years ago forced Reymershoffer to go on relief, but when his ownership of the painting was discovered he was removed from the rolls. He is now living at the Railroad Y. M. C. A. and is supported by friends.

A campaign to raise $3000 to purchase the painting has been started by a committee headed by Dr. Horace W. Soper, with the sponsorship of the Missouri Historical Society. When purchased it would be presented to the society for permanent exhibition at the Memorial. It has been lent to the society since 1920. More than half the money has been raised, and it is planned to place a bronze plate with the name of contributors of $100 or more under the picture, with the names of contributors of smaller amounts placed in a book to be kept near the painting.

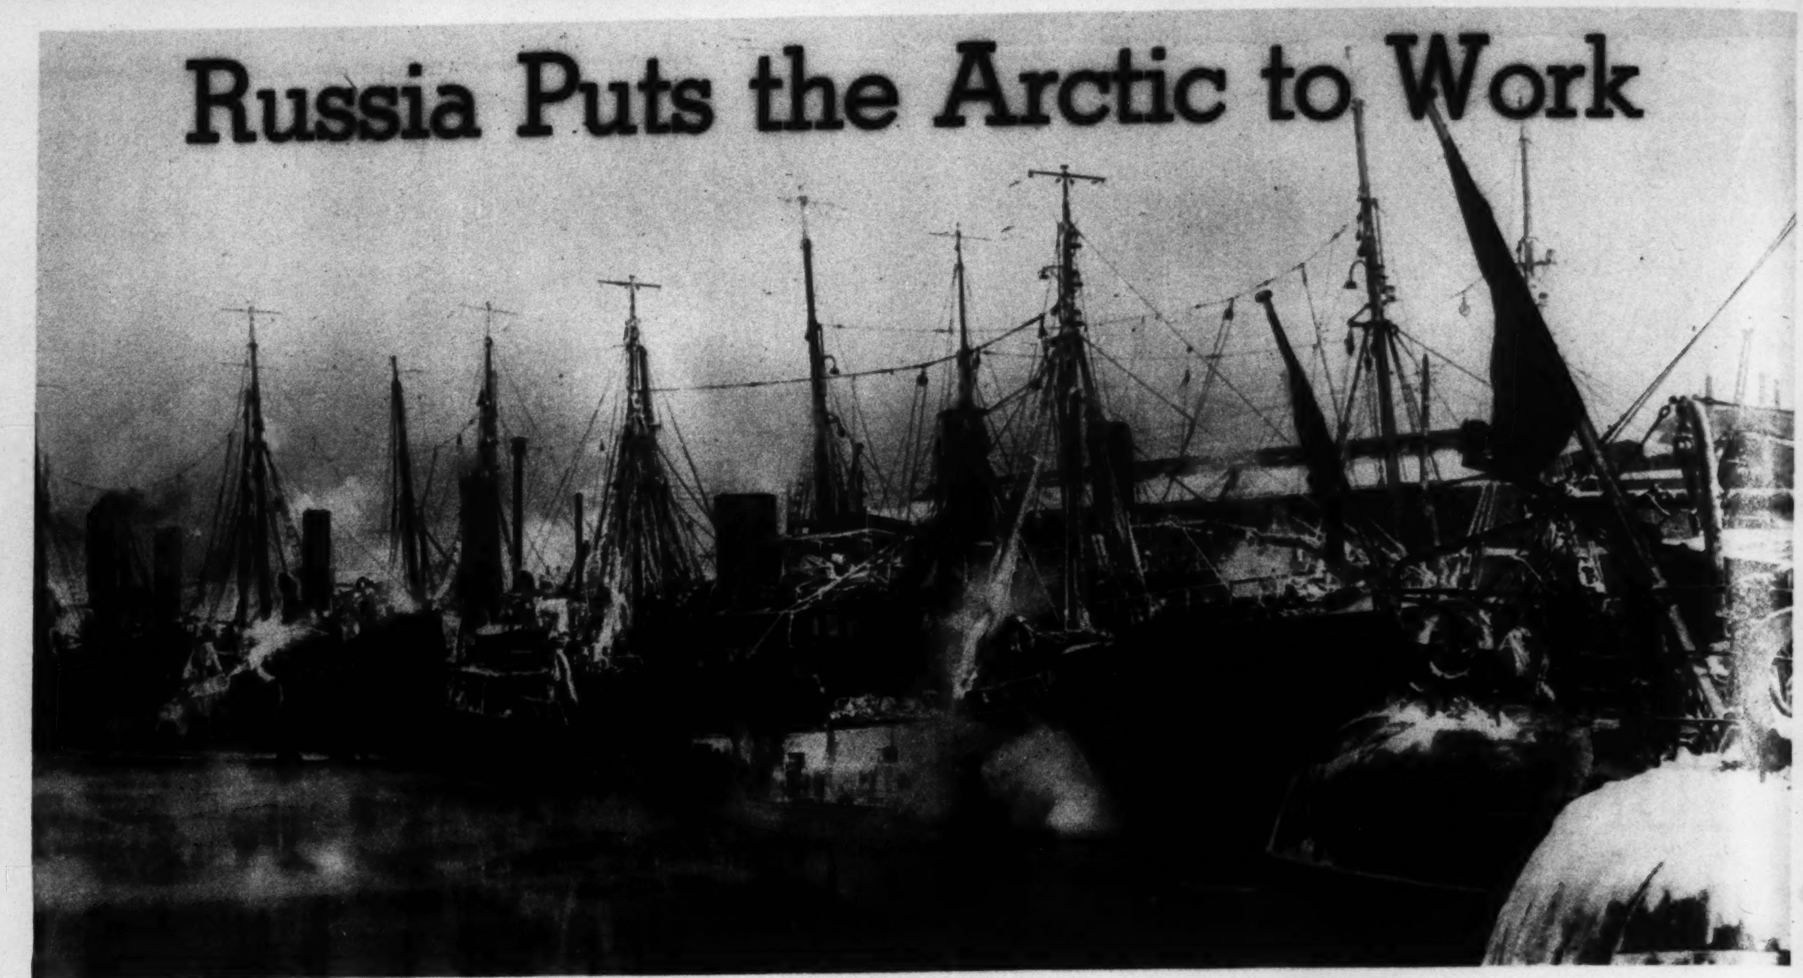
Carl Wimar came to St. Louis from Germany in 1843 and did practically all of his work here. "Buffalo Hunt by Indians" was one of his last paintings, done the year before his death. He is buried in Bellefontaine Cemetery.



Russia Puts the Arctic to Work



This modern building is a hotel in Murmansk, 200 miles north of the Arctic Circle, chief port on Russia's Kola peninsula.



The Soviet's northern trawling fleet, anchored in Murmansk Harbor, takes in about 100,000 tons of fish a year. The mists that hang over the ice-free port are caused by the meeting of the Arctic air with waters warmed by the Gulf Stream.

A weather and radio station at Tixie Bay in the Soviet Arctic. It is one of 60 such stations that keep 200 vessels plying the northern sea route from Vladivostok to Murmansk informed of ice breaks.

THE Soviet Government has spent hundreds of millions of rubles in scientific exploration, colonization and exploitation of its vast Arctic regions since 1920. Great stores of minerals locked beneath frozen tundra, ice-free waters abounding in fish, and large amounts of timberland have been found, it is reported, making the domain as valuable to the Russians as Alaska has been to the United States. Richest rewards have come from the Kola peninsula, next to Finland in the extreme northwest. There, population since the World War has increased from 10,000 to 260,000. Settlements of crude huts have been developed until they now are modern towns and cities. There are four with populations of more than 20,000. Murmansk, the chief port, has 111,000 inhabitants. Although it is 200 miles north of the Arctic Circle, the end of the Gulf Stream which touches it makes it ice-free the year round, and recent completion of the Baltic-White Sea canal, linking it with Leningrad, has enlarged its importance. Key to the northern sea route, the Kola peninsula is strongly fortified.

Training Flyers and Plane Designers at the Nation

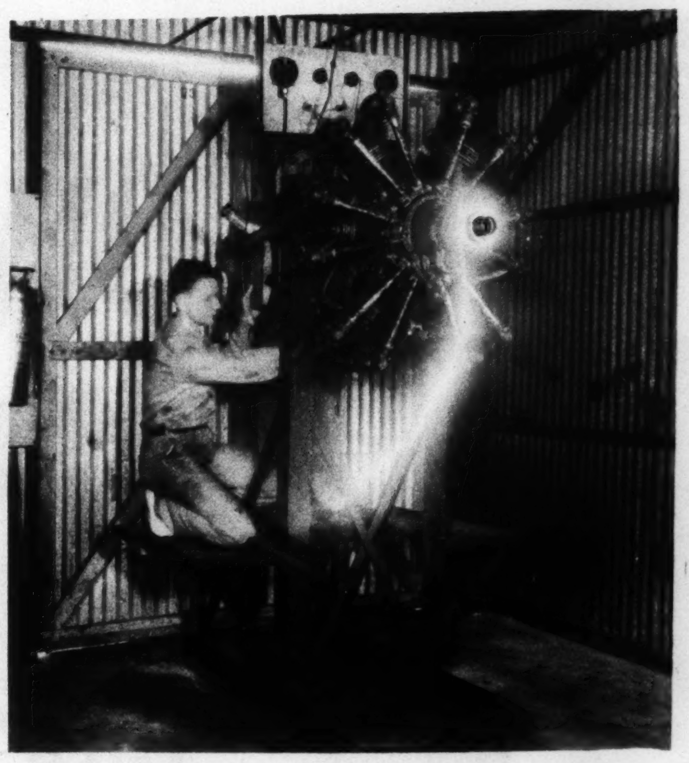
In the shop at Pomona College near Los Angeles the students rebuild airplanes to learn their construction.
(Wide World Photo)



Work on airplane engines is important, especially for those who will enter the ground side of aviation. A Texas A. & M. student tests an engine which has just been overhauled.

Jean Piccard, distinguished stratosphere balloonist, now professor of aeronautical engineering at the University of Minnesota, discusses with a student the lightest licensed radio transmitter in the United States. It is used in stratosphere ballooning.

Students must get plenty of theory as well as practical application of aviation principles. Here two Georgia Tech students work out a problem in aeronautics over their books and slide rules.

ON THE day the United States again goes to war, it plans to be ready not only with men and machines already in full-time service but also with a large reserve strength on which it may draw. Toward this end, President Roosevelt recently approved a program presented by the Civil Aeronautics Authority calling for the annual training of 20,000 students in designated colleges and universities as airplane pilots, mechanics and engineers.

The program, besides supplying a reservoir of civilian flyers to expand the regular military flying forces in time of national emergency, aims to promote the interests of both private and commercial aviation. With Government aid, more persons will be enabled to go into aviation and their training will demand a much more thorough schooling than generally exists at present, by embodying adequate ground school courses as a prerequisite to all flight training.

PICTURES presents on these pages a view of the first phase of the plan, for which $100,000 in National Youth Administration funds have been allocated. In the schools selected for the project about 300 students are beginning the initial test of the program. The President in his national defense recommendations to Congress included a request for $10,000,000 for a full-scale training of 20,000 out of the 1,200,000 students now enrolled in the country's colleges and universities.

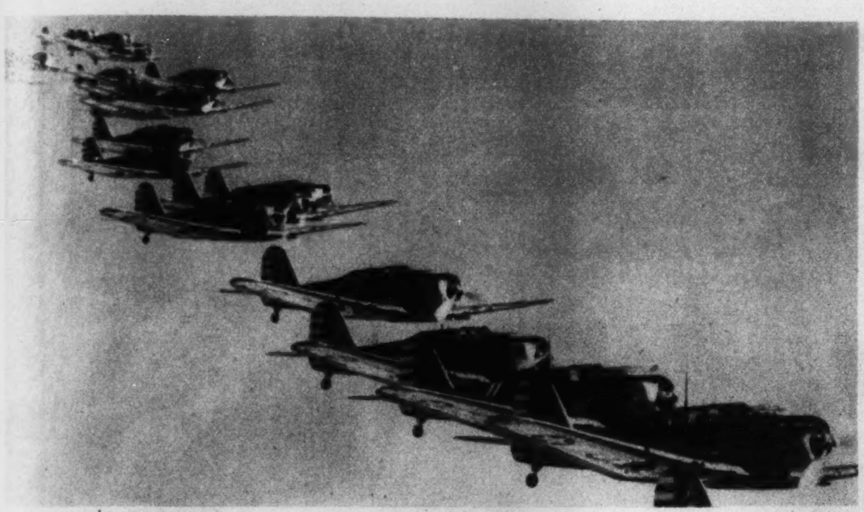
After an airplane's design is completed on the draughting board, a model is made and subjected to exhaustive tests in the wind tunnel at New York University. This picture shows an airflow test. The two students wear masks and goggles to protect them from the chemical fumes used to show the flow of air over the model. (International News Photo)

Women, such as this student at Lake Erie College, may quite possibly be called in the next war to fill the places of men assigned to military duty from commercial aviation.

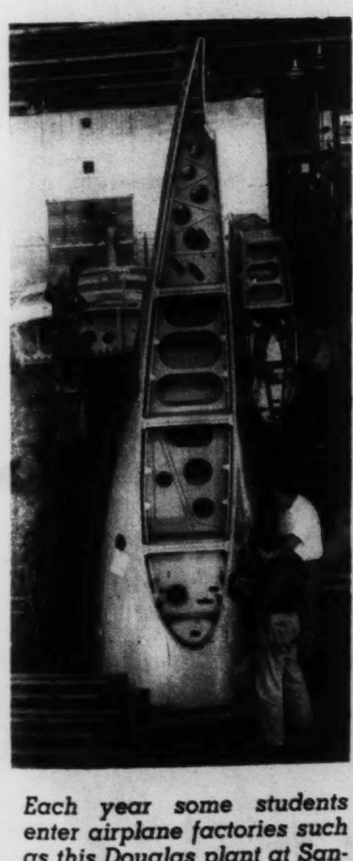
Purdue University has long maintained this modern 224-acre airport for its flying students. The hangar houses classrooms, laboratory and machine shop as well as the planes, some of them owned by students.



Picked students from the nation's schools may graduate to army and navy air schools for training, some of them eventually progressing to such attack squadrons as these, from March Field, California. (Wide World Photo)

These Purdue students developed a model of a new-type plane through their aeronautics course. By such work they learn the intricate details of aeronautical engineering.

A Georgia Tech student works over the framework of a plane's fuselage in the machine shop.



Each year some students enter airplane factories such as this Douglas plant at Santa Monica, California, as trained mechanics and engineers. Here mechanics are putting together a giant metal center section of a wing.

PICTURES as an Aid to Education

The student "editorial board," under direction of Richard Schulte, science teacher, selects a story from PICTURES.

A pupil, Margaret Karchefsky, uses a PICTURES story to explain how the 200-inch mirror for the world's largest telescope is being ground. All the photographs on the board are from this Post-Dispatch magazine section.

BECAUSE it reflects the contemporary scene in a combination of photographs and concise, informative test, Post-Dispatch PICTURES has been found extremely useful in teaching current events at Clark Junior High School, Vincennes, Indiana. Dramatization, eye-appeal, and terseness have been proved valuable in making present-day happenings absorbing to students, the school reports. Under supervision of teachers of various subjects, a student "editorial board" selects stories from PICTURES for study and for explanation before classes by students themselves.

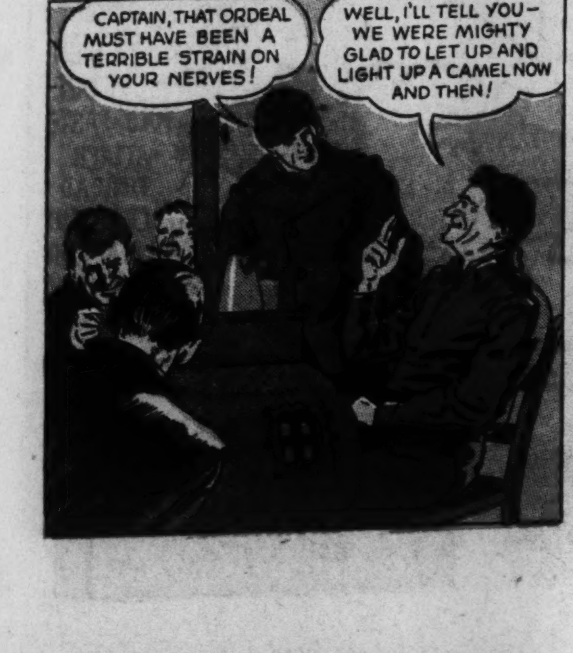
I'M A REPORTER, CAPTAIN HINES. WOULD YOU MIND TELLING ME YOUR MOST THRILLING EXPERIENCE AT SEA?
WELL, MISS, IT WAS ON DECEMBER 13, 1933—AN UNLUCKY DAY—
"I WAS MASTER OF THE ELLEN T. MARSHALL OUT OF BOSTON, BOUND FOR THE FISHING BANKS. WE'D TWENTY-SIX MEN ABOARD. 'TWAS DIRTY WEATHER — SNOW AND SLEET—DARK—THEN SUDDENLY—!"
WE'RE AFIRE, CAP'N! ENGINE-ROOM!
"I DIVED BELOW IN A HURRY BUT THE FIRE AND SMOKE DROVE ME OUT."
LEMME TRY IT THIS TIME, CAPTAIN! YOU CAN PULL ME OUT IF THE SMOKE GETS ME!
YE MIGHT DO IT! IF YOU CAN'T PUT OUT THE FIRE, LEASTWAYS SHUT OFF THE ENGINE SO'S WE CAN LAUNCH THE DORIES!
HACK THAT ICE AWAY! GET THE DORIES OVERSIDE!
SHE'S A GONER, BUT I SWITCHED OFF THE ENGINE!
ROW NOR'NOR'EAST! KEEP TOGETHER IF YE CAN!
"20 HOURS LATER, HALF FROZEN... THE OTHER DORIES LOST IN THE SLEET, A WAVE ALMOST SWAMPED US... SWEPT THREE OARS AWAY..."
CAP'N!! THE PEASE ISLAND LIGHT YOU WAS STEERIN' FOR!
LET UP, LADS, AND HAVE A CAMEL! I'VE KEPT MINE DRY
"WE RIGGED A SAIL... ALL NIGHT WE BAILED TO KEEP AFLOAT... WE WERE NIGH FROZEN STIFF!"

Copyright, 1939, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company



CAPTAIN, THAT ORDEAL MUST HAVE BEEN A TERRIBLE STRAIN ON YOUR NERVES!
WELL, I'LL TELL YOU—WE WERE MIGHTY GLAD TO LET UP AND LIGHT UP A CAMEL NOW AND THEN!

"I FIND CAMELS A GRAND STANDBY DAY IN AND DAY OUT. BAITING THOUSANDS OF HOOKS, HAULING UP FISH, FIGHTING OFF SHARKS ALL PUT A BIG STRAIN ON MY NERVES, YET I'VE GOT TO STAVE OFF JITTERS. MY WAY IS TO LET UP AND LIGHT UP A CAMEL AS OFTEN AS I CAN. CAMELS ARE MIGHTY SOOTHING."

Albert Hines

MAKE IT YOUR PLEASANT RULE TO REST NERVES NOW AND THEN!

THE Boston terrier, pictured here at rest, has a complex system of high-keyed, sensitive nerves, just as we have. But when the dog tires, instinct tells him to relax! Often, when we humans are working, worrying intently, we fail to heed this protective urge to rest our nerves. We really invite nerve tension! So make it a rule to rest your nerves regularly—LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL! Enjoy the comfort, the goodness of Camel's milder, ripe-rich tobaccos.
